INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

THIS Book contains the whole of the fifteenth century Cartulary, or old Register, belonging to the antient HOSPITAL OF SAINT NICHOLAS, in or near New Sarum, with such additions as were made in that book until about the year 1639.

Interspersed among these, and in part added, as a supplement to them, towards the close of the book, are such other records as relate to the Hospital, and are preserved in diocesan or national archives. Some also have been included which concern the Chapel of St. John Baptist on the Isle, the Scotist College of St. 'Nicholas De Vaux' (or 'de Valle Scholarium'), and the Collegiate Church of St. Edmund, Salisbury, which it is hardly too much to call daughter institutions, or offshoots, of St. Nicholas' Hospital on Harnham Bridge.

A brief account, or kalendar (in part by no means exhaustive) of records belonging to the Hospital has been added : and the second or larger part of the Preface is occupied by an Account of the Hospital, and its history, from the Thirteenth to the Nineteenth Century, drawn up by the late Master, Canon George Herbert Moberly, the biographer of WILLIAM OF WYKEHAM, and editor of Bede's Church History.

CHR. WORDSWORTH,

Custos Domus Hospitalis

S. Nicholai, juxta Sarum.

PREFACE.

---

SOON after I was collated by my Brother to the Mastership of SAINT NICHOLAS' HOSPITAL, SALISBURY, in 1895, I had the pleasure of showing our antient Cartulary to two of our most eminent authorities in the department of manuscripts in the British Museum.

The interest which Mr. Edward Scott and Mr. G. F. Warner

then showed in this register (combined with my own appreciation of it) determined me to edit it, so soon as I could find an opportunity, in the belief that others (in the diocese of Sarum, and elsewhere) would welcome such a volume.

Although the purchasers of books are, to all appearance, becoming fewer and fewer, I have carried out my resolution ; and now I put the work before such readers as it may be fortunate enough to find.

The Cartulary consists of 80 (formerly 84) leaves of vellum in what may be called a quarto form, in eight quires or gatherings of unequal bulk.<sup>1</sup> It was compiled after the middle or in the third quarter of the fifteenth century, from original charters (or copies of them) now lost, ranging in date from about 1214 to about 1434 or 1439.<sup>2</sup>

The manuscript was written mainly by two scribes, in neat hands. In the first quire the initial letter of each charter, and the paragraph marks, are illuminated with red and blue alternately. From leaf (17 or) 18 = p. 72 of our edition, red alone is used for the initials, and no paragraph marks have been introduced. After leaf 24<sup>a</sup> (our p. 91) the rubricator has never filled the spaces left for his large initials; and after leaf 67 (p. 125) the scribe apparently took to writing-in his own initials in black, prima manu.

The original design of the volume appears to have been similar to that which is seen in another fifteenth century Cartulary, that of St. Nicholas de Vaux College, which I have summarized in an appendix (pp. 283—291 below).

Thus our Hospital Cartulary was divided into six sections, one being devoted to each of the principal estates of the community, as follows:—

- I. Box, Wyrelesford and Manningford Bohun, beginning at leaf 4 (p. 3 in MS.), p. 12 of this edition. (Here 7 documents were entered, ranging from cir. A.D. 1227 to 1268.)
- II. Broad Hinton (between Marlborough and Swindon), beginning at leaf 8<sup>b</sup> (p. 12 in MS.), p. 56 of this edition. (Here are 11 charters, cir. 1253—95.)
- III. Fyssherton (i.e., Fisherton Aucher, or Anger, a suburb of Salisbury), beginning at leaf 11<sup>b</sup> (p. 22 in MS.), p. 68 of this edition. (Here are 4 charters, ranging from 1214 to 1262.)
- IV. East and West Harnham (adjoining to Salisbury), beginning on leaf 17 (p. 27, or 28,<sup>1</sup> in MS.), p. 74 (or 72)<sup>1</sup> in the present volume. (Here are 22 charters, ranging from 1244 to 1340. There is also a document, mutilated at the beginning, which relates apparently to the fifteenths of How Farm in Winterslow, prefixed. And after the Harnham Charters come an old terrier of the year 1393 for East Harnham, and one for "both Harnhams" made in 1438—9, probably but a short time before the Cartulary was compiled.)
- V. Property in Salisbury itself, 'in ciuitate Nouarum Sarum' (viz. in New Street, in Brown Street, Middlehouse, in East Street, house near the Friars Minors, or Franciscans, and in St. Nicholas'

Street), beginning on leaf 56<sup>1</sup> (p. 103 of MS.), p. 142 in the present edition. (Here are 12 documents ranging from 1261 to 1402, the latest, referring to 'Middlehouse,' being in the French language.)

VI. Gerardeston (Gurston Manor in Broadchalke, Wilts) beginning on leaf 63 (p. 117 in MS.). p. 164 in this present book. (Here are 46, or, counting two duplicates, 48 documents, ranging in date from about 1254 to 1289. To these was added, probably some years after the compilation of the Cartulary, 'The Perambulation of the Forest of Pansett' (near Clarendon), in English, on leaf 82 : leaves 81 and 83 being cut out.)

When the book was first written a leaf or two was left blank at the end of each set of charters, and of these blank leaves a few were subsequently cut out, others (as well as the first leaves) were utilised for miscellaneous entries concerning the Hospital at various dates in the 15th, 16th, and early part of the 17th centuries.

Thus the Statutes of Bp. Ri. Beauchamp were entered early in the volume (see p. 7), probably so soon as they were issued, i.e. in 1478. The Cartulary itself may have been begun about 1470.

A vernacular form (with some Latin prayers, &c.) for Admission of Brethren and Sisters, was prefixed to the charters, together with the Order for Reception of a Friend of the House into Fraternity. In Edwardian (or early Elizabethan) times a short form of prayer in English was written at the end of the book.<sup>2</sup> A note relating to the Reconciliation of the burial ground or 'litton' and the dedication of the chapel in 1501, had been duly registered.<sup>3</sup> At an earlier time Bp. Robert Bingham's Ordinance, together with his charter, which enumerates the property of the Hospital as it existed in October, 1245, was entered next after the Wyvelesford documents.<sup>4</sup> In 1639 one of my predecessors entered the same charter a second time,<sup>5</sup> either not noticing the previous entry, or finding, perhaps, some difficulty in reading the 15th century hand. He added also other documents of 1244 and 1259, showing how, for a short time, the Dean and Chapter held the management of the Hospital, and then exchanged it with the Bishop.

In 1501 the Master, or one of his subordinates, began to utilise the first leaves for entering the names of Brethren and Sisters as they were admitted, and when those pages were filled, the names were registered on any spare leaf in the volume,<sup>1</sup> or occasionally in the upper margin of a full page, or even upon the inside of the parchment cover, down to 1611. Now and then the admonition or correction of some refractory inmate was recorded. In 1624 Geoffrey Bygge, then Master, entered (from the Diocesan Registry) one of the earliest charters, which carries back the history of the Hospital from the days of its re-establishment by Bp. Ro. Bingham to the time of his eminent predecessor, Richard Poore, who founded both the Cathedral Church and the City of Salisbury, where there had been but a little town before his time.

This charter of 1227, which somehow had been omitted by the original compilers of our Cartulary, was granted by the famous Ela, Countess of Salisbury, one of the most interesting personages in Wiltshire history, whose story we must here repeat.

SEAL AND COUNTERSEAL, 1226-38, OF ELA, COUNTESS OF SALSBURY.

THE COUNTESS ELA

(Benefactress of St. Nicholas' Hospital.)

Ela was Countess of Salisbury in her own right, being daughter and heir of William of Evreux, the last Earl. Born at Amesbury in 1187, she was 10th in descent (partly in the female line) from William Longsword, Duke of Normandy, who was slain in 923, and was descended from Adeliza, sister of Robert, Duke of Normandy, and aunt of the Conqueror. Ela's father died when she was about eight years old, and she was carried into Normandy and concealed there, until, after two years' search, Sir William Talbot, in the disguise of a harper, found her (probably in 1198) and carried her back to England and presented her to K. Richard I., who betrothed her in marriage to William Longespé (son of K. Henry II. by a mother unknown),<sup>1</sup> who was a distant kinsman to Ela, and is supposed to have been born about 1175. They were probably married about the 1st year of K. John, when Ela would be in her 12th year and Earl William about 24. Their marriage was a happy one, and four sons and as many daughters were born to them<sup>2</sup> The Earl entered upon his wife's hereditary office of the Shrievalty of Wiltshire, and he was present at K. John's coronation and attended him in Normandy about 1201-2, at Marlborough 1 Oct. 1204, 3 July, 1205, and 6 Dec., 1213; at Runnimede in June, 1215, and in other places. He was engaged in warlike expeditions against France in 1205, 1213, 1214, when he became for a short time a prisoner of war, and at last, in 1216, turned against his brother, K. John, in the last year of his reign. He, however, gave in his allegiance to his nephew, K. Henry III., on his accession. April 28th, 1220, was a great day at Salisbury, and many foundation stones were laid for the new Cathedral Church, as has been done in our own generation at St. Mark's Church, and at the Training College Chapel in the Close at Salisbury. Bishop <sup>1</sup> That W. Longespé was son of the Fair Rosamond Clifford was a common belief since the close of the sixteenth century. But recent historians (see Dict. National Biog., art. Clifford, Rosamond) connect his mother (and Bp. Geoffrey's) with the family of De Akeny.

Richard Poore laid three, two of them in the name of his ecclesiastical superiors, and the third in his own, and then (before the rest of the nobility, the Dean, or any of the Chapter) stepped forward, to lay the 4th and 5th stone, “William Longespé (Longa Spata), Earl of Sarum, who was then present, and Ela de Viteri,<sup>1</sup> Countess of Sarum, wife of the said Earl, a woman worthy of renown, inasmuch as she was full of the fear of the Lord.”<sup>2</sup>

In 1224 the Earl spent the greater part of the year in Gascony with Prince Richard, Earl of Cornwall, in defence of Bourdeaux, which they reached on Palm Sunday. In October, notwithstanding the storms, William Longespé attempted to return to England. He was tossed about for many days and nights, and cast all his possessions into the sea, but received some comfort from a light which appeared upon the mast, and a vision of the Blessed Virgin. News reached England of the loss of the ship, and Hubert de Burgh, the Justiciary, lost no time in putting forward his nephew Raymond as a suitor to the wealthy Countess Ela, and armed him with the King’s authority to press his suit. Ela replied with majestic scorn “that she had lately received letters and messages from her husband, and that if her lord had been dead indeed, she would in no case receive de Burgo for a husband, because their unequal rank with respect to family forbade such a union. Wherefore,” said she, “you must seek a marriage elsewhere, because you find you have come here in vain.”<sup>3</sup>

About Christmas, Earl William, who had been shipwrecked on the Isle of Rhé, near Rochelle, was enabled to land in Cornwall, and made his way into Wiltshire, to the exceeding joy of Ela and her friends. He found the Lady Chapel virtually completed; and on his arrival in the city after nones on the morning of Saturday, the 10th of January, 1226, he was received with processional honours. Next day he hastened to Marlborough, where his royal nephew lay sick in the

Castle of Hugh de Burgh (the site of the present College), and laid his complaint of the insult offered to his Countess, and the wrong done to himself, in the presence of King Henry III. The Justiciary acknowledged that the act of Raymond had been his own suggestion. He gave presents to the Earl and feasted him in the Castle ; but unhappily he fell grievously sick and returned to the Castle at Salisbury for his mortal illness. Bishop Poore came to visit him at his request, bringing the Blessed Eucharist ; whereupon the Earl leapt out of bed and, with a significant gesture acknowledging his own unworthiness, received the viaticum. On Saturday, March 7th, Earl William was carried from Sarum Castle to the Lady Chapel in Salisbury in a funeral procession, just eight weeks to an hour after his joyful home-coming thither. On the morrow, his obsequies (the first in the new building) were performed amid general lament, and his monument is still conspicuous in the south-east of the nave, whither Wyatt removed it from the “Salve” chapel in 1790.

The epitaph was as follows :—

“ Flos comitum Gulielmus abit, stirps regia : Longus Ensis uaginam cepit habere breuem.”

(“ Long-sword, his feats of warlike prowess past, Finds a short scabbard long enough at last.”)<sup>1</sup>

Among the executors of his will (of which a translation is given in the “History of Lacock Abbey,” pp. 144—7), made before his expedition to Gascony, were Abp. Stephen Langton, Bp. R. Poore, Joceline of Wells, Hugh de Wells (Bp. of Lincoln), and St. Edmund of Abingdon, then Treasurer of Salisbury. Among other bequests he left 200 marks to the new building of the Cathedral Church, £200 to St. Mary Bentleywood,<sup>2</sup> his festal chapel-furniture, his porthors (or breviary),<sup>3</sup> and numerous head of cattle. For his own

Cut down ! his Long Sword hath a shorter sheath.”

Bowles and Nichols, Hist. of Laycock Abbey, 1835, pp. 132, 369, from which work much of this account is derived.

<sup>2</sup> The Countess Ela, soon after his decease, gave land in Bentley Wood to St. Nicholas’ Hospital. See p. 154. According to Dr. E. Ledwich (Antiquitates Sarisburientes, 8<sup>o</sup> 1771 and 1777, ii. pp. 88-9), “it is plain . . . that the Countess not only founded but endowed this Hospital.”

Seven years after his decease on April 16th, 1232, his widow, the Countess Ela, founded, “Locum B. Mariae,” the Convent for Austin Canonesses of St. Mary and St. Bernard at Lacock,<sup>4</sup> and the same afternoon, after a journey of 15 miles, she laid the first stone of a second “Locus Dei,” the Monastery of St. Mary, St. John Baptist and All Hallows at Henton, Somerset,<sup>5</sup> to receive her husband’s Carthusians from Hatherop.<sup>6</sup>

On Christmas Day, 1238, with the approval of St. Edmund, now Abp. of Canterbury, the Countess Ela herself assumed the religious habit at Lacock under the Prioress Wymarcia. About two years later, on the Feast of the Assumption, Aug. 15th, a great day at Salisbury, Ela, in 1240, was elected Superior of the Convent of Lacock, and became the first to receive the title of Abbess in that community. Here she lived to the age of 74, having resigned her place as Abbess in 1257 at the age of 70. She died 24th Aug. (or 18th April), 1261, and was buried in the convent choir, beneath the altar.

<sup>6</sup> There is some question about this statement, as the foundation of Hinton Priory is dated by some authorities 6th Nov., 1227. An account of Lacock Abbey has been given by Harold Brakspear, F.S.A., with illustrations, in the Archæological Journal for March, 1900, vol. lvii., pp. 1—9; Archæologia, vol. lvii., pp. 125—158; Wiltshire Archæological Magazine, Dec., 1900, No. 94, pp. 196—240. See also a short paper, by A. H. Diplock, in the Gentleman’s Magazine, Nov., 1900, pp. 434—43.

<sup>7</sup> He was of illegitimate birth, and therefore required dispensation, e.g., from Pope Innocent III. in 1206. He is said to have been son of Richard of Ilchester, Archdeacon of Poictiers, who held the see of Winchester in 1174—88.

PROFESSION OF CANONICAL OBEDIENCE

BY

ELA COUNTESS OF SALISBURY.

1240.

The Collotype on the preceding page is a reproduction of the Profession of Canonical Obedience made by Ela Countess of Salisbury to Bishop Bingham in 1240. The cross at the end is the signature of Ela, and the document having been folded while the ink was still wet, the cross was printed off again below. That Ela signed only with a cross must not be taken as evidence that she could not write. The original is preserved in the second press in the Muniment Room of Salisbury Cathedral.

ADDITIONAL NOTE to p. xlvi.

A good idea of the arrangements for a Hospital in the XVth and XVIth Centuries may be gathered from Sir Harris Nicolas' collection of wills.

own brother Herbert had succeeded to the bishopric for about four years. He secured to the Deans the right of formally visiting prebendal estates, by the "New Constitution" of 1214. In the next year (25 Jan. 1215) he was consecrated Bishop of Chichester, where he founded the prebend of Hove; but, his brother Herbert dying, 6 Feb. 1217, he was appointed to succeed him as Bishop of Sarum, and was received there with a perfect furore of acclamation. It chanced that, after a rogation-procession to St. Martin's, the Canons returned to Old Sarum, and found the gates of the Castle precincts closed for fear of the Germans, and were thus excluded all night from their lodgings. Such inconveniences as this, and the scarcity and hardness of the water on the hill, determined the Bishop and his colleagues, Dean Adam of Ilchester and his successor William of Wenda, Treasurers Abraham and St. Edmund of Abingdon, Archdeacons William de Merton and Robert Grosseteste, Canon Elias de Derham and others, to use all diligence to found a new Cathedral church and a new city, independent of Old Sarum and of the immediate influence of the Castle. For the former purpose Bp. Poore selected Merefield as the site. It was wet. As the antiquarian Leland expressed it in a later generation, "the site of the very toun of Saresbyri, and much ground therabout, is playne and low, and as a pan or receyver of most parte of the water of Wyleshire." The Bishop "founded" [rather preserved and encouraged the foundation of] "the hospitale of St. Nicolas hard by Harnham Bridge" and not improbably threw a wooden bridge across the Avon, which he (if we are right in attributing the device to him), as a true pontiff, taught, like the river of the Medes, "to roll a less presumptuous tide."<sup>1</sup> For a second channel was made, with a bridge of double length, on the principle of the adage which bids us to "Divide, and rule." Leland may have been misinformed about old St. Martin's, but it seems more than probable that in old times "the river at rages cam into" the buildings near it (see p. 292). About the year 1221 Bp. Poore built the hall, kitchen, and chamber, and offices of the episcopal palace (and possibly a chapel).<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Horace, Carm. ii. 9 (Conington). I here adopt the theory, which Canon Moberly propounds below, that the second channel was not entirely natural, but artificial. This is, however, questionable.

At the close of the twelfth century, while St. Osmund's Cathedral Church was standing beneath the shadow of the Royal Castle on Old Sarum Hill, there was no considerable edifice standing on the site of the City now known as Salisbury excepting a Church of St. Martin and a Hospital of St. Nicholas.

St. Martin's Church belonged to Harnham. The old Hospital of St. Nicholas stood nearly in its present site by the ford over the river Avon, through which the road from the south passed.<sup>1</sup> It was probably with a view to mitigate the force of the Avon that after Salisbury became a city, with a new <sup>1</sup> 'Tradition says the public or King's highway ran down Cow-lane at the back of Dr. Baker's house. . . . Before the Bridge could be built a channel was necessary to be cut a furlong above the Bridge; this was brought down on the N. side about 20 lug [i.e. perch] below the Bridge, where it joined again the main stream and made the Island. Another channel was cut across the Close, which also drew off the water.'—Antiq. Sarisb. 1777, pp. 90—91.

Cathedral Church, some resourceful engineer (such as Bishop Richard Poore himself, as we have already suggested), if indeed Nature herself did not effect the improvement, subdued the violence of the river by subdividing it into two channels just opposite the buildings of St. Nicholas. Thus a double stone bridge was constructed by Bp. Robert Bingham to supersede the single ford, and two islands were formed, known afterwards as "St. John's Isle" and "Earldom Island," which became the property of the Hospital; and the first mentioned islet became in 1244 (or earlier) the site of an offshoot of the Hospital, a Chapel, where wayfarers might attend an early mass, and where chaplains of the older institution might perform their sacred duties.

The "Master and Brethren of the Hospital of St. Nicholas" appear to have existed as a community capable of receiving landed property as early as 1214 or 1215, while Richard Poore was still Dean, before he became Bishop, and while Adam was Treasurer of Sarum, that is to say some years before the removal of the See to New Sarum, or Salisbury. For these dignitaries of Old Sarum were witnesses to the grant of ten acres of land in Fisherton, given by Richard Fitz Aucher, whose widow, Sibilla, subsequently made over her rights to the Hospital on his decease. See pp. 70, 71.

Again in August, 1227, when the Lady Chapel was the only portion of the new Cathedral Church yet finished, the Countess Ela, in the fifth month of her widowhood, augmented the endowment of the Hospital (p. 154); and a few weeks later Richard Poore, now Bishop, did the like (p. 12).

In the early days of Salisbury the Hospital was of considerable importance. It began, perhaps, like many twelfth and thirteenth century foundations, as a semi-secular, or independent<sup>1</sup>, foundation of religious character. It seems probable that the Master, Chaplains and Brethren of the House, living under a vow of continence and of voluntary poverty, and submission to a Prior or Warden, in what would, in later times, be called an Alms-house, or Domus Dei, or Home of Noble and Honourable Poverty, devoted themselves to the charitable attendance on the sick and infirm, who, from time to time, were admitted to the beds in the nave of the southern chapel, in view of the altar of St. Nicholas.

<sup>1</sup> I mean by this phrase that some of these hospitals, while adopting a semi-monastic vow and discipline, were not under the Rule of any Monastic foundation. See Bishop Poore's Constitution, printed on p. xix.

Thus the House became for a time in its character partly of the nature of what in modern times is known as a Hospital or Infirmary.

It appears that (at least in 1244 and for some time subsequently) while some of the Chaplains served at St. John the Baptist's Chapel on the Isle, the Master or Warden had also the care of repairing the bridge and causeway, as was often the case with hermit-chaplains in the fifteenth century in other places.<sup>1</sup> But this duty was removed from the Master and Hospital in the sixteenth century by the proceedings for suppressing Chantries, &c.<sup>2</sup>

We find, however, that the Master and Brethren were concerned in the educational and ecclesiastical institutions which sprung up round the new Cathedral Church.

I have mentioned the bridge (or island) chapel of St. John, founded in 1244, or earlier. Then in 1260, when the new College of St. Nicholas de Vaux, otherwise called "of Scholars' Vale" (probably after the community which moved from the University of Paris, in 1234, to a valley of Champagne), was founded by Bishop Giles de Bridport for twenty Scotist students migrating from Oxford, under a Warden and two Chaplains, the consent of the Master and Brethren of our Hospital (as well as that of the Dean and Chapter) was required, in 1261-2, for their establishment, in a house built upon the meadow "near the Cathedral Church, and the King's highway, before the said Hospital of St. Nicholas," (p. 38.)

Shortly after founding the College of St. Nicholas de Valle Scholarium, Bishop Giles de Bridport died. His successor, Walter de la Wyle, in 1269, founded a Collegiate Church, with a Provost and thirteen Priests (who were to attend the School of Divinity), in honour of the famous Edmund Rich, of Abingdon, Archbishop of Canterbury and Confessor, who had died in 1240, and who in 1222-34 had been Treasurer of Salisbury. The consent, not only of the Rector of St. Thomas, the parish out of which the new district of St. Edmund's was to be carved, was required, but that also of the Prior and Brethren of St. Nicholas' Hospital, inasmuch as their "parishioners" dwelling in the road, near St. Nicholas' Spring, and the houses without the eastern bars of Salisbury, and certain parochial rights and appurtenances were to be made over to St. Edmund's (p. 42). It may be added that the Chaplains of St. Edmund's and St. Nicholas, as well as the de Vaux scholars, were expected to "follow the choir" at the wonted processions in the Cathedral Church.<sup>1</sup> This "old custom" had fallen into neglect, when Bp. Roger de Mortival revived it in 1319. (See pp. 49, 50.)

About the time when Thomas Marshall was Master, in 1439, a new terrier of the Harnham property was drawn up, and a few years later our Cartulary was compiled, perhaps after the Precentor Nicholas Upton, jurist and heraldic writer, held the Mastership. In 1478, perhaps when Henry Sutton (afterwards Treasurer of Salisbury) succeeded Roger Newneton as Master, Bishop Richard Beauchamp drew up new Statutes for the Hospital. It is clear that by this time married men and women were sometimes admitted as inmates, and that some of them required to be restrained from begging in the city. The Master was directed to pay the Brethren and Sisters 7s. 6d. for their weekly commons, and 16 loads of wood a year, and one load of coal or charcoal ("carbonum") He was to find also a Barber and a Laundress, and all requisites for the house (p. 8). In 1501 the chapel was consecrated by the Suffragan Bishop, when Dr. William Wilton (afterwards Chancellor of Salisbury) became Master, who seems to have been the first to enter the admission of Brethren and Sisters regularly in a register.

The policy of K. Henry VIII. suppressed the Chapel of St. John the Baptist on the Isle, as well as the Colleges of St. Nicholas de Vaux and of St. Edmund. The reign of K. Edward VI. saw the appointment of Henry Herbert (the 2nd Earl of Pembroke), other lay Masters having been introduced in the earlier times of K. Henry VIII. (1526—43). Under Q. Elizabeth the next Earl also acquired the patronage ; though a clerical Master, Geoffrey Bigge, was presented by him and instituted by the Bishop in 1593. How, under God's Providence, Patron and Master then piloted the good ship St. Nicholas through the shoals that surrounded her, and through the storms which threatened to overwhelm her, in Elizabethan and early Jacobean times, I will leave it to the pen of my predecessor, the late Canon Moberly, to narrate in the second portion of this Introduction, wherein the history of the Hospital is traced from its foundation down to recent times.

I will merely add, with reference to this edition, that as Mr. Bigge early in the 16th century supplemented the old Cartulary by inserting in manuscript a few early documents from the episcopal or capitular registers; so I have added to the Cartulary in this edition, at the beginning of the 20th century, various other records from the same sources, as well as some from the De Vaux Cartulary in the British Museum, the State papers and archives of the Record Office, the charter of 1610, with extracts from the 18th century collections of Edmund Hickman (formerly Chaplain of St. Nicholas), and other papers in my custody.

My thanks are due to Mr. Baker, who transcribed the Cartulary; to Mr. A. R. Malden, Registrar of the Dean and Chapter, now Receiver of the Hospital, for sundry notes and suggestions; to Mr. Clifford Wyndham Holgate, Registrar to the Bishop, and Confrater of St. Nicholas; to the Rev. Geoffrey Hill, Rector of Harnham, for perusing a portion of the work; to the Rev. Canon C. H. Mayo, whose help in revising the last pages of the work has been so useful that I regret only that I did not invoke his aid at an earlier date; to Mrs. G. H. Moberly, for the use of her husband's papers; to Mr. J. Arthur Reeve, for architectural notes, for the sketches at pp. xviii, xxxix, and xl, and for the devices upon the binding; to Miss Agnes C. Maurice and the Rev. R. Grosvenor Bartelot, for assistance with the illustrations<sup>1</sup>; to Canon G. C. Bell, Master, and the Rev. J. M. Lupton, Librarian, for enabling me to reproduce the miniature of St. Nicholas (at pp. xxi, xli, and 283) from a MS., Horae B.V. Marie, in the Adderley Library, at Marlborough College, and for other help; to my dear friends and lamented fellow-labourers, the late Arthur Philip Morres, some time Chaplain, for a reproduction of the 13th century encaustic tiles; and Douglas J. Kinneir Macdonald, late Receiver, for information concerning the muniments in his custody.

FORMERLY MASTER,

WITH

ADDITIONS AND NOTES BY THE EDITOR.

MORE than ten years ago, the Reverend GEORGE HERBERT MOBERLY wrote the following Historical Notice of St. NICHOLAS' HOSPITAL, SALISBURY,<sup>1</sup> of which he was Custos or Master from 1878 to 1895. It is reprinted here from the author's own corrected copy, by kind permission of Mrs. Moberly. A few notes and observations [enclosed within square brackets] have been introduced by the present editor.

HISTORICAL NOTICE OF ST. NICHOLAS' HOSPITAL, SALISBURY.

By G. H. MOBERLY, M.A.

I.—FIRST FOUNDATION.

When was the Hospital founded? The answer is that we cannot be sure. We can be sure that it was already in existence by 1227, as two separate gifts of land are made to it in that year.<sup>2</sup> But of the original foundation there is no record.

It was, perhaps, natural to conjecture that it was founded and built as an appendage to the Cathedral Church, soon after its foundation in 1220, or its first consecration in 1225.

But Bishop Bingham, when he is recounting the property belonging to the Hospital in 1245, speaks of a “retus hospitale,” which he is superseding by another building. Is it likely that he would have spoken thus of a building not more than twenty years old?<sup>1</sup> It is not impossible, doubtless; but, to my thinking, improbable. It is more likely that the original building was “one of those old wayside chapels” (to use the late Canon Rich Jones’s words) “not uncommon in Wilts, at which a wayfarer might get a night’s shelter; consisting of a simple chapel, and two or three rooms. It was this that Ela, Countess of Salisbury, endowed in 1227. It was placed on the bank of the river to show wayfarers the ford, just as at other places the cross or crucifix was placed in like manner and for a like purpose.” It appears to have been built between three and four hundred feet from what was then the north bank of the Avon, just to the north of the ford. It was about a mile from the then city of Salisbury (Old Sarum), and no doubt would often have been welcome as a diversorium for the night to travellers from the south, after crossing the river, and before climbing up to the city. It seems to have stood alone on the north bank of the Avon, without neighbouring houses, with the exception of a Church of St. Martin, which Leland tells us was near the spot.

<sup>2</sup> [The earliest deed belonging to St. Nicholas' Hospital to which I can assign a date is the 3rd Fisherton Charter, which appears to belong to 1214—15. See p. 76 n. In 1227 the Countess Ela (Aug. 10) conveyed to us our property in Bentley wood and Buckley, and in the same year (8 Sept.) Bp. Ri. Poore gave us the advowson of Wilsford. It is to the two last that Canon Moberly refers in the text.]

Can we find anything as to the purpose for which the original Hospital was founded? It is to this original foundation that Bishop Bingham seems to be referring when he says (1245) that “it was founded in a praiseworthy spirit for receiving and supporting the poor”—(ad recipiendum et sustentandum pauperes laudabiliter sit fundatum). And even without this express testimony we should gather that its purpose was something like what the purpose of the Hospital has been since.<sup>2</sup>

The two oldest deeds of gift to the Hospital are dated in

The motto adopted in 1610 for St. Nicholas’ Hospital, “Multorum pietate stat Hospitale S. Nicholai, Sarum,” is in fact very apposite.]

HOSPITAL OF S. NICHOLAS, SALISBURY: FROM THE SOUTH-EAST.

August and September, 1227. [They were granted by the Countess Ela and Bishop Richard Poore, the two eminent personages, of whom presently we have already given some account in the former Part of this Preface, on pp. xxv—xxx, above.]

The first of these two documents is a deed of gift by the Countess Ela of Salisbury, dated August 19th, 1227, from the Castle of Salisbury (Old Sarum). The original has disappeared: the present copy was made by Geoffrey Bigge, Master of St. Nicholas between 1593 and 1630, from the original in the Evidence House at Wilton, on one of the fly-leaves in the Cartulary of the Hospital.<sup>1</sup> It gives for the repose of her soul and that of her husband (the late William Longespé), her south close in Bentley wood, with a copse and waste (bosco et assarto), meadows, pastures, &c., and the close of Buckley, to God, the Hospital of St. Nicholas of New Sarum, and Bishop Richard of the same and his successors.

The second deed is copied as the first of the deeds which begins the Cartulary.<sup>2</sup> It is a deed of Bishop Richard Poore, dated Friday, 3rd September, 1227, from the priory of (Monkton) Farleigh. He gives to the "Hospital of Sarum" certain rights in Wilsford Church, reciting at the same time two deeds which he has previously received: one from H(enry), prior, and the convent of Farleigh, placing at his disposal the Churches of Box and Wilsford, which belonged to their advowson; the other from Humphrey Bohun, Earl of Hereford (great grandson of another Humphrey, who was founder of Farleigh Priory, and donor to it of the Churches of Box and Wilsford), confirming the same.

The property he thus gives is to keep a Chaplain to say mass at the Hospital for the souls of all its benefactors, and he casually mentions a Steward (procurator) of the house.

II.—BISHOP BINGHAM.

1229—1246.

In 1229 Bishop Richard Poore was translated to Durham: and Robert Bingham, the most learned of his canons ("a man of great learning, and a long time master in theology," says his own Dean), was appointed his successor.

Besides being a theologian he was great also in practical matters. The Cathedral had been begun and consecrated while he had been Canon, and was now advancing towards completion; but the city which had slowly risen round it was only approachable from the south with difficulty and sometimes danger. The Avon had been apt to flood all the neighbouring tracts of land: to diminish the trouble and risk of crossing it (there was only as yet a foot-bridge, all horses had to pass by the ford, which at times was quite undiscernible) an upper channel had some time before been dug some 350ft. long, to carry off the overflow of the water, enclosing what is now known as St. John's Island. For this south side of the city Bishop Bingham designed a threefold scheme. First, to build a stone bridge in place of the foot-bridge; secondly, to build a chapel in connexion with the bridge; thirdly, to erect a larger hospital instead of the already-existing Hospital of St. Nicholas, and place all three of his institutions under the charge of the same person, who was to be called warden of St. Nicholas.

The two first portions of the design are mentioned thus, in a MS. now in [the Master's] keeping, by Mr. Hickman, chaplain of the Hospital, in 1713:—"The good Bishop built a bridge over the greater channel, and as soon as that was finished he enlarged it over the lesser channel also, which was a work as full of honour and charity as of cost. Then on the island on the east side of the said bridge (which island was made by digging the new channel aforesaid) he built the aforesaid chapel in honour of St. John the Baptist.<sup>1</sup>

He had purchased the land for the erection of the chapel for four marks of silver from Henry de Wande, probably a kinsman of the late Dean's. It is described in the deed as "half-an-acre in Harnham, extending from the head of the bridge on the south part of Sarum to the King's way towards the south."<sup>2</sup> The date of this must be before 1244: for on May 31st in that year the Bishop made both bridge and chapel over to the Dean and Chapter, appointing the Sub-Dean, Nicholas Laking, first warden of the Hospital, and Walter de Wyley (afterwards Bishop) first warden of the bridge.<sup>3</sup>

at first assumed the wardenship: but a new one, a much larger pile of building—that in fact of which there are relies to this day—must have been in process of building. For on October 14th the next year (1245) Bishop Bingham issued his “ordination” of his threefold design.<sup>1</sup>

He puts the whole under the wardenship of one man (the aforesaid sub-dean), a priest who is to act under the Dean and Chapter, with three other priests under him: so that while two of the four lodge at “the house opposite to the chapel,” and two at the Hospital, all four are to eat together in the Hospital refectory, and to be clothed alike in a russet coat closed round the throat, and to keep step together.<sup>2</sup> Then follow details as to the services to be said by each separately. While the first pair were to say the canonical hours in the chapel, the third priest (who was left over for the Hospital) was to serve the sick by saying a mass for the brothers and sisters who have been benefactors to the Hospital, and for any who have died there: to visit the sick diligently, and be careful about the advice he gives, with the arrangement of the warden, as to penitence and confessions: and to bury the dead, at which the other chaplains were not compelled to be present. The warden is to preside and set a good example to the chaplains and servants, and to realize that he is principally bound to serve the Chapel of St. Nicholas next the Hospital, and there to use the same ritual which obtains in the Cathedral. He must besides pay the due stipends to each of his assistants, and keep the bridge in repair; the rest of the gifts to the Hospital and bridge are to go for the relief of the poor. This is signed by all the dignitaries of the Chapter, together with the sub-dean and sub-chanter.

<sup>1</sup> [Mr. J. Arthur Reeve (who was engaged on the architectural repairs and the construction of the covered way in 1899—1900) has given me his independent opinion as to the date of the buildings. He says that 1240 is the date which he is inclined to assign to St. John’s Island Chapel and to Harnham Bridge, though it seems not impossible from their appearance that they might date back as far as 1230. There is an original lancet window in the north wall of the present kitchen, which was originally built (with a piscina) for a second chapel.—CHR. W.]

The chapel of St. John the Baptist on the bridge is still standing, but has been used for the last fifty years as an ordinary dwelling-house. I hope soon to be able to restore it to a worthier use: meanwhile its triple lancet window, running the whole length of the three floors of the modern dwelling-house, is a conspicuous object from the stream above it, or from the garden of the hospital. For three hundred years exactly—from 1244 to 1545—the salaries of the priests that officiated there, and the repairs of the bridge itself, were paid by the Masters of St. Nicholas, who recouped themselves with the offerings made by pious wayfarers who turned aside from the road to this wayside chapel.

And now what was the staff of the Hospital, and who were its inmates? Light is thrown upon this question by various casual references in the old deeds. In 1227 a “procurator,” or steward, has been mentioned, and a “chaplain.” In 1239 and 1241 we hear for the first time of a “magister et fratres S. Nicholai.” Master, chaplain, steward, and brothers therefore must already have existed in the “vetus hospitale” under Bishop Richard Poore. In 1245, in the charter of the new foundation, Bingham describes in detail the duties of a custos (or warden) and chaplain, and besides mentions “ministri” or servants; in addition to which he uses this remarkable phrase “benefactores Hospitalis, fratres et sorores.” [See p. 27.] There were sisters then as well as brothers of the Hospital, and both sisters and brothers were, or might be, in a position of life which enabled them to be benefactors: or—which is the same thing—the benefactors might be appointed brothers and sisters, and take up their abode at the Hospital.<sup>1</sup>

And now follows the question, what was the status of these

<sup>1</sup> Exactly in the same way one Martin and Juliana, his wife, who gave land to maintain a chaplain at St. Mary’s Hospital, Chichester, were rewarded: “in acknowledgment of their kindness and beneficence the House was to receive the two, as brother and sister of the Hospital, during the rest of their lives.” Swainson, p. 9.

[Among the legacies of William Longespé (husband of the Countess Ela) by his will, made at mid-Lent, 1225, were these:—“To the House of [Monkton] Farley, 100 ewes and 10 cows; to the Lepers of the Hospital of Sarum, 5 cows; to the Lepers of the Hospital of Wilton, 5 cows.” Bp. Poore, Dean W. de Wanda, and (Saint) Edmund the Treasurer were among his executors. Lacock Abbey (Bowles and Nichols) p. 146.]

brothers and sisters? Were they, as at present, pensioners? or were they, rather, brethren vowed to God's service who nursed and tended the poor? To answer this question fully I believe we must look beyond St. Nicholas to the other hospitals established in England about the same time. Archdeacon Wright, in his account of the Domus Dei at Portsmouth (itself dedicated to St. Nicholas), says:—"We find these hospitals at Southampton, Portsmouth, Dover, Arundel, &c., because they were there conveniently placed for pilgrims making for the great shrines of Winchester, Canterbury, Chichester, &c. They are generally of the twelfth, thirteenth, and fourteenth centuries, and had a common plan: a long hall with vaulting and divided into bays by pillars. At one end was usually a porch, and at the other invariably a chapel. The central part of the hall was kept free, the occupants being housed in the aisles. Besides being hospitals for the sick and aged, like St. Mary's Hospital, Chichester, which preserves its ancient arrangement with dwellings or cells in the aisles, they were true houses of God: the poor, the houseless, and the wanderer found a home there. . . . The government was vested in a master; brethren aided by sisters carried on the duties of nursing, prescribing, cooking, &c., while the spiritual care of the hospital was entrusted to priest-chaplains."

This quotation will be serviceable to us in more ways than one: but now I ask attention to the last sentence only, which says that (under a master) "brethren aided by sisters carried on the duties of nursing, prescribing, cooking, &c.," and that in a "hospital for the sick and aged," where "the poor, the houseless, and the wanderer found a home." The Domus Dei at Portsmouth was founded in 1212: and its objects were precisely similar to those which I suppose were the objects of our St. Nicholas.

Look, also, at St. Mary's, Chichester, which was referred to by Archdeacon Wright. This was founded, says Dr. Swainson, its late custos, about 1220—1240: grants to it were made "to the House of St. Mary and the brethren and sisters serving God there, for the purpose of sustaining the poor and infirm people lying in the same house . . . . There was a marked difference between 'the brothers and sisters who served God in the hospital' and 'the poor and sick people who were lying there.' . . . . The hospital was intended to be a temporary home for the sick and infirm : the brethren and sisters who dwelt within its walls were intended to act as nurses. It was also intended to act as a refuge for the night to the wandering poor—the casuals of the modern day.”<sup>1</sup>

Now the following are the descriptions of the inmates of St. Nicholas, gathered from its deeds in the register. In 1227 they are “poor and passengers or resorters to the same house.” In 1245 they are “Christ’s poor and weak and infirm [to be kept] as long as their weakness does not suffer them to go out and wander.” About 1250 they are “the brethren whole and infirm of the said hospital, there serving God.” This points clearly to a distinction between the brethren; some nursed, some were nursed. About 1340 they are “the brethren and sisters serving God in that place, and to serve Him in future”; and the most common description of them is this: “that they are serving God in this place”—a description which, though it might be conceived to be that of pensioners, is at least more appropriate to ministering inmates. A still more convincing description of them is “brethren and sisters and infirm people,” but to this we cannot assign any date. The “sisters” appear very rarely in dated deeds, and range from 1245 to 1361. The last record of them is in Phillipps’ “Wiltshire Institutions,” where in 1361 we find Laurentia Bonham instituted to the house of St. Nicholas by Bishop Wyvill, “as a sister of the said house, on the presentation of the warden and brethren of St. Nicholas’ house.”

<sup>1</sup> Swainson’s “Hospital of St. Mary in Chichester,” from Sussex Archaeological Society’s Collections, vol. xxiv. [The Hospital of St. Cross, Winchester, was founded by Bp. H. de Blois, to support entirely “thirteen poor men, feeble and so reduced in strength that they can hardly, or with difficulty, support themselves without another’s aid.” They were to be provided “with garments and beds suitable to their infirmities, good wheaten bread daily, of the weight of 5 marks, and 3 dishes at dinner and one at supper, suitable to the day, and drink of good stuff.” If one recovered his vigour, he was to be sent abroad with honour and reverence, and another appointed in his place. Besides this, dinner was provided daily for 100 poor men: the number being increased (cir. 1185) to 200 by Bp. Richard of Ilchester, or Tochlyve, reputed father of Bp. Richard Poore. There were 4 priests (chaplains), 13 secular clerks, 7 choristers, 2 servants (garciones), 3 bakers, 3 brewers, 1 cook, 1 (curtillarius) gardener, 3 (lotrices) laundresses, 3 carestarii (carters), with 8 horses and 3 carts. The original foundation was in 1136. In 1416 Cardinal Beaufort added 35 Brethren of Noble Poverty, and 3 Sisters, or hospital nurses, with 2 Priests. Warren’s St. Cross (1899), pp. 72, 83, 96, 100.]

On the whole, therefore, it is probable that the “fratres” were ministering brethren, and the “sorores” ministering sisters, at least down to the middle of the fourteenth century, after which we have no evidence on the point. I shall discuss, later on, the question at what precise date they were changed into pensioners.

But now we must turn to a different question. It has hitherto been taken for granted that the arcade of seven arches, still partially visible in the chapel and wall of the Master's house, with all the large buildings once adjacent to it, was the work of Bishop Bingham. But this is a conclusion not to be assumed without reason given. The pillars and arches themselves, with an old doorway, and the chapel and kitchen (which was once another chapel) are the only remaining features of antiquity in the Hospital. And it is disputed of what antiquity they are. Canon Jones thought them about 1160.<sup>1</sup> When the Archaeological Institute visited Salisbury in 1887, all sorts of opinions were expressed: some placing them earlier, some later than 1245, but the best authorities thought they might probably have been built about that year.

[It may be added that several thirteenth century encaustic tiles have been found in excavations at the Hospital. The present Master has had them laid (1900) in the pavement of the chapel sanctuary, and a sketch of the patterns is here reproduced<sup>2</sup> from a drawing by the late chaplain, Mr. A. P.

<sup>1</sup> Canon Jones was of opinion that this arcade of arches, built about 1160, had belonged to the old Church of St. Martin: and he referred (in a letter to me) to Leland, and his words “that, when standing on the bridge in 1540, he saw on the north side of St. Nicholas's Hospital the remains of old St. Martin's Church in a barn.” It would solve many difficulties if we could believe this; but Leland's words actually are as follows:—“On the north side of this hospital is an old barn, where in times past was a parish Church of St. Martin. This Chnreh was profaned, and another was made in Salisbury for it, bearing yet the name of St. Martin. The cause of the translation was because it stood exceedingly low and cold, and the river at rages came into it.” It is only fair to state that Canon Jones was on a holiday, away from books, when he wrote. Leland distinctly says that the old barn was on the north side of the hospital: so that nothing that it contained can have ever been in the hospital itself. There are more than 200ft. between the hospital itself and the road which skirts the Close wall: therefore there is ample room for a large Church to the north of the hospital.

Morres. (See at p. lvi.) Mr. A. J. Reeve, the architect, considers that the tiles were made about the year 1250.]

Assuming then that the chapel and kitchen were built in 1245, in what shape were those other buildings, which there plainly were, and which are since demolished? Was the Hospital built on the plan of most such edifices, "a long hall with vaulting [to quote Archdeacon Wright's words again] and divided into bays by pillars": the chapel at the east end, and the inmates housed in cells in the aisles? In other words, were there two such arcades (the other since gone with the rest of the building), and were the cells ranged outside them on the north and south, the east end being closed by chapels?

That this was so there are two arguments.

1. The common practice of the times; as seen in the Hospitals of Portsmouth, Chichester, and Wells. It is sufficient to refer again to Archdeacon Wright's account of the Domus Dei at Portsmouth. St. Mary's, Chichester, is built on the same plan, and so is Bishop Bubwith's almshouse at Wells: a chapel occupying the whole of the east end, and the only difference being that at Chichester the cells are open to the central aisle, while at Wells they are closed up into separate rooms. But note that if this plan had been carried into execution at Salisbury, there must have been three separate chambers, or chapels; the two which at present exist, and a demolished one to the north of them: or rather (for the wall of the present chapel which blocks up the arches certainly had no original existence) it was one long chapel from north to south, divided into three compartments by the two rows of pillars.

2. That this actually was so is asserted, and very great detail given, by a MS. in my keeping, which was written in 1713, by one Mr. Hickman, the then chaplain, but evidently derived from much older authorities.<sup>1</sup> And Mr. Bigge, the Master at the beginning of the seventeenth century, seems to have entertained the same belief.<sup>2</sup> Our first illustration (Plate No. 1) gives, in the dotted lines, Mr. Hickman's picture of what, in his opinion, the Hospital had been.

<sup>2</sup> Mr. Bigge writes thus:—"There is a chapel now within the hospital, the other by it being pulled down."

- A. Chapel.
- B. Cubicles.
- C. Latrines.
- D. Porch.
- E. Old Hospital.

— 13th Century Work still existing.
 — 13th Century Work destroyed.
 : : : } Probable Arrangement of original Buildings.

Against these arguments, strong as they seem, is to be set the present aspect of the remains of the Hospital of 1245. Briefly, the present look of those remains goes far to justify the assertion that another arcade, supporting another set of cells, cannot ever have been built, and that the original design admitted only of two chapels, not three. There is no evidence, in the northern wall of that chapel which is now the kitchen, of any beginning of a row of arches corresponding to that in the south wall. The eastern wall of the two chapels appears to be coëval with the rest of the chapels: yet there is a very distinctly marked corner-buttress on the north-east of the northern chapel of the two, corresponding to the buttress at the south-east corner of the southern chapel. Now if there had ever been another chapel at the north of the northern chapel, the corresponding buttress would have been on the north-east of that.<sup>2</sup>

[Mr. J. ARTHUR REEVE, the architect employed upon the Hospital buildings in 1899 and 1900, writes as follows:—

“The chapel must always have been a two-aisled building with an altar against the east wall of each aisle.

“I do not see that any amount of documentary evidence (if it be forthcoming) as to the original design could affect the proof supplied by the building itself that it was originally built in this simple two-aisled form.

“The diagonal buttress at the N.E. corner, which is manifestly antient, never could have existed, as it does, if there had been any third aisle actually built.

“It is true that mediæval hospitals were generally three-aisled buildings; but the central aisle is then wider than the side aisles, after the manner of a church. The peculiarity of St. Nicholas is, that both aisles are of the same width; and this is an additional reason for believing that there never were three aisles.

“The present chapel fittings show conclusively that it was intended for a chapel from the first, and any consecration

<sup>2</sup> That the northern transept, as figured by Hickman, ever really existed there is nothing to show. The southern transept was exactly on the spot where afterwards (in the fifteenth century) stood a covered way to the latrines (see Plate No. 2), since demolished.

What Hickman (p. 282) calls the Sanctum Sanctorum—the building to the east of the present eastern wall of the hospital—can never have been in existence at all; and this is sufficient to discredit his whole plan.

which may have taken place in 1501 can only have been a dedication of a church which had been used for some centuries in an un-consecrated condition, or the reconciliation of a church once duly dedicated after some casual desecration.<sup>1</sup> It is also clear that the present kitchen was at first built for a chapel.

“I think I should assign the buildings of St. Nicholas to Bishop Bingham, 1229—1247; and I am very much inclined to agree with the late Canon G. H. Moberly in thinking that the northern block may actually represent the ‘retus hospitale,’ although I do not think that the old ‘doorway near the west end of it’ (p. liii) is any proof of the age of the south wall of this block: for, as it stands, this blocked doorway is of the same date as one open, and one other blocked doorway, in this same wall; and I believe them all to be sixteenth century insertions, owing to the form of the arches; but of course they may be in the positions of more antient doorways. The small two-light window, above the westernmost of these three arches, and the two-light window with a transome, immediately to the east of it, do, however, to my thinking, look like earlier work, and might well belong to some such date as 1210.”]

On the other hand, it is hardly possible to suppose that Mr. Hickman’s elaborate descriptions are entirely invented. Perhaps it would be better, in the absence of direct evidence, to suggest the conclusion that Bingham intended, when he began, to build a hospital on the threefold plan so commonly in use: but that his death stopped the design, which afterwards was completed on a smaller scale, by finishing the two chapels already begun, and building a row of cells upon the north of the arcade already in existence, to correspond to that upon the south.

[It may be added that the existing (original) porch remaining at the west end, and the original eastern wall of the chapels, prove that the buildings are of the same length now as they were in the 13th century.]

Next, did Bingham destroy the older building, or build on an independent site? i.e., Is the older building still traceable outside what has since been the hospital? Our evidence on this point is fairly conclusive. Bingham's Inventory, written the same day with his ordination of the Hospital, mentions a "mansus juxta vetus hospitale, versus aquilonem."<sup>1</sup> It is true these words are ambiguous: they may mean only that St. Nicholas' possessed a mansion to the north of the old Hospital, and give no indication whatever as to the whereabouts of the old Hospital itself. Still it is perhaps more likely that they should mean that the "vetus hospitale" was to the north of the new Hospital, then just built. So evidently Mr. Hickman took them in 1713: for he draws upon his sketch-plan of the buildings before 1502 a house to the north of the Hospital, upon which he writes the words:—"The house on the north side of the hospital mentioned by Bishop Robert in his ordination."

In his description of the map he says:—"On the north side of the hospital, between the new hospital and the churchyard or Litton, was a tenement given by Bishop Robert in his ordination, which has been since rebuilt in form of a church or hospital building: at the east end of which was a door through a wall out of the aforesaid additional buildings of the cross aisle into the churchyard. But since the poor people's rooms are gone on the north side of the church (or cloister), and the chaplain's lodgings which was over them, there are two rooms built at the east end of the said tenement (of late called the farm house, because the farmer that rented the hospital lands generally lived there) for two poor people, and a chamber and garret for the chaplain over them." This passage gives us as much as we know about the site of the old Hospital: and the map gives us the distance of the south wall of the building from the surviving row of arches as 75ft. This is precisely the distance of the south wall of the present Brethren's rooms from that same row of arches: so that we seem warranted in concluding that in the present men's buildings we have the modern representative of the original Hospital to which Countess Ela made her gift. I have long suspected that the south wall of this building is old; at least in its lower courses of stones. Can it be the original wall of the beginning of the thirteenth century? Notice especially the doorway near the west end of it: exactly in the spot where Hickman's map figures a door in the "old hospital."<sup>1</sup>

III.—BISHOPS BRIDPORT AND WYLEY.

1257—1271.

Bishop Bingham died in the next year (1246) after he had finished the building and constitution of his triple work—bridge, chapel, and Hospital. In the next episcopate, which lasted nine years, that of William of York (1246—1256), the third Church and advowson was given to the Hospital, besides the Churches of Wilsford and Burstock.<sup>2</sup> On August 19th, 1253, Sir Richard Hinton gave "to God, the Blessed Mary and Saint Nicholas of Salisbury," the perpetual advowson of Broad Hinton Church, near Swindon, together with six acres of land, and two days afterwards Bishop William confirmed the gift.<sup>3</sup>

But William of York died in 1256; and the next year Giles Bridport, the dean of Wells, was consecrated bishop. He appears to have been a bishop with theories of his own, for which he used the benefactions of his predecessors without much caring to abide by their intentions. It is very curious to study the devotion of successive bishops to some one form of benefaction of their own devising, which their successors sweep entirely away in equal devotion to some other scheme. Thus the constitution of bridge, chapel, and Hospital, which Bishop Bingham had so carefully elaborated, was swept ruthlessly aside; the new bishop had set his heart upon another scheme. He wished to found a theological college in Salisbury, and to connect it with St. Nicholas; and he changed the constitution of St. Nicholas itself, constituting himself and his successors the wardens, and so taking from the dean and chapter the patronage which had been theirs for the last seventeen years (1245—1262) by gift of Bishop Bingham, and putting a prior into immediate command of the Hospital.

<sup>1</sup> [Although the doorway as it stands at present (like the other two near it) is probably not older than the sixteenth century; it not improbably replaces an earlier one in the same position; and the brethren's block of building in question (to the north of the hospital quadrangle) may (as Mr. Reeve says) very possibly represent the vetus hospitale mentioned (p. 32 below) as being already in 1245 of some antiquity.]

The “final concord” by which this last revolution was accomplished is dated February, 1260, at which time legal sanction was sought for what had probably been before determined on.<sup>1</sup> An agreement was made before the King’s Justices, that the bishops should be perpetual wardens of St. Nicholas’ Hospital, and that in return for this concession the dean and chapter should have the perpetual nomination of one of the brethren—a privilege which they have exercised ever since. Thus the nominee of the dean and chapter appears to have been the first permanently resident brother in the hospital.

The same year the bishop executed another deed,<sup>2</sup> founding a house to be called “De Valle Scholarium beati Nicholai.” The name is one that tells us a good deal about the purpose and studies of the new foundation.

This thirteenth century had been, to an extent most unusual, occupied with thoughts of another world and theological study. The institutions of the monks had grown worldly, but those of the friars had supplanted them at the beginning of the century. These were the avowed servants of the Papacy. A revolution also was taking place in the world of knowledge. The friars were for the most part ignorant, but among them were reared the famous Mendicant Schoolmen of the century, and they introduced their scholastic method into theological study. A strife for professors’ chairs in the University of Paris arose, and was not finally concluded for thirty years, when the Pope settled it in favour of the Mendicants (A.D. 1259). But long before this the “Scholares.,” i.e., the four university professors of Paris, had met in a secluded valley of Auvergne, and thence taken the name of Valli-Scholares. The original Valli-Scholares, then, were men of the old learning as opposed to the new—those whom Mosheim calls Biblicists<sup>3</sup>—men who deduced their conclusions from the study of the Bible and older fathers, and were opposed to the Mendicant Schoolmen, who accepted the Bible as their text-book, yet drew their conclusions from philosophy and by philosophical methods. At the head of these Biblicists in Paris now was William de St. Amour. At the head of the Mendicants, not only in Paris, but throughout Europe, was Thomas of Aquino. The very year in which Bridport founded his college (1261) died Pope Alexander IV., the great patron of Mendicants; but Louis IX. (Saint Louis), hardly a less patron of the same party, was still King of France. In the popedom of Alexander IV. it had required great courage for William de St. Amour to bring out his work, "The Perils of the Last Times"; he was summoned to Rome, opposed by Thomas of Aquino, tried, and sent into exile in France, where he continued till Alexander's death.

Now the fact that Bishop Bridport chose the name of Vallis Scholares for his new college seems to indicate that he espoused the cause of the old learning, the cause of William de St. Amour, in this controversy. And the fact that Bishop Bingham had encouraged the foundation of Friar Preachers, or Dominicans—the first Mendicant order—at Wilton, about 1245, shows that he was disposed to favour the rival school, that of the new learning, or of St. Thomas of Aquino.

But the University of Oxford had its internal troubles as well as the University of Paris. The latter, on occasion of a fray with the municipal authorities, had closed its doors, and issued forth into the country, where it had set up its staff in different towns, nay, had even been invited over by Henry III. to Oxford. In this it was exactly imitated by Oxford. That university had at this time come into collision with the town, and dispersed its students. Upon this occasion many went to Cambridge; but others migrated to Salisbury. In Salisbury they must have attended the Cathedral schools, then presided over by Ralph Heytham, as chancellor. But as it was with the full concurrence of the chapter that Bishop Bridport established his new college in 1261, we must not think that there was any bickering between the Cathedral students of theology and those of the new Valley College, or College de Vaux. We do not hear of any such; but there must always have been the difference between the two that the College de Vaux was founded to support the older views in theology, which the Cathedral Students may well have thought reactionary and old-fashioned.

In the foundation deed of the college in 1261<sup>1</sup> Bishop Giles says that he founds, to the honour of Christ, the Virgin, and St. Nicholas, a house for the use and property of scholars, to be called "the College of the Valley Scholars of St. Nicholas," by consent of Robert the dean and the chapter of Sarum, the master and brethren of the Hospital of St. Nicholas, in the meadow hard by the Cathedral, and the highway in front of the said Hospital, for the support of a warden, two chaplains, and twenty poor, needy, well-born, and teachable scholars, serving the Lord and St. Nicholas in that place, and living therein and studying and making progress in the Holy Scriptures and the liberal arts. He ordains that on the cession or decease of Sir John Holtby, Canon of Salisbury, now warden of the house, the new warden should be elected by the dean and chapter, out of the number of the canons, or at least with their consent, and should have full right of correction within the circuit of the said house. The deed was sealed with the seal of the dean and chapter, and with that of the master and brethren of St. Nicholas; and witnessed by the chancellor, the archdeacon of Wilts, the sub-dean, and two canons; Reginald Wych, the Mayor of Salisbury, was also among the witnesses, besides many other laymen.

This introduces us at once to a large question, on which we get singularly little light from either side, namely, what were the relations subsisting between the Hospital of St. Nicholas and the Valley College?

St. Nicholas' Hospital was by this time a rich institution. Land had been literally showered upon it: and if it be true that Bingham had ever built to the full extent of his apparent design, it was a spacious as well as a rich foundation. At this very time we hear in one of the deeds<sup>2</sup> of a "street in new Salisbury called St. Nicholas' Street," which must, one would think, have been the present Exeter Street, leading from St. Anne's Gate<sup>3</sup> to the Hospital. And we hear, also, in the next episcopate, casually and not at all as if it were a new thing, of St. Nicholas' parish. When Bishop Wyley was ordaining as to his new college of St. Edmund, he talked of "the tenants who before were parishioners of the hospital of St. Nicholas," and "the profits of the parish which the prior and brethren of the hospital of St. Nicholas have been accustomed to receive."<sup>1</sup> It seems, then, as if the prior was a parish priest; in which case the brethren might have been his lay assistants. Nay, Bishop Wyley thought it necessary to obtain the consent of the prior before founding his institution: for he says, in his foundation deed in 1270, "with the consent of the venerable Robert the dean and our chapter of Sarum, and of the religious men the prior and brethren of the hospital of St. Nicholas . . . we have built a humble church in Salisbury."<sup>2</sup> This consent was not required of them as landowners, for they possessed nothing yet in the town: but it clearly was as occupying an important position in one quarter of the town; perhaps as rectors of a contiguous parish.

This, then, was the position of St. Nicholas' when Bishop Bridport thought well to adopt it, to make himself its custos, and to put a prior in to govern it more immediately. There was a custos also of the new Valley College, but he was in the appointment of the dean and chapter, and one of themselves.

IV.—THE NEXT TWO HUNDRED YEARS.

1271—1470.

A veil is upon the Hospital for the next two hundred years, so impenetrable that we cannot explain a great deal that took place later. We have the lists both of wardens of the Hospital and of the Valley College; we have the deeds which tell us of fresh acquisitions of land by the Hospital:<sup>3</sup> but all the interior life is quite hidden from us, and when the veil rises, it rises upon a Hospital strangely diverted from its original purpose.

A list of those who were the heads of the Hospital during this time will be found below.<sup>4</sup> Their official titles varied.

Nicholas Laking, the first head under Bingham's foundation, was called “custos,” or warden. But Bridport, calling himself “warden,” put in a “prior” to rule the hospital: and this arrangement continued under Bishop Wyley, in whose time (1266) we hear of “Brother Adam, the prior” of the Hospital. But in 1281 John Burnes is again “custos”; Bishop Wykehampton seems to have given up his claim to that title. And only once again do we find the head of the Hospital called “prior”: and that is in 1292—1297, in the time of the old Bishop Longespée, a younger son of Earl William of Pembroke and the Countess Ela, the first benefactress of the Hospital, who thus must have again adopted for himself the “wardenship” of St. Nicholas'. After this the bishops again repudiated the title: for we find the immediate head always called “warden,” and appointed by the bishop. The episcopal records of institutions begin with the fourteenth century: so that thenceforward we have an unbroken list of wardens, or masters. But “warden” is the title by which they are consistently known till the beginning of the sixteenth century.

We have also a list, though very fragmentary indeed, of the wardens of the Valley College.<sup>2</sup> John Holtby was the first: the second bore the name of Thomas Bridport, and so was some relative, or at least a fellow-townsman, of Bishop Giles. Once (1337) we find the same man (John Kirkby, Archdeacon of Dorset) warden of both institutions. Before this, in 1325, the chapter had voted that the scholars of the Valley College should go “to Oxford, or to some proper place of study”: none were to remain and inhabit the building but the two stewards, two chaplains, cook, and butler. It looks as if the chapter had become jealous of Bridport's college: and were determined that the office of warden should thenceforth be a sinecure. [If we are to put any credence in the statement], that the Salisbury scholars acquired tenements in School Street, Oxford, “and particularly in two halls that joined together, one called for the most part Salisbury, sometimes Salsary Hall, the other Little St. Edmund Hall, on the site of which now stand Brasenose Hall, and part of their library,” [we must suppose that it took place in the period now under our consideration. But the accuracy of the statement as to there being a “Salisbury Hall” in Oxford has been seriously called in question. See below, p. 45]. Antony Wood, who records this, also tells us that "the [Salisbury] scholars had a privilege among them, that on the testimony of the Chancellor of that church of their standing and profit in letters, they might proceed to degrees in the university of Oxford." But this no doubt would rather apply to the Cathedral scholars, for whom the Chancellor was answerable.

In Leland's time (1540) we read that "part of these scholars remain in the college at Salisbury, and have two chaplains to serve the Church there, being dedicate to St. Nicholas: the residue study at Oxford." Here we have a testimony to the lastingness of the arrangement whereby some of the Valley Scholars were always at Oxford: and also a witness to the fact that the "Church" or "Chapel" at the Valley College was dedicated to St. Nicholas. Further, as to the connexion between the two institutions, Mr. Hickman tells us that "in some old papers 'tis said that the College de Vaux was a part of the Hospital (that is, belonging to the Hospital) of St. Nicholas, and was suppressed in the time of King Henry VIII. [See below, p. 291.] Besides there are (or have been) doors in an old wall over against St. Nicholas', which seems to intimate a communication formerly between those two old religious foundations." If this is true, the doors must have been in the north-west corner of the St. Nicholas' ground: and yet the communication cannot have been a private one, as there must always have been the breadth of the road which still runs between them.<sup>1</sup>

[There is one curious piece of evidence that a change came over the original character of De Vaux House, or at least that it was not exclusively scholastic in the early part of the fourteenth century. At least one lady appears to have been admitted as an inmate, with her husband. See below, pp. 49, 287-8.]

Meantime there can be no question that St. Nicholas' was more wealthy in land than the Valley College: and yet that the latter possessed land independently of the former there is equally no doubt. In addition to the lands at Wilsford, Broad Hinton, Gerardstone, Fisherton, and New Sarum, which were already theirs, the Hospital acquired about 1340 a valuable gift of land in East Harnham from Robert Wande, a descendant, no doubt, of the Henry Wande, who, a hundred years before, had given them a smaller piece of land adjoining the Hospital premises. [See p. 93.]

In 1407 the Chapter came to a resolution that the office of warden of the Valley College should always be filled within three days of the vacancy occurring, by election of the canons actually resident, and therefore on the spot. This resolution indicates that the wardenship, if not a mere sinecure, was little thought of, and that no pains were taken to secure the best man for it. [One of the wardens] whom we hear of in the century was John Symondsbury, Archdeacon of Wilts, treasurer of the Cathedral, and prebendary successively of Yatesbury and Stratton, who died in 1454. [See p. 48.]

In 1414 was passed a statute concerning Hospitals that the ordinaries should enquire of the manner of the foundation, estate, and government of the same, and correct and reform them, "according to the laws of Holy Church, as to them belongeth." In 1414 Robert Hallum was Bishop of Salisbury, and therefore ordinary. We hear of no examination held, or reforms recommended; but in the summer of that year Bishop Hallum went to Constance, where he died in 1417: and in the preparation for the great Church council the affairs of an obscure Hospital may well have been overlooked. William Spaldwick was probably warden in 1414. [See p. 211.]

V.—THE REFORMATION PERIOD, 1478—1593.

When the veil, which has been upon it for the last two centuries, lifts, Bishop Beauchamp is promulgating his statutes concerning the house or Hospital of St. Nicholas Sarum, 1478. This year, also, Roger Newenton resigned the wardenship, and Henry Sutton took it: which may well have been in consequence of the new statutes, or in preparation for them.

I will now give a translation of the text of these statutes:

"1. First, it is ordained and determined that if any of the brothers or sisters be a frequent stirrer of strife, and do not repent after being twice warned by the master, on the third occasion when he deserves punishment he should be expelled by the master.

“2. Also, it is ordained that the master or warden of the said house of St. Nicholas do not permit or allow any of the brothers and sisters to go begging through the villages or parishes; but that he support them or have them supported with the goods which they brought at their first entrance into the said house, as far as they are able to do it, and, when distress is upon them, with clothes and other necessaries.

“3. Also, it is ordained that every day within the said hospital the master sing or say, if he be present, the canonical hours, or if he be lawfully hindered get them said by another.<sup>1</sup>

“4. Also, it is ordained that the brothers and sisters do not behave in their rooms or in hidden places so as to rouse suspicion, or dwell together in one room unless they have been lawfully married before their admission, under a penalty to be inflicted by the master in proportion to their deserts.<sup>2</sup>

“5. Also, it is ordained that the master of the house of St. Nicholas receive no persons to be entertained within the hospital, except such as have added to the possessions of the said house, or given any great gift or present whereby the house can be better supported.

“6. Also, it is ordained that the master of the house of St. Nicholas, and his successors for ever, shall pay yearly to the brothers and sisters there serving God as alms each week seven shillings and sixpence for their commons. And also the said master shall find for the said brothers and sisters of the said house sixteen waggon loads of wood yearly to be taken from the wood of The Howe and one waggon load of coals each year.

“Also, it is ordained that the master of the house of St. Nicholas shall find for the said brothers and sisters a barber and a washer-woman, and all the utensils necessary and convenient for the said brothers and sisters.”

There are two or three obvious remarks to be made upon these statutes—which, by the way, are still in force, and by which the master is bound as well as the inmates. And yet so much are the times changed that I think they would be much astonished were I to propose to cut down their allowance to 7s. 6d. a week, and find a barber and washer-woman and the other toilet necessaries!

1. The brothers and sisters are obviously by this time pensioners, without a thought of their ever having been anything else. But note that they are still described as “the brothers and sisters there serving God”—the very words which had been applied to the nursing brothers and sisters.<sup>1</sup> The question is, how long had they been pensioners? Did Beauchamp make them such? or had they been such for an indefinite number of years previously? I confess to being strongly of opinion that Beauchamp made them pensioners: and took the hint from the one pensioner brother, appointed by the Dean and Chapter, who had always existed since 1261. As to their number, the nearest contemporary evidence is Leland; who sixty years later describes them as "eight poor women and four poor men." If this were so, they still keep to the total number of twelve.<sup>2</sup>

2. But the statutes also contemplate hospitality upon a larger scale, and, desiring to restrain this within limits, enact that only considerable benefactors shall be received. It was then the custom to receive such benefactors to lodge within the Hospital—and such hospitality had been unwarrantably extended. [In the buildings, as rearranged, there is scarcely sufficient room for the Society itself.]

3. The master in 1478 was as a rule resident, and it was the exception when he did not officiate in the canonical hours himself; in fact he was bound by Bingham's charter, and so was to serve the chapel of St. Nicholas next the Hospital with the same ritual as in the Cathedral. He was probably still assisted by a chaplain, who was one of the three priests of St. Nicholas, the other two officiating in St. John's Chapel. [Canon Moberly appears to have supposed that the present chapel was never used as such until the dedication of it in 1501 (see p. 11). I think it pretty certain that it was there that the master performed service from the time of its erection in the 13th century. Not improbably the repairs done in 1498 necessitated the fresh dedication or reconciliation in 1501. If the Hospital Chapel was in use before the Cathedral Church, it is by no means impossible that dedication according to the full rite had been omitted at the first. See the 1st Constitution of Cardinal Otho (1237), and the 3rd of Othobon (1268).—Johnson's Eccl. Laws ii. 151, 215].

In 1494 Warden Sutton resigned; and Bishop Blyth appointed his brother, Geoffrey Blyth, who the same year was made Treasurer of the Cathedral, and in 1503 Bishop of Lichfield. And in 1496 we find transcribed in the bishop's register a copy of the agreement of 1260, whereby the Dean and Chapter gave up the patronage of the wardenship of St. Nicholas to Bishop Bridport. This looks as if the controversy about the patronage had been renewed. The Dean of the time was Edward Cheyne ; and considering the low ebb to which Church matters had been reduced at this period, it is noteworthy to find Dean Cheyne presiding at a convocation of canons called in 1490, to promote measures "for extending the usefulness of the Church of Sarum." The Dean and Chapter perhaps asserted their right to appoint, urging Bingham's Ordination, when Sutton resigned in 1494 ; and the controversy, perhaps, was only set at rest by Bishop Blyth's promulgating again the settlement of two hundred and thirty years before.

But in 1498<sup>1</sup> something happened which led to the demolition of a large part of Hospital—some would maintain almost a half—but to their opinion I find it impossible to subscribe. What it was there is no record to tell, and I fear we shall never know. It may have been that it was thought inexpedient to keep up such a large building, now that the purpose of the Hospital was definitely narrowed from being the receptacle of sick poor with their nurses, to being only a retirement for pensioners. But whatever caused it, there is no doubt that the demolition did actually take place : more than fifty feet of the north wall were taken down, and the cells on the north side of the row of arches swept away ; and so nothing remained of the Hospital except the double chapel and five cells to the south of the wall which contained the row of arches. To provide room for the inmates (as Mr. Hickman tells us) two rooms were built on to the farm-house (which had once been the vetus hospitale) on the east end, with a chamber for the chaplain over them. And other rooms may possibly have been found in the master's house, which was over the cells to the west of what is now the chapel ; also possibly over a building which is figured in Mr. Hickman's map (see Diagram II.) as the "Weavers' Shops," between the farm-house and the row of old arches.<sup>2</sup>

This map also tells us of a considerable amount of building outside Bingham's Hospital, which must have been built previous to the demolition of the end of the fifteenth century. Besides the weavers' shops already spoken of there were considerable buildings on either side of the old porch. This porch was, like all the rest of the Hospital, double: and we can guess what the northern porch was like in size and shape from the southern one, which remains. The northern porch was apparently spared from the demolition of 1498, but alienated from the Hospital, and (probably with additions on the north side) turned into a separate tenement: to the south of the southern porch there was another small tenement, with a garden annexed, which was then the kitchen of the Hospital, and continued so to be for the next hundred years. [See below, pp. 301, 313.]

In 1501 we come to the first event in the St. Nicholas' history of which a contemporary record is extant. On the last fly-leaf at the beginning of the register are inscribed, in Latin, these words:—"The chapel of St. Nicholas Sarum, within the Hospital at the same place, was consecrated on the Thursday of the Paschal Week, i.e., the 15th day of April, 1501, by the venerable father Sir John, Bishop of Mayo, at that time the suffragan of the reverend father Henry, Bishop of Salisbury, and the same day the cemetery was reconciled. Witness, myself William Wylton then warden of the said Hospital, and others." [See. p. 11.]

Let us pause to remark on the significance of this entry.

1. The "Wiltshire Institutions," which have supplied us with the list of masters regularly since 1300, and without a break since 1397, that is for the last one or two hundred years, fail us after the second institution of Henry Sutton in 1498, and record none till that of Geoffrey Bigge in 1593—that is for the next hundred years. Why is this? I can account for it in no other way than by supposing that the controversy as to the patronage of the Hospital, which had been settled by Bishop Blyth, was re-opened on Bishop Deane's appointment, and closed by the patronage being given to the Dean and Chapter, the wardenship no longer being considered an office requiring episcopal institution. Thus, though Warden Wilton was one of the Chapter themselves, and though others may have been prebendaries, for the next hundred years there was no guarantee against laymen holding the office of warden—a thing contravening the whole spirit of Bishop Bingham's foundation charter.

2. Henry Deane was promoted from the see of Bangor to that of Salisbury in 1500, and the next year advanced to that of Canterbury, when he became papal legate. He can hardly have been resident at Salisbury at all: but in 1501 he appointed John Bell, Bishop of Mayo, to act for him as suffragan, and it was he that consecrated St. Nicholas' chapel. It looks as if Bishop Blyth had intended to do it, had he not died; and they got the first episcopal services that they could. But what had happened that this should require consecration? Had it not been consecrated before? And the "cemetary," or "litton"—which he "reconciled," or re-consecrated after defilement—on the same day; what had happened to this? We know from Mr. Hickman's map, that the old "litton," or burying ground, was the piece of ground extending along the north side of the farm-house and Hospital: something, therefore, had happened to it to cause ceremonial defilement, after which it was impossible to bury there until a service of "reconciliation" had been performed in it. What was this?

Nothing that remains gives us any idea of the nature of it: and conjecture is well-nigh worthless.<sup>1</sup>

3. The part demolished of the Hospital was the north row of inmates' rooms, up to the chapel on the east. The arcade of arches was not yet built up into the north wall of the building, but remained open, and was joined by a wall to the east end of the chapel, so as to divide the chapel itself into two. The northern half of the old chapel was then converted into a common hall; the space west of this was occupied by a sister's room, and a wood-house.

Such was the Hospital over which William Wilton was made warden, being probably appointed thereto by the Dean and Chapter, and not instituted, as had been usual, by the Bishop. He it was that was warden when Bishop Bell consecrated the chapel. There is every appearance<sup>2</sup> of both chambers having been consecrated before: so that this must mean, I think, re-consecrated, the one after the desecration of the other—building, no doubt, the wall between them. And the same day he reconsecrated the litton after some defilement, the nature of which we cannot guess.

<sup>1</sup> [It seems almost foolish here to 'rush in' with a conjecture. But it is just possible that on becoming legate, Deane became more zealous for the Legatine Constitution requiring formal dedications. But it is plain that the cemetary or 'litton' had been directly polluted.]

With Wilton begins a new era. It is Wilton that began to record the poor people's names and dates of admission in a record still extant. It is he that put together what we now call the Old Register,<sup>1</sup> and we recognize his handwriting in many of the marginal notes to that volume.

To him succeeded, in 1524, Edward Fox, who before had been steward of the Hospital. Strange to say, there was one of the Chapter of that name, a relation of Bishop Fox of Winchester, who in 1492 had become prebendary of Major Pars Altaris, and in 1533 was to become Archdeacon of Dorset, and Bishop of Hereford in 1535.<sup>2</sup> But this was not the master of St. Nicholas', for he by Mr. Bigge, seventy years later, is expressly called Sir Edward Fox, knight, and given as an example of a lay-master. He was the first layman that ever held the office: and seems to have been appointed by the Dean and Chapter in direct contravention of the direction given by Bingham in his Ordination, perhaps from a prevision of what was going shortly to happen to the Church, and a desire to save the Hospital. There is no doubt also that the Hospital at this time was very poor, and perhaps it may have been thought as well to give it in charge to a man of business, who was already well acquainted with the working of it.

To him succeeded, after 1534, Sir Richard Long, apparently son of Thomas Long, of South Wraxall, and brother of Sir Henry Long, of the same place, who was steward of Monkton Farley Priory until its dissolution in 1541.<sup>3</sup> Sir Richard Long's reign, which lasted till 1543, saw the dissolution of all the monasteries in England, and no doubt the hospitals felt themselves threatened. It was, perhaps, in view of some such blow as was directed against colleges and hospitals in 1545 that St. John's chapel was suppressed either by him or his successor: for here there was undoubtedly a "superstitious use," and "it appeareth," says Mr. Bigge, "by the certificate of 37 Hen. 8 [1545] that the chapel had ceased before that time: for it was certified that there were no priests nor massing there at that time." At this time, probably, fell also the Valley College. This had been flourishing in 1535, with twenty scholars, two chaplains, and Richard Dudley, the precentor, for a master: but John Bigge, prebendary of Yatesbury and custos, died in 1544, and there probably never was another. By the Act of the next year the buildings were confiscated to the King, and so utterly demolished that the exact spot where they stood is a question. [See, however, our view of the old building.]

<sup>1</sup> [I believe that the handwriting belongs to the latter half of the century before Warden Wilton's appointment. But he may have added marginal notes.—Chr. W.]

But St. Nicholas itself had escaped: and that the rejoicing was great (though as yet premature) is likely from the appointment of the Rev. Dr. Crayford by the Dean and Chapter in 1543 to be custos. He was not instituted by the Bishop as to a clerical office, though a cleric himself; perhaps it was thought safer so.

King Henry VIII. died soon after the passing of the Act which condemned hospitals and colleges; but the Act was renewed by his successor in 1547. Under this Act the Hospital was examined in 1539: but "it is certified," says Mr. Bigge, "that in that year there was neither priest nor master, but only twelve poor people relieved and maintained." Dr. Crayford then (if he survived till then) resigned his mastership to save the life of the Hospital.

In 1550 we find the first of the powerful family who mainly protect the Hospital through those troublous times, and who are still worthily represented in the neighbourhood, recorded as master—"Mr. Henry Herbert, gentleman."<sup>1</sup> In 1544 his father, Sir William Herbert (brother-in-law of Queen Katharine Parr, who married Henry VIII. in 1543) had received the grant from the King of the lands of the rich abbey of Wilton. In 1551 he was created Baron Herbert of Cardiff, and, the next day, Earl of Pembroke, so that his second title passed to his eldest son, Henry, the master of St. Nicholas'. Lord Herbert acted apparently as master till 1577, long after he had succeeded his father as Earl of Pembroke, and by his powerful court influence protected the Hospital from harm. One ill turn, however, there was which he did us. He is said to have removed many of the ancient deeds and evidences of the Hospital to Wilton. Certain it is that Mr. Bigge had access to a few of them, which he copied out, in the Evidence House at Wilton: but Mr. Hickman says that “upon new building the house there they were misplaced, and do remain confusedly all together in a chamber among his own evidences unsorted, and cannot be found till they are new placed.”<sup>1</sup> And a letter of Mr. Bigge’s tells us of a rumour of “great abuse made by Henry Herbert custos,” which “I think is untrue, for I do not hear that any tenant wanted reasonable satisfaction for the fault in the leases, and I have seen writings under many seals touching the great want of reparations in the Hospital to the value of three or four hundred pounds, beside the danger of the statutes when he came to be master. And if he had the master’s portion for no government, he had but as many others have had before and since: yet by account it appeareth that the poor had as much or more than in former years. The error only was in this, that he was not a presbyter.”

In 1577 Lord Pembroke resigned the mastership. But it is certain that he retained the deeds and papers at Wilton, and probably, being an influential neighbour, was consulted as to the patronage of the Hospital. The next master was also a layman—one Richard Dolshon, who admitted to St. Nicholas’ in 1587 and 1588.<sup>2</sup> He was succeeded by Robert Parker, M.A., a clerk, who, as of old, was instituted to the master’s office by the Bishop, then Bishop Coldwell, in 1591. And in 1593 Parker was succeeded by Mr. Geoffrey Bigge, whose mastership was distinguished by the vigorous and successful efforts which he undertook to save the Hospital from annihilation.

It was by Bigge’s exertions that the Hospital was saved from being altogether wrecked by more imminent danger than had overhung it in the time of the Reformation.

<sup>2</sup> In Mr. Dolshon [or Dobshon]’s time one Thomas Green was admitted chaplain and brother, 4th February, 1587.

The late Acts of Parliament against superstitious foundations had given birth to a race of informers who made it their business to search out foundations that still entertained such superstitious uses, and report them to Government, hoping for a share of the spoil when they were destroyed. Such men were called concealers, because they exposed concealments, which were hidden by the authorities of the foundations: and were a very useful, nay necessary, class of men, but odious in the highest degree to those whom they exposed. Such were William Tipper and Robert Dawe, of London, gentlemen,<sup>1</sup> who apparently had reported badly of the Hospital of St. Nicholas to Sir Edward Dyer, who seems to have been chief inquisitor for Wilts. Dyer issued a warrant against the Hospital, and petitioned the Queen to grant its lands to Messrs. Tipper and Dawe. This the Queen did by patent dated 2nd May, 1573. Thenceforth Messrs. Tipper and Dawe were the legal proprietors of the whole estate which had belonged to the Hospital. But not the actual; and why not? Presumably the then master, the Earl of Pembroke, continued his rule quietly, because he was too great a man to be disturbed. His father had kept well in favour with each successive ruling power; and had married the sister-in-law of the old King, Katharine Parr's sister. He himself was a Knight of the Garter, and one of the Peers commissioned to try the Queen of Scots; and the husband of Mary Sidney, sister of Sir Philip, whom at the end of her long life Ben Jonson calls "Sidney's sister, Pembroke's mother." We can easily see that while so influential a man held the mastership it was not safe to disturb him. And in 1576 was passed an Act to restrain mercenary informers, who, under colour of espying out lands concealed from the Crown by private persons, sacrilegiously seized upon the lands of parish churches, almshouses, &c. This statute was confirmed, and its provisions enforced by another in 1584, by which informers were bound to appear in person, and to carry through their action, on penalty of standing in the pillory for two hours.

During these eight years then (1576—84), clearly it would not have been safe to attack St. Nicholas: and accordingly we find that it was when this period of safety had begun, in 1577, that Lord Pembroke resigned his mastership in favour of Mr. Dolshon.

But six years later, when Mr. Bigge held the mastership, Messrs. Tipper and Dawe succeeded in obtaining recognition of their right. In February, 1590, on Sir Edward Dyer's petition, Messrs. Tipper and Dawe obtained a grant from the Queen in free and common socage of all the Hospital lands in Wilts: on December 22nd, of the Hospital itself; and on March 30th, 1592, of all the old Hospital lands in Dorset. And no sooner had Tipper and Dawe got legal possession of it than they made over their right to one Nicholas Geffe, of London. But in spite of this Mr. Bigge was master: and nothing was done by Tipper and Dawe to disturb his mastership. But this set Bigge himself upon the ingenious and indefatigable manœuvres which issued twenty years later in the new foundation of the Hospital.

“Our Hospital,” says Mr. Hickman, “was certainly a concealment; for had the master thereof but shewed the foundation (which was only Bishop Robert's Ordination and Bishop Beauchamp's statutes) in the times either of King Henry VIII., Edward VI., or Queen Elizabeth, it had most assuredly fallen to the Crown, with the many other superstitious foundations in those days.”

It is impossible, on considering the evidence, to arrive at any other conclusion than that thus candidly avowed. The restriction of the office of warden to a priest: the giving him charge of St. John's chapel, where also priests said masses: the injunctions to the chaplain of the Hospital itself about serving the sick (by saying masses for quick and dead, by visiting the sick, and by hearing their confessions) make it plain that the Hospital might too easily have been brought within the scope of the statute, and thus destroyed, however lamentable and unjust such destruction would have been. But to Mr. Bigge it seemed an intolerable injustice that such a thing should be possible: and therefore he set to work to prevent it by all the means in his power, and was finally successful.

The Earl of Pembroke died January 19th, 1601, and was succeeded by his eldest son, William. In this year also passed the statute of charitable uses: which empowered the Queen to send into each county commissioners, of whom the Bishop and Chancellor of the diocese are to be two, authorizing them to enquire concerning charitable foundations, to examine witnesses, and to decree upon them. Mr. Hickman says:—"It is supposed that when she sent her commissioners into Wiltshire her eye was chiefly (in favour of the said Tipper and Dawe, to whom she had given it two or three years before) on this Hospital of St. Nicholas, to which she bare no good will." But we can hardly suppose that a measure intended for all the kingdom alike was set on foot because of ill will to one small institution.

The commissioners sent to Wiltshire were thirteen; the Bishop, the Dean, the Chancellor of the diocese, the Archdeacon of Sarum, four knights, and five esquires. They issued searching articles of enquiry; and to them Bigge had to make answer. His answer at large does not survive, but the account that he made, showing his disbursements to the poor, does, and is countersigned by Giles Hutchins, the steward of the Hospital.

Queen Elizabeth died in 1603, on which James of Scotland succeeded, and a new set of counsellors and favourites came to the front. Particularly, Henry Howard, who had suffered much for Mary Queen of Scots, was made Earl of Northampton in August, 1604.

In 1606 Archbishop Bancroft, of Canterbury, commissioned Bishop Cotton, of Salisbury, to visit the Hospital. The result shall be told in Bigge's words in 1609:—"The now Lord Bishop of Sarum, with others, about three years past did likewise visit the said Hospital in the name of the now Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, and diligently examined all things at my many appearances before them, and found no fault, as may appear by the notes of the register and the testimony of the registrar himself."

In the year 1609 the plot thickens. That year Mr. Geffe writes to Bigge as follows:—"Sir, understanding by this bearer Mr. Ma : Hill my good friend, that you and he have had some speeches touching a grant in fee, made by the late Queen, of the Hospital of St. Nicholas, and that Mr. Samford had £50 of you to make composition with me about it, [I] do protest before God that neither he nor any other did ever treat with me about it to any such purpose, only he was made acquainted that there was such a grant, but did never see, or desire to see it. But now at the entreaty of this my good friend I do tender you this: that if upon examination of my title by your learned counsel and mine it shall be thought by them that my estate thereunto is good and perfect in law, you shall for any such part thereof as is in your possession receive such kind usage for my friend's sake as shall be to your liking, and he shall prevail very much with me in any matter he shall require for your good. And so, very lovingly saluting you, I remain, your assured friend, NICHOLAS GEFFE. April 12, 1609."

From this letter we see that a suit had been commenced, and counsel retained on both sides. On receipt of this letter Bigge wrote to Lord Pembroke as follows:—"To my most honourable and most benign lord and master, the Earl of Pembroke: Your lordship's Hospital of St. Nicholas is sought as a concealment by one Mr. Geffe, who as he saith has a grant of the fee of it, Eliz. 33, but professeth good usage to your lordship, to the poor, and to myself, that he may have free liberty to seize upon it. But our counsel thinks his title weak, and therefore advises rather, because the state of it is somewhat doubtful, to crave confirmation of it from the king's majesty, which, because the like in like case hath been lately obtained with great grace and favour, especially by the motion of the Earl of Northampton, for the Hospital of Heytesbury<sup>1</sup>, they think it will be easy for your honour to procure the same for us, if your lordship do like of such a course, whereunto we have no argument to move your good honour, but that piety and pity which do much adorn your true nobility. The profit of it, besides the name, is small, but the prayers to God for your honour are many. It hath stood about four hundred years; my government and cost upon the house and the poor have been such as the strictest visitors have ever approved. I do only now, as duty bindeth, acquaint your honour with the cause, and shall be ready to go forward in it when and howsoever your lordship will appoint; and so rest, of all others your honour's most bounden servant, G. B."

Lord Pembroke must have assented to this petition: for we find that he applied to Bishop Cotton for a long lease of the patronage of the Hospital, which the bishop granted him for forty-one years. Not for nothing, we may be sure; this was an age when everything was bought and sold.

This having been done, Mr. Bigge next visited London, bent on bringing about the cession by Tipper and Dawe of their rights in the Hospital in favour of the new patron. This he effected by compounding the suit now depending for 100 guineas, on which they promised to pass on their right to Lord Pembroke. A note of the transaction remains in Bigge's handwriting, thus:—"Dec. 2, 1609, I have paid fifty-two pound ten shillings to Mr. Richard Francis at his house in Watling Street, London 52 10 0 And fifty-two pounds ten shillings to Thomas Hill at the same time and place 52 10 0

Also during the same visit he was introduced, by some person unknown, to the Privy Seal, Henry Howard, Earl of Northampton, who received him favourably; and to him, perhaps first, he broached his idea of getting a new foundation. At all events he writes after his return to his anonymous friend deprecating an intention to put the Hospital under the Dean and Chapter instead of under a master, excusing himself for having put the Hospital under Lord Pembroke's protection, and complaining that he had spent more than £140 in this business.

And so in 1610 King James I. granted a fresh constitution to the Hospital, which has never been superseded. By this a master, a chaplain, and six poor and infirm of either sex, were constituted a corporation, and authorized to use a common seal.<sup>1</sup> The Earl of Pembroke has the appointment of the master for his life, and after his death his executors for forty years: but after that time the appointment is to revert to the Bishop, or to the Dean and Chapter in case of a vacancy of the sec. The master is to swear to observe the statutes either of Bishop Bingham, the founder, or Bishop Beauchamp, the patron of the Hospital:<sup>2</sup> and to nominate and admit brethren and sisters within one month of the vacancy to which they succeed. One brother, however, is always to be appointed by the Dean and Chapter.

Thus ended the long controversy: and this favourable event was secured by the long-continued and patient exertions of one man, Geoffrey Bigge, the master.

Mr. Bigge also made sundry alterations about the premises. Thus he put an end to the lease of the St. Nicholas' farm, one Thomas Hancock surrendering his lease to him in 1617. The tenement he seems to have pulled down.<sup>1</sup> For this he substituted two sets of rooms on either side of the old west porch of the Hospital, which were old at this time: the northern half being (as was said before) made out of the relics of the old north wing of the Hospital, which had been destroyed in 1498; and the southern half being the old kitchen of the establishment, from which the meat used to be passed through to the refectory by a private door. These two halves of the new house he joined by a passage over the Hospital porch, and called the house "The Old Kitchen," assigning to it a garden down to the river bank.

But where should he make the new Hospital kitchen? He found room for it at the east end, by turning the common hall (which was formerly one of the chapels and which had been "desecrated" and not "reconciled") into a kitchen. It will be remembered that Geoffrey Blyth, or Wilton, had made this common hall out of the eastern half of the north chapel, turning the western half of it into a buttery, inmate's room, and woodhouse. This western half Bigge now crowned with a second storey, in which he made four brothers' rooms. All this, as we find from the old accounts, he did in 1622. But in 1621 he had "ditched and paled the litton." The old Hospital cemetery, which had been "reconciled" in 1501, had been turned into an orchard belonging to the Hospital farm. But on the demolition of the farm-house Mr. Bigge ditched and paled it, and let it in 1662 with the rest of the farm-house lands to one Bate for the yearly rent of £5 18s. It would be interesting to identify the litton exactly. Mr. Hickman estimates its extent at three-quarters of an acre, and the deed by which Hancock surrenders the farm-house says that it lay on the north side of the farm-house. We may, therefore, pronounce with some confidence that it is all that corner of the property which lies between the Harnham Road and the road under the Close wall.

Five years before the deaths of both Mr. Bigge and the Earl of Pembroke (they died in the same year, 1630), the latter executed a deed of gift of the next presentation to the Hospital wardenship to John Nicholas, Esq., of Winterborne Earls. Mr. Bigge died seemingly at the Hospital: if so, he was the last master who has resided there. He left a widow, and two daughters married to Joseph Bate and John Dove. Joseph Bate was probably the lessee of the farm-house lands. John Dove at all events bore the same name with the Presbyterian colonel who made himself well known in Salisbury during the Commonwealth, and who was high sheriff for Wilts in 1655.

VII.—THE LAST TWO HUNDRED AND SIXTY YEARS.

On Mr. Bigge's death Mr. Nicholas presented to the mastership his own son, Matthew. Matthew Nicholas was a man of 34, who was rector of West Dean and prebendary of Axford, and perhaps by this time already canon residentiary, being a great friend of Bishop Davenant's. It may have been with a view to his succession that the presentation was given to Mr. Nicholas, his father.

For the next seventeen years he ruled the Hospital from his house in the Close, leaving a chaplain to inhabit the Hospital. The only repairs, however, that he executed were in 1634 and 1635. In 1634 he made, in the hall within the porch, a staircase leading up to the old refectory, which he shortened by 15ft. to make a new study for the chaplain. The old refectory was thus reduced in dimensions to a square of 21ft., and became the chaplain's drawing-room, which it continued to be till the demolition of the whole house in 1884. In 1635 he made a private kitchen for his chaplain at the east end of the house, strengthening the original wall of the southern transept so as to enable it to bear a kitchen chimney; with an entrance hall and back staircase to the chaplain's room, and also a door into the orchard beyond.

But in 1647 the Commonwealth was set up, and prelacy abolished by law. The Cathedral property was confiscated, the canons' houses sold, and the palace turned into an inn. Dr. Nicholas, more fortunate than the rest, fled to Bristol, where he was also Dean, and lived there undisturbed though in poverty; while first John Strickland and later (on May 27th, 1647) Francis Rivett, Esq., was nominated master of St. Nicholas' by the Parliament. Dr. Nicholas did not dispute the title, but gave into Rivett's hands the necessary papers, accounts, &c. The poor inmates were continued as before. A Rev. Henry Dent was chaplain during at least seven years (1652—59) of the Commonwealth.

But the Presbyterian party, to which Mr. Rivett seems to have belonged, were not long themselves in power. In Salisbury, indeed, their power lasted longer than in the country at large. In the country they were superseded by Independents, who beheaded the King in 1649. But in Salisbury the Presbyterians had a majority in the City Council until 1656. In that year the City Council resolved, by an Independent majority, to petition the Protector that "the circuit of the Close, together with the Hospital of St. Nicholas, might be granted to the mayor and city, in as large and ample a manner as to the Bishops, Deans, and Chapters thereof." This prayer was granted in spite of a counter-petition from the inhabitants of the Close, and in September of that year the mayor and corporation received a grant from the Parliament of the perpetual care, visitation, inspection, patronage, and free disposition of the Hospital; and the mayor and any eight of the aldermen were fully empowered to reverse the decisions of the master, and to appoint a new master, when the place was vacant. On this (in 1656) Mr. Rivett resigned, and the mayor for the time being, William Stone, was appointed.

But three years after—in August, 1659, when things were ripening towards the next year's settlement—the mayor and corporation were required to give up their new charter. They complied, but John Ivey, senior, the mayor of the year, was sent to London with a petition that the corporation might be allowed to keep the Hospital. This was granted, Ivey was continued in the mastership, and his son, John Ivey, junior, continued as steward of the Hospital.

John Ivey had been mayor, and therefore master of St. Nicholas', since the autumn of 1658.

[Mr. John Ivey, or Ivie, the elder deserves some particular mention. He was a goldsmith in Salisbury. He was a man, it appears, of little education or refinement, but of considerable force of character, and some capacity for administration. He was Mayor of Salisbury in 1626—7 and 1647—8.

In 1661 he had a quarto pamphlet printed in London, under the title of

“A Declaration, written by John Ivie the elder, of the City of New Sarum, in the County of Wilts, and one of the Aldermen.”<sup>1</sup>

He had been a Parliamentarian, but was then getting on in years, and was able to denounce “the late wicked war.” He also declared that “as yet it is not God’s time to do any good in this City.”

This was not the querulous complaint of an idle critic: for John Ivie had worked hard as a municipal reformer in his earlier days, and he now knew all about the rate-books, and pointed out that there were 650 people in Salisbury whose names were fraudulently kept off the books. Seeing the pauperism of the place in his younger days, he had (in 1628) established a system of “Storehouses,” where the poor might get flour, cheese, beer and fuel at reasonable prices, or by allowance tickets, or tokens, if they were very poor. This system he carried on till 1633, when it passed into the hands of Mr. Thomas Hill and Mr. Antony Bricket, who were Mayors in 1629—30. But they (he says) did not manage so well, and allowed the Overseers to recommend their wives’ “chewrers” (char-women, I suppose, we should call them) to get too many free tickets. He undertook the work again in 1637, and once more (as an assistant) in 1659.

“A DECLARATION, written by John Ivie the elder, of the City of New Sarum, . . . where he hath done his true and faithfull service for above forty years, for the good of the poor, and the inhabitants thereof; but now so it is, that not only the Mayor, but myself with many other Justices, have been most falsely and unjustly abused by the Overseers and some of the Churchwardens, with others that should have had more wit; as these insuing lines will declare much of it, but not the half.” 4°, Lond., 1661.

Mr. Malden has a copy of this very rare pamphlet, only with deficient pages made up in MS. I have not heard of another copy; but the tract was used by Benson and Hatcher, and is named among Wiltshire books in Britton’s Beauties of Wilts, iii., 430. It has recently been reprinted for the County Field Club in 34 pp. 8°.

He claims to have rid Salisbury Close and City of beggars entirely, while his administration lasted, to the great content of visitors, who gladly contributed to the 14 collecting boxes which he set up in the inn yards, which in other years were infested by a rabble of mendicants, “that are like sometimes to pull Travellers of any rank from their horses every morning.” Of course he made many enemies among the hucksters, the bakers,<sup>1</sup> and the sturdy beggars, but more particularly among the alehouse keepers, as on one occasion he revoked all the beer licences, and suppressed for a time the ale sellers to the number of “neer one hundred.” For “I will not” (said he) “suffer the City to be undone for to maintain the Devil’s school in so many houses.”

He gives incidentally a gruesome account of a master-weaver, his wife and maid and four journeymen, all drinking themselves (literally) to death within the space of three days and a few hours. Mr. Ivie broke in a pane (or panel) of the partition-wall of the house where they had locked themselves in, but was unable to save their lives. On this he makes the observations:—“It pleased God to give me power to suppresse all [the alehouses in the city of Salisbury] saving that one house: then the God of power did suppresse that house in his own judgment.” “There was neer the like judgment upon one Stout a Tailor: the Tailors would have kept their accustomed Feast<sup>2</sup> for those of their Company that were left in the City, but I would not suffer it. But this Stout and five more would keep a feast; but the same week they were all dead of the Plague, save one.”

His account of his dealings in the matter of providing fuel

<sup>1</sup> One of the slanderous and malicious charges brought against Mr. Ivie by those whom he calls his “back friends,” he thus expresses. They “said, I had bought for the Shop-keepers abundance of wheat by Chalke-measure, and sold it to the poor neighbours by Browns cut or Statuet-measure, which is lesse than the measure I bought it, by one bushel and one peek, or more in every quarter. But they did not know the wrong I sustained in it, as afterwards it did appear.”

for the poor deserves quotation, as it illustrates the history of the wrong done in How wood to the "St. Nicholas' Poor," as told in Mr. Hickman's records. See pp. 296, 305, 309, 310. It also relates incidentally to the Earl of Pembroke's Woodward. Mr. Ivie says:—

" Now if you desire to know what is saved to the poor in their firing, I tell you, formerly when I first kept the Storehouse [in 1628-32], I did buy at the Wood, when the sales were, some two or three acres of wood for the poor, and had it made up into very large faggots, to serve them at a penny a piece; but they were worth a farthing a piece more; then the poor would fetch them with their money or tokens that they should have bought their victuals from the Storehouse for themselves and their children, and would carry the faggots to the Alehouse, and there would sell them for three pence profit in twelve faggots, yet the servant that did serve out these faggots to the poor (whose name was James Summers) did very much wrong the poor, in taking away much of the best wood, and did thereby cozen the poor, and was for his pains set in the Pillory.

" I had much to do to stop the current of their selling of the faggots, until I made another sort of tokens that should buy nothing but faggots; and by that means they had so many faggots as they could spend without selling.

" Now for this last setting up of the Storehouse [in 1659], which was at Easter last was two years, I was not able to travel to the Wood, but I spake with one Mr. Robert Good, that was then, and yet is, Woodward to the right honourable the Earl of Pembroke, to intreat him to set out for our poor two hundred lug<sup>1</sup> of Copswood, and to set a price upon it, as it was well worth, which he very justly did, and got it fell'd and made into faggots, and got Carts to bring them to our Storehouse; and they were according to our order something heavier than the Hucksters' faggots were, yet there was a Huckster that was an Overseer of the poor that did very wickedly abuse the work, and said, they were the worst faggots in the City, and so did draw off the poor from the Storehouse to himself and others; whereupon I sent to his house, and at least to ten Hucksters more, and bought two or three faggots a piece at each house, and took good wit-

nesse what was done, and so we went to weights; and did not find any of all the Hucksters' faggots to be the full weight of the poors' faggots, but wanted a pound, or two pound and half in every two faggots, which was not to be spoken of, yet it was enough to prove them base in their report.

“ Now because the poor should not use deceit to fetch the faggots from the Storehouse, and sell them, as formerly they had done, I gave order to the Woodman to have the faggots made but a small matter bigger than the Hucksters', but in these lines following you shall understand that the Woodward for the wood carriage, and other charges had of me ten pound and eight shillings: yet, though they were a little heavier than the Hucksters', there came home from the Wood, as by the Book it doth appear, so many hundred as did pay all the charge at a peny a piece, and there was left for the poor to have amongst them in the winter for nothing six hundred and fifty faggots, which would have cost two pounds fourteen shillings and two pence. By this ten pounds' laying out there is five shillings in the pound gotten to the poor.”

In 1627, “after Candlemass,” Salisbury suffered by a grievous visitation of the Plague. Within four days all the richer people, and many of the middling sort, fled in terror from the stricken city, and Mr. Ivie, then Mayor, found himself left alone to take care for those who remained. There had been elaborate precautionary orders made in July, 1625<sup>1</sup>, but “Then there was none left to assist mee, and comfort the Poor in so great a misery; neither Recorder, Justice, Churchwarden, or Overseer in all the City, nor High-Constable, but only two of the Petty Constables that had no friend to receive them in the Countrey; wherefore I got them to stay with me, and they did prove to me a great comfort both by night and by day; and I did give them ten shillings a piece by the week; and by the power of the Lord Chief Baron Tanfield, and Baron Denham, and by their order to command those Constables to come home, or else to pay that twenty shillings to their Partners that remained in the City, being constrained to do their work; they are yet both living [1661], which were to me, as sent from God both night and day to carry out the infected persons to the Pest-houses, and to help to order the unruly bearers, and a multitude of rude people, which was like both night and day to ruinate the whole City, but God being merciful unto us did put into my heart to rule so great a multitude."

He contrived to provide bread, cheese and beer for large numbers of the poor people ; but it was with much ado that he could get watch kept to prevent the rabble from looting the houses of the richer folk who had left their homes untenanted. As Nehemiah had his trumpeter, so Mr. Ivie had his drummer to give the alarm when required. A regimental drummer to Sir Walter Vaughan's band, practising his drumming at the unearthly hour of 3 a.m. at Fisherton Mills, proved, unconsciously, the effectual character of the mayor's system. But the quickness with which the mayor's good men and true arrived upon this supposed summons had for some time a good effect in intimidating the lawless mob. These however found an abetter in Mr. Justice Bee, who headed a band in opposition to the mayor's bearers, and literally threw both cold water (and scalding) upon them, when they were getting pest-houses ready in Bugmore lane. But John Ivie was equal to the occasion. Having made proclamation, after the manner of reading the riot act,

"I began first with Mr. Bee. Sir, will you be gone ? I require you to your house ; Me Sir ; Yea Sir. You maintain a most horrid rout and riot upon me : wherefore I say once more, be gone, or else, sure as I live, I will see you by the heels. Then in great choler away he went, and all the rest vanisht away. Then came one Mistress Good, that dwelt in Mr. Bee's Friars,<sup>1</sup> and she began to treat and scold : I commanded her to her house ; she would not ; whereupon I delivered her to the Constable, to carry her to the Cage, who was going with her ; then came a great many women, who hanged about her ; crying and intreating for her : I released her : then she and all her troop were gone, there by was an Alehouse, where was one Thomas Ravener standing, more troublesome than any man, with many maids and boyes in his company, mocking and jeering. I heard him say, Mr. Mayor is in a chafe, I care not if I give him two pots ; so I kept on my Walk, as I did before ; and every turn I got some ground neerer to my promised two pots : and when I was come within a start, I had my man Ravener by the Collar, and ask't him, where I should drink the two pots he promised me. I called the Constable and other help, and told him I did not like the Ale at the end of the City, we would go and drink at the middle thereof: So I brought him to the Gaol, and kept him there nine or ten weeks, until I had good bail to appear at the next Sessions, where he was well whipt.

“ This night beeing past, I had peace a long time, untill the bearers were in Rebellion; they came to the Counsell-house, and would speak with mee, one Mr. Windover came and told me, there were four Gentlemen at the stairs foot would speak with me. I desired him to intreat them to come up. He told me they would not. I went down, and there I found my four bearers, each of them with a good hedge stake in his hand; I said, what make you here? They replied with oaths, they would have better allowance, they would not live with four shillings a week a peece, I stept down by them and said, you shall; and lookt about for stones in the street, and put them into the skirt of my Gown, until it was full, and called to men and boyes to fling stones at them; as I did, they did the like, the bearers gathered stones and threw them again at me, but it was Gods will that I should hit one of them on the head: then the stones came so fast upon them that they began to run, I withall my company followed them, until I had housed them; I caused one Nicholas Perry to go to my house with speed, and fetch me a Musket, that had a Fire-lock, that was then charged with a brace of Bullets, and when he came, the bearers being then in their Cabbin, I told them, you dally with me, but I am in earnest with you; will you let go the Sheep, that you have taken from Robert Tipper, the butcher, that had bought them at Amsbury Fair, and gave fifteen shillings: they answered, we will not: then betake yourselves to your Prayers, you shall all Dye.

“ My man shot at the Cabbin, and tore the bords, but mist, for so it was ordered; I called to the man to Charge again, which was done, then they saw no hope of life, they fell down and begged favour and let go the Sheep, and promised they would be civil, if I would give each of them a shirt and give them a Bible they would deserve it, and have no more than their ordinary allowance, so I promised I would presently send them a Bible, and the next mony I receive I would buy shirts for them, which was accordingly done; three daies after, one desired me to walk to the Church-yard, where I should see good sport with the Searching woman and the Bearers ; I came to a place where I could see and hear them, and when I came I found the four Bearers, each of them having on their shoulders a Thurndel-pot of Ale,<sup>1</sup> and the woman had on her head a Thurndel-pot of Ale. These five were dancing amongst the graves, singing Hie for more Shoulder-work, in a fearful manner ; and when they saw me, they ran away. Shortly after, one of them died, which put me to much care for another ; for then the Plague did much increase, and in the Summer died nine Bearers."

Hearing that some Welch soldiers had been making a raid upon a shop in Katharine-street, he mustered thirty halberds and confronted some of the soldiers at the Lamb door. He himself dragged away the ringleader to the stocks—"a tall black-hair'd man, his fore-top of hair did reach over his head, and a large lock on his shoulder knit up with a bowe knot." He with some difficulty got this gallant to put one leg into the stocks, and afterwards had him tied to the whipping post, where, because he "sprung out his heels and paid the Beadle, before he had paid him," he had his hair cut off and the Beadle further "caught hold of his pole and dockt him, to show that he was a strayer," and sent him and two of his comrades on with a written pass to their commanding officer at Downton, where they were quartered on their route for "the Isle of Ree," where the Duke of Buckingham narrowly escaped being assassinated in August, 1627.<sup>2</sup>

As a man of action Mr. Ivie must have been invaluable in Salisbury. He was a decided Parliamentarian, and had been an opponent of Serjeant Robert Hyde when he was returned for Salisbury in 1640. In March 1646—7 Ivie with Fra. Dove were instrumental in procuring for the commonalty of Sarum a grant of the sequestrated property of the Bishop. It was in the following May that Fra. Rivett procured the Mastership of St. Nicholas.<sup>3</sup>

nouncement of a Puritan at such a crisis as the Restoration of the Church and King. But, remembering his antecedents, we should have had a higher respect for Mr. Ivie if he had abstained from laudation of Sir R. Hyde and the late King in his pamphlet of 1661. Such expressions, however, did not avail to shelter him or his son John Ivie the younger (who had held the Mastership and Receivership of St. Nicholas' Hospital, having been appointed in 1653 or perhaps 1658<sup>1</sup> and 1659, respectively) from removal from the Corporation, with other Parliamentarians, when the Royal Commissioners visited Wilts in July, 1662.]

On becoming Master, Ivey had gone to law with Dr. Nicholas, the late warden, for monies received by him in fines on leases, &c., and alleged to be due to the Hospital. To this Dr. Nicholas answered by the plea that twelve years since he had delivered all the accounts into Rivett's hands, and had since only received rents which were lawfully due to himself.

However, the tide was turning : at the end of May, 1660, the King was brought back, and within the month (21st June) an order was issued for Dr. Nicholas' restoration to his mastership. It was signed by the same clerk of the Parliament who thirteen years before had signed the order for Rivett's intrusion.

Dr. Matthew Nicholas also had a fresh grant of the deanery of St. Paul's, London, of which he had been made Dean by Charles I., but had never come into possession. He died in 1662, and was succeeded by his son, John Nicholas, a young man of 23, who was appointed by Bishop Henchman. He had been at Winchester and at New College, Oxford : and this preferment was followed by his being appointed prebendary of Lyme and Halstock by Bishop Hyde, who also made him his chaplain, in 1667 ; fellow of Winchester, 1667 ; Warden of New College, 1675, which he resigned to become Warden of Winchester College, 1679 : and finally prebendary of Winchester, 1684. He is well known to Winchester boys as the builder of the hall which till this generation has been known as "School." [It is now used for concerts and other gatherings.]

He also executed great repairs at St. Nicholas' ; where, by the way, he does not seem to have resided himself. In 1662 he built a "chaplain's chamber," or bedroom over the study, approached by a continuation of the staircase to the study. In 1668 he repaired the great porch. In 1673 he boarded the floors of the inmates' rooms. From 1675 to 1679 he was at work on the chapel, which he wainscoted, carving coats of arms on the wainscot, and setting up a pulpit. In 1695 he walled with brick the colonnade of arches, which till then had been open, thus making a covered passage inside, and warming the inmates' rooms.

While he was master there were three episcopal visitations, one by Bishop Henchman in 1662, at the beginning of his mastership: two more by Seth Ward in 1670 and 1677. We have the questions of the first and third of these, and the answers made to them by the master.<sup>1</sup> From these it appears that in 1662 one of the brothers was expelled as a disorderly person. In 1677 the master stated that he had one MS. volume of records and evidences—no doubt the actual volume now called the Old Register: and that he had in a chest in the master's lodgings the "charter" or "original foundation" of the Hospital with other indentures and papers (since lost).<sup>2</sup>

Dr. John Nicholas died at Winchester in 1711, and was succeeded by Thomas Burnet, afterwards rector of West Keynton, near Chippenham, who was collated by Bishop Burnet, whose youngest son he was.<sup>3</sup> He resigned in favour of his son, who was collated by Bishop Sherlock in 1735.

After two Burnets follow two Humes, Nathaniel the brother and John the son of Bishop Hume, the uncle resigning in 1774 in favour of the nephew. The nephew was also prebendary of Combe and Harnham. He exchanged both his mastership and prebend for the vicarage of Bishop's Lavington; and the vicar of Lavington—the

<sup>2</sup> In 1703 Christopher London, the chaplain and steward, died, and was succeeded by Edmund Hickman in both offices. Mr. Hickman compiled the MS., which is my second source of information for this paper. He died in 1728; "a very honest, diligent man, living much beloved, and dying lamented." [For some account of Mr. Hickman's two Books of Historical Collections relating to St. Nicholas' Hospital, see below, pp. 279—82, 296—307.]

<sup>3</sup> He cannot have been of an age for orders when collated. His mother was married in 1687, and there were at least four children older than himself. Life of Burnet, pp. 24, 31. Yet in 1712 he was collated to the prebend of Lyme and Halstock, which had been vacated by his predecessor at St. Nicholas'.

Rev. Edward Emily—became, by collation of Bishop Shute Barrington, prebendary of Combe and Harnham and master of St. Nicholas'.

Emily was a great friend of Bishop Barrington's; and when he died in 1792 he left an estate at Woking, valued at £6000, to the bishop, who handed it over to trustees for the further endowment of St. Nicholas' Hospital. [See p. 312.]

After this Dr. William Coxe, afterwards archdeacon of Wilts, held the Hospital for a few weeks in 1792: and then Bishop Douglas collated his son, William, who had held the archdeaconry of Wilts before Dr. Coxe. Then in 1819 Bishop Fisher collated the Rev. Arthur E. Howman, who died in 1822: and two years after, two successive intervening masters (Dean Talbot, of Salisbury, and the Rev. T. Rennell) having died each in the year after he was collated, the same bishop collated to the mastership the Rev. G. E. Howman (afterwards Little), rector of Barnsley, co. Gloucester, son of the former master of the same name.

He was master for fifty-six years: and during his mastership the Hospital was entirely re-built, with the exception of the chapel<sup>1</sup> and master's house. Large fines on the several properties were continually falling in; many men would have simply put them into their own pocket, whereas he generously used them on behalf of the Hospital. [In 1863 and 1869 the living rooms and fuel houses were altered at a cost of about £2100.] These gifts, together with £1600 which he expended upon a new Church at Manningford Bohun, a hamlet of Wilsford, amounted altogether to the large sum of £5018 15s. 1d.: and he himself certified that during the twenty years between 1851 and 1870 the amount which he derived from the Hospital for his own use was only £196 11s. 7d.

[On Mr. Howman's death in 1878, the Rev. George Herbert Moberly succeeded. He was the eldest son of Dr. George Moberly, Bishop of Salisbury, formerly Master of Winchester.] In 1884 [Canon Moberly] pulled down and re-built the master's house, carefully preserving, however, the old arcade of arches, and as far as possible the old

<sup>1</sup> [The sum of £1158 13s. 11d. was, however, spent upon the Chapel in 1855. It is to be regretted that the fine old oaken roof was not repaired, instead of being replaced by pine. £167 11s. 7d. was spent in 1867—70 on the Master's House.]

character of the building. [This result was in a great measure brought about through] the interest shown in the old building by the Rev. Lewis Gidley, chaplain from 1868 to 1888, whose acquaintance with the Hospital was [turned to good account].

[As regards their dress, the Sisters' cloak was introduced about 1840. Previous to 1854 the Brethren wore a long coat with a red cross. Then Mr. Howman introduced a shorter coat with peculiar sleeves, gathered in at the waist, which was an unpopular innovation. Mr. Moberly ordered a less noticeable garb (marked only by the cross upon the sleeve).]

[In 1895 the Rev. Christopher Wordsworth (like Canon Moberly and the late excellent chaplain, Mr. Morres, and his successor, a Wykehamist), formerly Scholar of Trinity and Fellow of Peterhouse, Cambridge, was collated Custos or Master, by his elder brother, the present Bishop of Salisbury. In his mastership the colonnade or cloister has been added to make the dry passage for the Brethren and Sisters to chapel and kitchen; and the old custom of St. Nicholas' dinner has been restored.]

There is still something to be done at the Hospital in the way of further development of the charity. These things must wait for the necessary funds, and perhaps will be carried out by a future generation. Meantime [we have thus] put on record the history of the Hospital in its three stages:—as the unknown founder designed it; as Bingham made it a Hospital for the sick with brethren and nurses; and as Beauchamp restricted it to twelve pensioners; who still enjoy its bounty.

<sup>2</sup> Three or four words here have been cancelled and almost hopelessly disguised. The last word (I feel certain) is “twyes”. Two “Psalters of our Lady” would consist of 100 Aves or Salutations of the Blessed Virgin, with 10 Pater nosters interspersed. The Poor Knights at Windsor were required to recite three such rosaries (150 Aves with 15 Paters) daily: so two would be a fair proportion for the illiterate among our Brethren and Sisters.

<sup>1</sup> "Here the party to be admitted must salute every one of the Brothers and Sisters". (Hickman.) At the present day the lower stalls are cleared, so that this newly admitted inmate may pass in front of the Brethren first, and then of the Sisters, and be admitted by each to the right hand of fellowship, before installation to the vacant seat, below which he (or she) has sat for the earlier part of the service.

<sup>2</sup> In the 18th century, or earlier, someone who was ignorant of the meaning of these services, and perhaps (as Mr. Hickman said was the case with himself) not well able to read the 15th century writing, misunderstood the purport of this second form of admission, and supposed that it ought to be incorporated with ordinary admission of a poor Brother or Sister. It is intended for admitting a benefactor or other friend of the Hospital into spiritual confraternity and participation in the Devotions and Intercessions of the community, without sharing the emoluments of the Hospital.

It was the custom in several English Cathedral Chapters (e.g. at Lincoln in the 12th, and at Salisbury in the 13th century and later) to admit into fraternity lay "Brethren (and Sisters) of the Chapter" who should be "partners in their prayers, suffrages, and other good works, and that they might so be guided and live, that they might come to everlasting bliss." Thus John of Gaunt was admitted a Brother both at Lincoln and at Salisbury; at the former the Black

The versicles are the same as those in the aforesaid office, only in our register we have the insertion "O Lord send him help. &c. And evermore defend him," from the Latin "Mitte ei, Domine, anxiuum de sancto. Et de Sion tuere eum" found in the blessing of sword and buckler, and in the Marriage and (Latin) Churching Services.

However, complaints were sometimes brought about the behaviour of the married people.

"Newton's wyf and Penny, admonished for brawling, Jun. vltimo, 1596."

"Newton and his wife, for brawling at board, and throwing bones before all the company, admonished the xjth of January, 1604." Finally on December 24th, 1626, the Earl of Pembroke (who at that time appears to have acted as Patron), sent a warrant to Geoffrey Bigge, the Master, requiring him "to admit no more married folk for the future; which have proved both burthensome and troublesome to the House."

<sup>3</sup> extra bosc' de la howe: Howe Farm and Howe Wood are Hospital property in the parish of West Dean. The farm contained 76 acres, and the coppices and wood grounds extended over 118 acres, according to the return of 1834. A payment of 25s. as "charcoal money" and a dividend of £6. 8s. 8d. As there is also a weekly payment to the Brethren and Sisters they employ their own lotrix or laundress.

ON A DEDICATION OF THE CHAPEL.

[THE following entry in St. Nicholas Hospital Register is noticeable as giving April 15th as the Festum Dedicationis Capellae Sancti Nicholai, (St. Nicholas' Day, December 6th, being, of course, the Festum Sancti loci, his 'Translation,' on May 9th, being also a Festum Synodale, but not in Sarum Use].

It is difficult to surmise why a chapel of St. Nicholas was consecrated in the Hospital at so late a date as the first year of the sixteenth century. The death of Cardinal J. Morton had left the primacy vacant, and Henry Dean, or Denny (otherwise Shere, or Syer) who had been Chancellor of Ireland in 1499, and Bishop of Bangor, but was at this time Bishop of Sarum, was translated to Canterbury shortly after this. The date of his election was in fact ten or eleven days after the date of this consecration.

As the Constitutions of Otho in 1236 or 1237 were published in the episcopate of Robert Bingham, it seems hardly likely that (even supposing they had not been consecrated at the first) the altars in the Hospital should be allowed to remain undedicated at that period, so near as they were to the Palace in the diocese which in those days was reckoned the shining light of England,<sup>1</sup> whatever might take place in the outlying districts in Wales.<sup>2</sup>

We may suppose either that some considerable repairs had and maintaining the goods, utensils, &c. in the kitchen" was estimated at about 14s. The Poor of St. Nicholas had (and have to this day) a payment of 6s. in lieu of rabbits from the tenant of Thornecombe, which used to be supplied in kind, from the warren, against St. Nicholas Feast, and now appears as "Rabbit Money." They had also an allowance "for wine and sugar," which I suppose is what appears as "Feast Money. £1. 6s."

Hickman says: "I find that in 1608 there was a long table and form in the Hall, and in the Poor's Kitchen, a jack of iron with a cord, and a Table-board with a frame; a coop in the Washhouse; in the Dining-room a long joined Table-board, with a frame." He conjectures that it was for these that Mr. Bigge, being in London, in 1595, desired Mr. Giles Hutchence, his steward, to pay a certain sum of money to Mrs. Dodshon, the widow of one of his predecessors.

gone on about the year 1500, sufficient to require a fresh 'consecration,' or else that some crime or accident, or act of sacrilege, had befallen the place or had been committed, sufficient to pollute the sanctuary. The word 'reconciliation,' used in speaking of the burial ground, or 'lyttyn,' as it is locally called implies (I think) that this at least had been previously hallowed, and, if the entire entry in the cartulary were to be construed very strictly, we should conclude that a new Chapel of St. Nicholas had been added to the buildings. But, judging from the antiquity of the two piscinas, still in situ, this is quite impossible, so far as the existing buildings are concerned. It seems also improbable that any such early sixteenth century chapel was ever standing here.

It is true (as Maskell pointed out in Monumenta Ritualia, i. p. ccxli., ed. 1882) that St. Anselm once expressed an opinion that if an altar were destroyed or removed, the entire church, as well as the altar, would need fresh consecration ('tota ecclesia cum altari iterum consecranda est'). But Pupilla Oculi of John de Burgh, Chancellor of the University of Cambridge in 1385, was the received authority in this country in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries: and this lays down three cases where re-consecration ('debet iterum consecrari' is the expression used) for a church, which has been consecrated previously, is required:—

- (1) When there is no tablet, document, or eyewitness to vouch with certainty for its having been ever dedicated.
- (2) When a considerable part of the walls has been burnt.
(The rule in this case seems to me to be obscure.)
- (3) If the church has fallen down, and has been entirely re-built. But, if it is done piecemeal, a sort of continuity of sanctity is recognisable. If, however, a church is merely enlarged, the part formerly consecrated carries along with it the unconsecrated addition and transmits to it a hallowed character—“trahit ad se non sacrum.” And in this case it is enough that it be sprinkled (by a priest) with conjured or exorcised water. (Pupilla Oculi pars ix. cap. 1 fo. 113 F. ed. 1510.)

UNIERSIS sancte matris Ecclesie Dei filijs ad quos presentis scripti noticia pervenerit, ROBERTUS, miseratione divina Sarum ecclesie minister humilis, Salutem in domino Ihesu Christo, cum amplexu deuotionis sincere.

<sup>3</sup> Robert Sarum Episcopi . . . Fundatoris : Bishop Robert Bingham (1229–46) is thus described as founder of S. Nicholas' Hospital in the Chantry Certificate, 56 and 58 in the Augmentation Office, dated 14 Feb. 1545–6, and 4 Feb. 1547–8 respectively, as well as in No. 59 which bears no date. Again, in the Letters Patent of 3 April 1610, he is styled “reputatus fundator dicti hospitalis.” On the other hand the Charter of the Countess Ela, 19 Aug. 1227 speaks of an Hospital of “St. Nicholas in the City of New Sarum” as already existing, and being entirely “in ordinacione Richardi episcopi et successorum suorum” in the days of Bp. Poor. And on 3rd Sept. 1227 Richard le Poer made an Ordinance assigning tithes and obuencias altaris to the (then) insufficiently endowed “Domus hospitalis Sarum.” Bp. Bingham therefore must be considered to have been Founder of St. Nicholas' Hospital only in the sense in which Dr. Cains was founder of Gonville and Caius College, which had existed before he increased its endowments. Maeray reads ‘apud hospitalem’.

“ Curam pontis: The repair of Harnham Bridge was a charge upon the estates of St. Nicholas Hospital only so long as the property of St. John the Baptist’s Chapel on the Bridge remained undiminished.
 When the chantry there was dissolved and the emoluments of its two chaplains swept away, the duty connected with the bridge passed into other hands. Consequently, when the patent of King James I. was granted to the Hospital of St. Nicholas in 1610, while it secured to the Hospital the poor remnants of the property of St. John’s Chapel, which had been valued at 6s. 8d., it did not continue or revive the charge of bridge repairs. The indemnity of the Hospital from all such duties has been repeatedly sustained in suits at law, in 1634, 1636, 1652, &c., and it was pointed out in their defence that they had been deprived of all the oblations, offerings, and obventions in the chapel of St. John, the lands of the College de Valle Scholarium, Burchstock Rectory, the Bishop’s Mills (valued in old time at 10 mares), more than half their revenues from Stratford, and rent from the antient mansion of Adam de Esseby.

Decano et Capitulo contulimus patronatum: The Dean and Chapter retained the patronage of the Mastership of St. Nicholas only from the next vacaney after 1245 until the year 1260, when by the finalis concordia they gave up their right of presenting the Master of the Hospital in exchange for the right to nominate one Brother as inmate, at all times in perpetuity, a right which they have invariably exercised until the present day. They are believed to have elected one Master at least, the Subdean, Nicholas Laking, in (?) 1254, and possibly William of York, then Bishop of Sarum, may have been named by them as Master after the death of Bp. Robert Bingham.

ANNO 1244°, pridie calendas Junij, ROBERTVS episcopus <sup>31 May, 1244.</sup> Sarum tradidit Decano et Capitulo Sarum perpetuum custodiam et seisinam noui pontis, capelle, et hospitalis Sancti Nicholai et omnium reddituum, bonorum, et rerum eisdem pertinencium, et cetera.

[This state of things did not continue for much more than fifteen years, for the Dean and Chapter resigned to the Bishop, Giles de Bridport, at the close of the third year of his episcopate, their rights in the hospital, on consideration of keeping in their own patronage one place among the Brethren of St. Nicholas. This right is still exercised, the present nominee of the Dean and Chapter being Mr. Francis Adney, who was admitted by the then Master upon their presentation or nomination, 23rd March, 1880.]

THE COLLEGES OF ST. NICHOLAS DE VAUX AND ST. EDMUND'S, SARUM.

The subjection to the Court of Rome under which Henry III. had been placed by youth and inexperience had been strengthened by that pliability and want of decision which marked his character.

In all his contests with his powerful and turbulent nobles he had found a firm supporter in the Pope; but in return for this service such heavy and continual exactions had been levied on the English Church, that the very name of a papal agent awakened feelings of dislike and suspicion.

The effect of this impression was manifested against Otho, the papal legate, in a visit which he made to Oxford in 1238. He was at first honourably received by the members of the University, and lodged in the Abbey of Osney; but, a dispute arising between some of the poorer students and his servants, a violent tumult ensued. The Legate was terrified, and at first took refuge in the church, but escaped during the night, and hastened to lay his complaint before the King, who was then at Abingdon.<sup>1</sup> By the royal command some of the rioters were imprisoned, and the Legate himself laid the city of Oxford under an interdict, and excommunicated the actors and abettors of the outrage. In a council of the Bishops, which he soon after convened at London, the occurrence was taken into consideration, and he was at length persuaded to pardon the offenders. He, however, required that they should repair to his presence without capes or mantles, barefooted, and humbly solicit his mercy. Before confidence and tranquillity could be perfectly restored, a new feud arose between the students and the Oxford citizens; and many, leaving that University, repaired to Cambridge, as had been the case before, at the time of the suspenditum clericorum, in 1209. Others retreated to Northampton, where there was a university settlement from 1238 to 1264, and others again repaired to Salisbury.

The advantages to be drawn from this incident did not escape the vigilance of Giles de Bridport, at that time Bishop of Salisbury. Anxious to exalt the reputation of his Church, and to promote the

“A party of scholars had come to the Monastery to salute the Legate, but were rudely repelled by his servants. At the same time a poor Irish chaplain was begging at the kitchen door, when a cauldron of hot water was thrown in his face by the Legate's brother, who filled the office of 'Master of the Cooks' to his Eminence. The enraged scholars fell upon the Master-cook and killed him. The Legate had to take refuge in the town, and at night fled for his life.”

ST. NICHOLAS DE VAUX COLLEGE : FOUNDED IN 1261.

From an Etching by R. Benson, 1826.

welfare of the new City, he prepared to found an establishment for public instruction.

The name, and the plan, of the institution, were derived, perhaps, from those of the Vallis scholares, or Scholars of the Vale, a community formed by the scholars or professors of Divinity in the University of Paris, who in 1234 had assembled pupils and fixed their residence in a valley of Champagne.<sup>2</sup> We find that the course of instruction at Salisbury was not intended to be limited to the theology of the times, but embraced those branches of learning which were then distinguished under the title of the liberal arts. The patronage of the institution was to be ultimately vested in the Dean and Chapter, and it evidently entered into the design of the prelate that the offices of professors or teachers should be filled by members of the Cathedral. It is mentioned by Ant. Wood, in his City of Oxford i. p. 86 (Oxford Hist. Soc.), that 'the Chancellor of the Church of Sarum did antiently read a Divinity Lecture to these Scholers thrice a weeke, and had disputations in a schoole joyning the old library, where the picture of John Beverly, the first Master of Arts of Oxon (†May 7th, 721 or 722)<sup>2</sup> was lately standing.' 'About the year 1260 the requisite buildings were completed for the reception of students.' (Benson and Hatcher, p. 50).

The foundation of such a College, as Mr. Rashdall observes, 'does not absolutely prove the existence of a Studium Generale, yet it tends to corroborate it.' p. 766. The colony of 1238 'may have been reinforced by the troubles of 1264 or by one of the many disturbances between North and South, or Town and Gown, which marked the years 1264-78 at Oxford. It was immediately assumed that the local scholastic authority had the same jurisdiction over the new-comers that they had exercised over the mere Grammar-boys before their advent. This was exactly what would have happened at Oxford, had it possessed (in early days) a Cathedral or important Collegiate Church. The number of the Masters of the scholars at Salisbury, the circumstance that they belong to more Faculties than one, and the fact that the causes and contracts spoken of in one of the documents given below are evidently not the dispute of mere schoolboys, make it probable that the Schools here were of a character which we have no reason for believing to have permanently existed at such places after the growth of the Universities. But in 1278 Salisbury was still in fact a University town.' (ibid iii. pp. 396-7, abbreviated).

The Charter of the De Vaux Scholars, to which the Warden and Brethren of St. Nicholas Hospital were parties, and to which their patron saint lent his name, is as follows:—

<sup>2</sup> Mosheim, Cent. xiii. p. ii. c. 2. Mr. Rashdall dates the 'Maison de l'Ordre du Val des Escoliers' (Austin Canons) cir. 1228, (Universities i. p. 514), and says that by 1254 the Order 'De Valle Scholarium' had a regular college and theological cathedra at Paris (i. p. 371, n). Some account of les Chanoines Reguliers du Val des Escoliers is given in Histoire du Clergé, i. pp. 338-345, 12<sup>o</sup> Amst. 1716.

<sup>2</sup> This of course is based on the assumption that the University of Oxford was founded before King Alfred.

To return to the College of St. Nicholas De Vaux. Benson and Hatcher tell us that it "appears to have occasioned a considerable resort of students to Salisbury, not only for the advantage of instruction in the house of St. Nicholas, but also from the members of the Cathedral establishment, and qualified individuals who were settled in the City.

"The Schollers had, as I have heard, a priviledge amongst themselves, that, upon the testimony of the Cancellor of that Church, of their standing and profit in good letters there, they might proeceede [in degrees in the University] at Oxon." (Wood's City of Oxford, i., p. 86.) You may perceive that the said scholars retired constantly to Oxford, wherc, in School Street, they for the most part lodged, and particularly in two Halls, that joined together, one called for the most part Salisbury, and sometimes Salysurry or Salesury, or Salutis Desiderij, Hall, the other Little St. Edmund's Hall, on the sites of which stand now Brasenose Chapel, and part of their Library." (Wood's Oxford City, i., pp. 85, 599, 639.) This statement of Wood that scholars from Salisbury resided constantly in "Salisbury Hall" at Oxford is questioned by the later writers on the Topography of Oxford. Thus Mr. H. Hurst, in his book on this subject (Oxford Hist. Soc., vol. 39, A.D. 1899), p. 214, is convinced that the Hall in question in Schools Street, Oxford, was originally called "Salle de Syrie," which was corrupted from 'Salesury' into 'Salisbury' by the sixteenth century antiquaries. The names of Heads or Principals of Salesury Hall from 1436 to 1511, eleven or twelve in number, are printed from Wood's MS. D. 7 (1) in Mr. A. Clark's Wood's City of Oxford, vol. i., p. 599 (Oxf. Hist. Soc., vol. xv.). I do not recognise names particularly belonging to Wiltshire. One at least of them, Roland Messinger, who was an agent of Wolsey's, belonged to the diocese of Carlisle. (Wood's Fasti Oxon., i., p. 23). "On the Sunday (rather 'Saturday', die Sabbati) following the 12th of November, 1349, it was agreed that Roger de Kyngton, Archdeacon of Sarum, Master of Theology, should commence a series of lectures at the Schools in the Close, on the succeeding reading day, 'proximo die legibili.' Afterwards the Archdeacon appointed in his place friar John Neweton ('Niweton' MS.), probably a member of one of the religious houses in the City. (Corfe Register, pp 38—40.)

This was a compromise (as Mr. Malden tells me). John Niweton de ordine fratrum praedicatorum had been appointed on the 6th of November at the request of the Countess of Lancaster. On the 7th, objection was laid against him on the ground that he was neither Doctor nor Bachelor in Theology, and that his appointment therefore was contrary to the Statutes. On Thursday, Nov. 12th, the objection was formally brought forward, and the decision postponed until Saturday, the 14th, when Roger de Kyngton was appointed, with power to appoint John Niweton as his deputy, 'tam pro honore et statu ecclesie, quam propter reverenciam amicorum dicti fratris'—the Countess being, most probably, the friend of principal consideration.

The superintendence of the Scholars had soon become a subject of dispute between the Chancellor (to whose care, by the charter of Bp. Osmund, the direction and management of the Schools attached to the Cathedral were committed) and the Subdean, to whose spiritual jurisdiction the City peculiarly belonged.

The matter was submitted to the Chapter and on Wednesday 8 Id. March an act (concerning the Chancellor's jurisdiction) was passed"—(Benson and Hatcher, p. 51)—as follows:—

Mr. Maeray has printed from the Liber Evidentiarum of the Chapter, No. 9, a record of a visitation of Domus Vallis Scholarium held by the Dean and Chapter through their commissioners, Walter de Herevy and James de Buxyngham, 18th Ang., 1296, though not without some opposition on the part of the scholars, when the wardenship was vacant through the death of Thomas de Brudeport, who had been prebendary of Ramsbury for at least twelve years. They first, through the agency of Chancellor Ralph York and Canon Henry de Esse, appointed Henry le Raynyr clerk, a scholar, in place of Master Roger de Barton scholar, deceased, and, through the commissary, required the scholars to elect a new Warden. They accordingly chose Roger Fuke, one of their number, and the nominees were admitted by the Chancellor and his colleague.

With the lesser monasteries in the time of King Henry VIII. "the house or college of the scholars of Valle, the establishment of which consisted of a Warden, four Fellows, and two Chaplains, was swept away. The site, building, and property were granted in 1536 to Sir Michael Lister. It is probable, also, that the Chapel of St. John on Harnham Bridge, with the property assigned for the maintenance of the two Priests who officiated there, was at this time seized for the use of the Crown." (Benson and Hatcher, citing Tanner's Notitia Monastica, and the papers of Geoff. Bygge, Master of St. Nicholas, 1593—1630.)

Leland, who visited Salisbury about 1540—42, says that "part of these scholars (de Vaulx) remaine in the college at Saresbyri, and have 2 chapeleyns to serve the chirch ther, beyng dedicafe to S. Nicolas. The residew study at Oxford. The scholars of Vaulx be bounde to celebrate the anniversarie of Giles their founder at the paroch chirch of Britport, wher he was born." Some of the scholars continued to have pensions so late as 1555. Jacobus de Valle Scholarium is mentioned as an author in the Harleian MS. 3930. (Leland's Journey in Wiltshire, with notes by J. E. Jackson, p. 41 n.)

The Valor Ecclesiasticus under the heading "Domus Scolar' Valleprope Civitat' Nove Sarum," mentions Ricardum Dudley, clericum, viginti pauperes Scholares, et duo Capellanos, and specifies property in Abyngton, Waldyche, Dewliche, Mylborn rectories in Dorset, and in Wilts Chitterne rectory, tenements in West and East Harnham, Bryteford, Lavyngton, and Salisbury, and Wasynge and Herberfeld, Berks, to the amount of £94 15s. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ d., the annual outgoings being £16 13s. 4d.

* From the Salisbury Chapter Acts.

† From a list, in the Bodleian Library at Oxford, entered at the end of a book of extracts from the Salisbury Episcopal Registers.

Roger de Burton is mentioned as a scholar of the House, dying cir. 1296, and succeeded by Henry le Raynur, clerk.

One Roger Fulke, or Fuke, was a scholar of some standing there at the same date. Sarum Charters, p. 368. See p. 47, above, and p. 49.

It will be seen from the following interesting account that other inmates besides Scholars were sometimes admitted at St. Nicholas de Vaux.

On the 14th of April, 1336, one of the benefactors mentioned on p. 40, above, Roger Moton, or Mutton, with Christina his wife, yielded certain tenements and possessions to the Master and Scholars de Valle Scholarium, on condition that they should have their victuals in the said house, for the term of their lives, with ingress and egress in the same manner as any Scholar of the foundation: That Roger should sit at the second table, with Roger Fonk on his right hand, so long as the said Roger should live, and after his decease should enjoy his place: That Christina should sit where she pleased, and have the use of an apartment, with all requisite accommodation, to be built at her husband's expense: That he should himself be permitted to build a stable for one horse: That after her husband's death, Christina should receive one mark of silver yearly on the Feast of the Annunciation. Lastly, the Master and Scholars agreed to celebrate the anniversary of the said Roger and Christina after their decease, and to pay the sum of 2*d.* to each Scholar attending at their obsequies. (Account of Old and New Sarum, 1834, p. 56; from the De Vaux Cartulary; Notes to Robert of Gloucester's Chronicle, p. 520. Cf. Benson and Hatcher's Hist. of Salisbury, p. 92.)

Tanner mentions a Cartulary of de Vaux College of the 26th Hen. VI. (1447-8), which was (in 1750) in the hands of W. Boucher of Salisbury: probably the same which was afterwards in the possession of H. Penruddock Wyndham, Esq. See also the Repertorium Orig. MS. Mus. Brit., vol. iii., fol. 304 b., vol. iv., fol. 191. (Dugd. Monast. vi., 1473.) The Cartulary will be described below.

I insert here a list of the Vicars of Broad Hinton from the Wiltshire Institutions continued to the present time.

Vicars of Broad Hinton, Wilts,

FROM A.D. 1299 TO A.D. 1900.

*** The names of the Vicars before 1299 are lost, the earliest Institution Register of the Diocese commencing in 1297.

The Church (dedicated in honour of St. Peter ad Vincula, commemorated in some kalendars on Lammas Day, Aug. 1st) was probably at an early period appropriated to the See of Sarum, and the advowson, or right of presentation of a Vicar, was subsequently granted out to Richard de Hinton, or one of his predecessors. In 1248 the Bishop granted the great tithes to the Hospital of St. Nicholas, Salisbury, by which means the Hospital became the appropriator, while the advowson still remained in the hands of the former grantee, or his successor, until granted by Richard de Hinton to the Hospital in 1253. We find, however, that the Bishop presented to the Vicarage until the year 1478.

1299. John Martyn.
 1321. Johannes de Bratton.<sup>1</sup>
 1324. Henriens de Makeseye. Petrus de Grenhull.
 1332. W<sup>mus.</sup> de Whytelayeford.

1349. Johannes de Sende.
 1351. Robertus Parkere.
 1399. Robertus Elys.
 1425. Johannes Perege (al. Parys).
 1468. Thomas Jhony.
 e. 1475. Thomas Mathew.

 e. 1525. Johannes Willoughby.
 1540. Willielmus Snowe.
 1551. Gulielmus Audros (dimiss.).
 1551. Johannes Hazelhourst (dimiss.).
 1554. Petrus Becket.
 ? 1576. Petrus Rhene.
 1576. Johannes Botewell (al. Bootewell, resign).
 1614. Thomas Crapon.*
 1620. Johannes Northy (resign).
 1629. Thomas Alecock.*

 1781. Riehard Purdy, B.D.<sup>1</sup>
 1789. Thomas Henry Hume, B.A.<sup>2</sup>
 1804. William Lewis Rham (resigned). Preb. of Bitton.
 1807. William Macdonald (resigned).<sup>3</sup> Preb. of Bitton.
 1815. John James Toogood, D.D.
 1834. William Cookson, M.A.<sup>4</sup>
 1866. Vyell Domithorne Vyvyan (resigned).<sup>5</sup>
 1877. John Augustus Lloyd, M.A. (resigned).<sup>6</sup>
 1891. Vere Awdry, Chich. Theol. Coll. (resigned).<sup>7</sup>
 1895. Robert Campbell Crokat, M.A.

<sup>2</sup> By cession (? of E. Emily) Mr. Hume was afterwards Prebendary, son of Bp. Hume; was also Incumbent of Kewstoke, Stratford-sub-Castle, and Brixton Deverel; Prebendary of Yatesbury and Bitton; Treasurer of Sarum 1806 - 34.

The Church of St. Peter ad Vincula is still in the patronage of the Master of St. Nicholas. It contains some remarkable monuments of the Wroughtons and Glanvils, and a memorial to the great Duke of Wellington, who was Lord of the Manor.

<sup>2</sup> Hokday. Hoke day, or Hox-day, was, according to Matthew Paris, ad ann. 1255, the Second Tuesday after Easter, 'quindena Paschae'. At Salisbury it appears from the St. Edmund's Churchwardens' Accounts, pp. xvii, 50, 52, 56, 57, 131, &c., that it was customary for the men to tie the women with ropes unless they paid for their liberty some contribution to the parish fund, "ad custodiendum illas a ligacione—to save them from byndyne in Hok' Tuysday." And there was in 1510 the sum of 3*s*. 4*d*. expended on a dinner, "pro prandio mulierum in die le Hockes" (p. 57). Perhaps here (as on the Hampshire manors of Magdalen Coll., Oxford) the women took their share in levying toll from the men, and there was a payment or entertainment "pro mulieribus hockantibus". In some plaeas buckles, shoes, hats or spurs were liable to be taken off, as horse-shoes are at Oakham. See Hampson's Kalendarium [1841], i. p. 204; ii. pp. 198-9, 202. Cf. R. Browning, Heretic's Tragedy (title).

Circa 1244.

<sup>1</sup> The principal part of this release of a tenement at Harnham to the Bishop, for the benefit of the Bridge and Chapel, in 1244, has been printed in Benson and Hatcher's Modern Wiltshire, p. 732, from the Bishop's Records and our Cartulary.

viving at Hungerford, where two “tutty men,” i.e. posy-carriers bearing large nosegays on their wands, go round at Hoek-tide, attended by a fruit-bearer. They exact a tax of 2d. from each male inhabitant, and a kiss from the wives and daughters, to whom they give an orange. See The Bath Road by C. G. Harper, 1899, p. 171, where however the word “tutty” is imperfectly explained. Minshen’s Dictionary (1623) gives “a posie or tutty”. See Dartnell and Goddard’s Wiltshire Glossary (Eng. Dialeet. * In the present terrier the half acre is always abbreviated thus "di acr," which might be expanded as "dimidiam acri," or "dimidiam acrum." As on p. 147 we find the scribe writing "dimidia aera." (in full) as the nominative case, we here adopt "dimidiam acram" as governed by the verb "tenet." Although usually contracted into rod, the word "rode" is occasionally so written at length, in the singular as well as in the plural.

*** After this pp. 100—102 were left blank, until the early part of the 17th century, when (1) a transcript of Bp. Robert Bingham's Ordinatio Hospitalis, or Carta de omnibus bonis S. Nicholai Sarum, A.D. 1245 was entered on pp. 100, 101, with the following note:—

"This instrument was examined and duly copied verbatim with an entry in an old book entitled 'Statuta Ecclesie Sar.' examined 23 Apr. 1639

per Rich: Greene
& Fran. Cheney."

[This having occurred earlier in the volume in the hand of the original scribe of the cartulary, has been printed at p. 30, and is not repeated here.

(2) A transcript of the record of the temporary possession of the Hospital by the Dean and Chapter 31 May 1244, and the Finalis Concordia Roberti episcopi Sarum 3 Feb. 1259—60 (44 Hen. III.) by which it was subsequently made over to the Bishop, in exchange for the perpetual nomination of one Brother's place in the Hospital. These two last named were copied from Bp. Blythe's register, and have been printed above, pp. 33—5.]

<sup>1</sup> "Pratum de Westharnham:" is written in the upper margin, about the year 1600; but the initial "W" was subsequently struck out (though perhaps erroneously), so as to read "Estharnham".

<sup>1</sup> Pancett, or Paunceet, foresta de Paincet (Pancetes Pauneet) was, in the opinion of some, the forest of Clarendon. The tithes of the forest were given to the Church of Sarum by Charter of King Henry I. eir. 1115, and confirmed in 1160 by King Henry II. and by King Henry III. 21st Dec., 1238. See Osmund Reg., i. pp. 204, 206; Sarum Charters, p. 249. Meleford forest and Langeford (i.e., Milford and Longford) were held at the time of the Domesday survey by Ulviet, the King's huntsman, part of his land being "in foresta," but the name Paunceet is not there given, nor do I find it in Britton's topographical works. The writer of An Historical and Descriptive Account of Old and New Sarum, Svo, Salisbury, 1834, observes, however, p. 128, that in the Hundred Rolls of King Henry III. the Jurors of Alderbury mention the Forest of Clarendon and that of Pancet or Panchet, as if they were quite distinct from one another.

† These names were inserted by the Rev. G. H. Moberly in the margin of his own copy of his paper on the History of St. Nicholas' Hospital, Salisbury, subsequently to 1890. I know not on what evidence. The inference will be that, in the late Master's opinion, in the 13th century the Bishops of Salisbury sometimes personally performed the duties of Master of St. Nicholas. But I think the matter doubtful.

BRETHREN AND SISTERS OF ST. NICHOLAS
A.D. 1501—1534; 1587—1611.

1289. Feb. 9. Philip del Hook, alias de Quercu, was received into fraternity at St. Nicholas' Hospital, but probably only as a confrater (pp. 4, 5), or benefactor associate, as 'amicus Hospitalis', to receive spiritual benefits of fellowship in prayers and good works, without any claim to temporal emoluments from the Society. See p. 195.<sup>1</sup>

Among the Wiltshire Institutions one Sister appears to have received institution from the hands of Bishop Ro. Wyvill, whether because the mastership may have been vacant at that time and the Bishop may have assumed the guardianship, or because she desired to show her devout realisation of the spiritual character of the place.

1361. Laurentia Bohun.

XVII. THE LETTERS PATENT, 3 April, 1610.

In the Episcopate of D<sup>r</sup> Henry Cotton, about 1608, Geoffrey Bygge, who had been Custos since 1593, prudently resigned the Mastership in order that the Bishop of Salisbury might grant a lease of the patronage of the Hospital for forty years to one who, being a courtier, should have sufficient influence to defend the property and the privileges of the Brethren and Sisters of St. Nicholas against the covetousness of certain adventurers, called "concealers",<sup>1</sup> who had designs against undefended property of this description.

These Letters Patent consist of three membranes of various length: 2ft. 4in. by 2ft. 2in. by 1ft. ; in breadth 2ft. 8in.

To the membrane is attached the Great Seal, on dark green wax, 6 inches in diameter.

<sup>1</sup> Messrs. Tipper and Dawe, the gentry who thrived by this species of information, and who nearly brought ruin to Oakham and Uppingham Schools, as well as to St. Nicholas' Hospital, Sarum, were so called by Elizabethan etymologists "a non celando, sicut mons a non movendo"! "Concealed lands" are estates not rendered up to the Commissioners of the Tudor Sovereigns.

(XVIII.) ON THE COMMON SEAL.

On the second plate of Seals engraved and described at the beginning of their History of Salisbury (Modern Wiltshire), p. xvii., by Benson and Hatcher, there are two (Nos. 15, 16) belonging to St. Nicholas' Hospital, as well as one of St. Edmund's College (No. 12).

II. 15. "Ancient Seal of the Hospital of St. Nicholas, representing the Saint. Legend: Sigillum domus hospitalis beati Nicholai Sarum." (1 $\frac{6}{7}$ in.  $\times$  2 $\frac{6}{7}$ in.)

II. 16. "Another Seal of the same Hospital, dated 1610. (2 $\frac{1}{7}$ in.  $\times$  3in.) The crowned rose is a royal badge, denoting the dependence of the foundation on the Crown; and the wyvern is the crest of Herbert, Earl of Pembroke, the Bailiff of the City." The Earl of Pembroke's connexion with the Hospital was of a personal and not a civic character, the Mastership having been resigned temporarily into his hands on account of his influence at Court, until the property had been wrested from the rapacious concealers Typper and Dawe.

The following description of the second of these Seals from the pen of one of the Chaplains in the 18th Century (Edmund Hickman, ii. pp. 151—2) is curious:—

"After the restoration and confirmation of the lands upon the incorporation, Mr. Bigge [to whom the Earl restored the Mastership] caused a Common Seal to be made, of an oval form, almost two inches broad and three long. The impress is a Bishop in his habit, his left hand held up in a posture of blessing, and in his right a pastoral staff, having on the left side of him a Rose with a Crown, signifying a grant of the Crown, and the union of the two Houses of Lancaster and York; and just opposite [sinister] on his right side a dragon with his wings extended, through the body of which the end of his crook, or pastoral staff, seems to pass, signifying (I suppose) that St. Nicholas had now conquered the dragon [or wyvern], the dragon being one of the supporters of the arms of Queen Elizabeth, who had given away the said hospital lands belonging to St. Nicholas, but was now by King James again restored. Just under the figure of the said Bishop is a flower de luce almost at the bottom of the plate, with the two first letters of Mr. Bigges his name, G. on the one side of it, and B. on the other.<sup>1</sup>

“ And when Francis Rivett became master he made a new Seal, with the same figure impression and motto, only as the other two letters of the name was G. B., so his was I. R. date 1647.

“ But when the first Dr. Nicholas was again restored in 1660, the old Seal of Mr. Biggs was again used, which continued to be the Common (or Corporation) Seal till 1713, at which time Mr. Burnet, finding a new Seal (of a smaller size) left in the chest by his predecessor Dr. John Nicholas, has chosen to make use of that. The figure is much the same as the others, but without any Rose, Dragon, or flower de luce, or any letters of a name: only under the figure [of St. Nicholas], instead of the flower de luce, is a Cross. The inscription is this :—‘ Sigill domus hospitalis beati Nicholai Sarum.’

“ The first inscription English'd is thus : By the pious gifts of several persons the hospital of St. Nicholas subsists. The last inscription Englished thus : The Seal of the hospital house of the blessed Nicholas, Sarum.

“ I having, since I inserted the account above, been looking over all the old leases, some whereof were made in the time of King Henry the VIIth, found the impression of a Common Seal of the said Hospital (by which I find the Master, Guardian, or Keeper, Chaplain, Brothers and Sisters were then a Corporation), just the same size, shape, impress, and, (I think) motto, of that now in use, which Seal was used by Fox (1524—35), Crayford (1543), Herbert (1550—77), and all the Masters down to the new foundation (1610), and how long before I cannot find.”

The right to use a Common Seal is secur'd to the Master and Hospital by the Royal Patent of 1610. See p. 253, above. We give a representation of two of the seals, photographed from the originals.

(XIX.) MEMORANDUM ON THE SWANS.

(Compiled from Hickman's Book, i. p. 13 ; ii. p. 111.)

The Master of St. Nicholas, his right to tithe Swans bred on St. Nicholas' ground.

Memorandum that the two Law Days at the Guild hall in Sarum, at which the master of St. Nicholas' Hospital is to appear, or to be assoin'd, are St. Martin's day [11 Nov.] and Hock monday [Monday after Easter week].

The swan-marking day, to take up ground birds and the tithe swans, is ever on the Monday after Lammas Day [i.e. after Aug. 1st], and the white drift is ever the Monday after Holyrood day [i.e. after 14th Sept.].

Swans bred on St. Nicholas' ground.

Anno Domini 1620, 7 was bred on St. John's chapel ground : Sir William Dorrington's, and Mr. Duke's.

Anno 1621, 8 by the same pair.

Anno 1622, 6 on the ground of the orchard of St. Nicholas: Earl of Pembroke's and Sir Thomas Jarvise's.

Anno 1629, 7 on St. John's Chapel ground: Earl of Pembroke's and Sir Thomas Jarvise's, for which (and all the old reckonings, which were not certain, being not continued and renewed every brood) I received a tithe swan<sup>1</sup> Sept. 12, 1629, from which time the new reckoning is begun.

Geffe Bigge, custos.

Anno 1631, bred on St. John's Chapel ground (by the Earl of Pembroke and Sir Thomas Jarvise) 7, whereof one was the ground bird.

Anno 1632, bred on St. John's Chapel ground (by the Earl and Knight aforesaid) 9 swans, whereof one was the ground bird.

The account went no further. I believe the Dr. Nicholases (1630—1711) never minded it.

<sup>1</sup> "a little swan" i. p. 13.

(XX.) ON THE ADMISSION OF MARRIED COUPLES AS BROTHERS AND SISTERS.

In the sixteenth century it had been no unusual thing for a husband and wife to be admitted together as Brother and Sister of St. Nicholas. Instances of such admissions occur on 6 Dec. 1504, 23 Dec. 1506, 15 Dec. 1513 (two couples), 1 Dec. 1520, 20 May 1525, and 12 Jan. 1527—8.

Such arrangements, however, had their inconveniences. In June, 1596, we find "Newton's wyf and Penny" brawling, and at a later time in their career Newton and his wife "brawling at board and throwing bones before all the company."

It may be inferred that upon the re-incorporation of the Hospital in 1610, and for several years subsequently, no married couples were admitted, and when in 1626 the Master, Geoffrey Bigge, was being moved to appoint a husband and a wife together, he received the following letter to restrain him:—

Extract from Hickman's Book, ii. p. 112.

A Letter of the Earl of Pembroke, to Mr. Bigge [Master of St. Nicholas], not to admit married persons unto the Hospital. Dated Dec. 24th, 1626, signed with his seal on the margin.

WHEREAS I am credibly informed that some married people, both men and women, have heretofore been admitted to the Hospital of St. Nicholas, near Sarum (whereof you are now master) which married folks have proved both burthensome and troublesome to the house, which both of us would willingly avoid such inconveniences (for the future), I do pray and require you not to admit any married man, or married woman to be of the house, hereafter upon no terms, and this my warrant shall be your discharge in that behalf.

Given under my hand and seal of arms, this 24th day of December, 1626.

PEMBROKE.

To my loving friend Mr. Geffery
Bigge, minister of God's word and master of St. Nich. hosp. near Sarum.

[The Articles of Visitation and Inquiry following appear to have been ministered by Bp. H. Henchman in Oct., 1662, and they were repeated by Bp. Seth Ward in 1670 and 1677. The Answers here given belong to one of the latter visitations by Bp. Ward, the one which was held in 1677. He had, apparently, visited the Hospital in 1670 and the Cathedral Church in 1672.]

(XXI.) THE VISITATION OF THE HOSPITAL,
By Bp. Seth Ward,
Dr. John Nicholas being Master.

[VISITATION ARTICLES, 1662—77, with the MASTER'S ANSWERS, 1677.]

1. When and by whom was your Hospital founded? Have you the originall Charter of ye ffoundation, or any Statutes made by ye ffounder? If so, you are to give a copy of them at ye visitation.

2. By what Statutes, Laws, Patents, Orders, or Rules is your Hospitall now governed? Let copy be drawn and exhibited at ye visitation.

R. To ye 1st and 2nd I answer, that by ye writings of ye Hospitall I collect that Robert Bingham Bp. of Sarum was founder of ye Hospitall:

that I have no ancient Statutes but some made by Bp. Beauchamp, which I suppose was made neere or at ye time of ye first ordination of ye said Hospitall,<sup>1</sup> and shall be exhibited:

that ye Hospitall is now governed according to those Statutes,<sup>2</sup> and ye charter since granted by King James<sup>3</sup> and by ye customes of ye said House, which charter also is exhibited.

3. What does ye yearly revernew amount to upon ye rent rolle?

R. The rent rolle doth mention y<sup>e</sup> rents and severall Lands of y<sup>e</sup> Hospitall.

4. What are ye Fines worth or reputed to be worth by ye year?

R. To y<sup>e</sup> 4th I answer that there can be no estimate made of y<sup>e</sup> fines communibus annis, since y<sup>e</sup> best Lands are all leased out for Lives and there is no fine for them but accidentally as Lives fall.

5. What leases have been renewed or let since ye time of his Maiesty's Happy restoration? What fines have been taken, and by whom, and how disposed of?

R. To y<sup>e</sup> 5th I answer that most of y<sup>e</sup> Leases of y<sup>e</sup> Hospitall have been renew'd since his majesty's happy restoration, except St. Nicholas Mead and Broad Henton Parsonage, but what y<sup>e</sup> fines have been I cannot well tell; some of them were renew'd by my predecessor, and of those that were renew'd by me I have formerly Inform'd y<sup>e</sup> right Reverend Father in God y<sup>e</sup> now present Lord Bp. as far as I eoud remember, for 7 years Last past before his Last Visitation, and since that time I can remember only 3 leases or fines for Leasses y<sup>e</sup> one for a leasse of a very small manner of Corff Mullen which I altered from a leasse of Lives to a Leasse of years, and y<sup>e</sup> fine was 14 pounds; y<sup>e</sup> other was for a garden in Fisherton Anger, y<sup>e</sup> fine was 3 l. 10 s. 0 d. The third, about Eleven pound, for Land in Fisherton. There has been no register of y<sup>e</sup> Fines. Y<sup>e</sup> reason is (as I suppose) that ever since our Charter y<sup>e</sup> fines have been enjoyed by y<sup>e</sup> Master as his maintenance, after that he has discharged all expences repaires suites in Law, and bare y<sup>e</sup> whole burthen as well as maintaines himself, which Burthens of Late years have been more than y<sup>e</sup> fines of any one year.

6. What Land, Woods, Leaschold Houses or Tenements belongeth to ye said Hospitall? What Leases are there, by whom held, and to whom belongs ye Letting and setting of ye same?

R. The names of the Land are mencioned in y<sup>e</sup> rent rolle, y<sup>e</sup> setting and letting belongs to y<sup>e</sup> Master; y<sup>e</sup> poore reecive 6 shill. 8 d. and y<sup>e</sup> Chaplaine 3 shill. 4 d. by eustome at all fines. ('that is, for y<sup>e</sup> seale, 10shill. in y<sup>e</sup> whole.' margin.)

7. What ancient or modern records, deeds, or evidences have you of ye Land, Tenements, or revenues of your

Hospitall? Have you an Index or repository of ye said records, deeds and evidences, and are they safely kept in the chest?

R. There are no evidences ancient, but what are in one book safely kept, which is not so big as to need an Inventory. Y<sup>e</sup> Charter is the chief evidence, which with other papers and leases are kept in a chest in y<sup>e</sup> said Hospitall.

8. Are there any ffeeoffees in trust of ye said Hospitall? Who are they, and have they performed their trust?

R. There are no ffeeoffees in trust since y<sup>e</sup> expiration ['in 1650'] of y<sup>e</sup> title of y<sup>e</sup> Earle of Pembroke for 41 years.

9. Who is ye Master, Warden, Prior or Governor? What is ye allowance according to ye ffoundation, or what is ye present reputed valleue of his place, in Common esteeme, and how and where doth it arise?

R. The present master or governor is Dr. John Nicholas of New College in Oxon. His allowance according to y<sup>e</sup> Statutes and Charter is maintenance. Ever since y<sup>e</sup> Charter y<sup>e</sup> master has enjoyed y<sup>e</sup> benefits of y<sup>e</sup> fines and surplusage of y<sup>e</sup> revennu after all burthens and expences dischardg'd his place has been reputed worth thirty pounds per annum; but if y<sup>e</sup> Last 14 years profits had been registerd, I verily suppose it would not have appeard to be nere that vallue communibus annis.

10. How many poor are maintained? Of what sort, men women or children? What are there places worth according to ye ffoundation, or reputed worth according to ye present constitution of ye said Hospitall?

11. Are there now as many members as their ought to be according to ye ffoundation or constitutions? What are their names, when and by whom admitted? If not; how many and what places are void, and who receives ye profits of them?

12. Have all of them their due allowance made as they ought to have?

RR. 10—12. To y<sup>e</sup> 10th, 11th and 12th I answere there are maintainind a Master, a Chaplaine, 6 poor men and 6 poor women, a Servant or Laundress (y<sup>e</sup> name of y<sup>e</sup> Master is mentioned [in R. 9.]) Y<sup>e</sup> Chaplaine is Mr. Christopher. London. Y<sup>e</sup> 6 Bro<sup>rs</sup> are

There are as many as ought to be by y<sup>e</sup> ffoundation, y<sup>e</sup> places duly supplyd within a month by y<sup>e</sup> master, to whom it belongs to do it; except one place, which is duly nominated by y<sup>e</sup> Dean and Chapter of Sarum. They all have their Allowances by Statute, and an augmentation, so that y<sup>e</sup> vallue of their places consists in Dyett, a gowne once in two years, ffiring, and other conveniences and profits. I suppose none can live so well as y<sup>e</sup> poor doe for 12 pounds per annum.

13. Have you ye Bible, and ye Book of Common praier, lately set forth and printed?

R. There is in y<sup>e</sup> Hospitall a common praier Book and bible for y<sup>e</sup> Chappell.

14. Do any of ye members of ye said Hospitall keep any disorderly meetings or entertainments, or sell any beer or ale? Or are there any blasphemers, swearers, or Incontinent persons in ye same?

15. Do all ye members of ye said Hospitall Live religiously, soberly and quietly, free from giving any disturbance to ye Brethren and Sisters?

R. I know nothing against y<sup>e</sup> 14th or 15th Article, but what has been corrected by y<sup>e</sup> master.

16. Is Divine Service duly performed and ye Sacrament administered in ye chappell of ye said Hospitall? How often, and by whom? And do ye Brothers and Sisters repaire to them, and do they behave themselves reverently during ye same?

R. Divine Service is duly performed in y<sup>e</sup> Chappell according as has been accustomed for many years on Sundays Wednesdays and ffridays, and is reverendly attended to.

17. Are ye Chappell and Mansion House in good repaire, as also ye Lodgings belonging to ye Master?

R. The Chappell and Lodgings are in very good repaire, and have had much money expended lately on them.

18. Do any of ye Brothers or Sisters go a begging in ye city or elsewhere? Who are they?

R. I know of no offender against ye 18th article.

19. Are any of ye Lands belonging to ye Hospitall in ye Hands or possession of ye Master or any other person belonging to ye Hospitall?

R. There are no Lands of ye Hospitall in ye Hands of ye Master or other person belonging to ye Hospitall.

Finis.

THE OLD CUSTOM UPON EVES.

Extract from Hickman's Book ii. p. 33.

“ What was the original custom of the Poor Brothers and Sisters sitting at Table with each a Pot of drink and a half-penny Loaf and a great Candle burning before them, All-hallowing Eve, Christmas Eve, New Year's Eve, Twelve Eve, and Candlemas Eve, I cannot imagine, but am apt to think 'twas designed for the benefit of the Nurse, who sold beer. I can find nothing of it in any writings, ancient or modern.

“ It was put down by order of Dr. John Nicholas, Master of the Hospital, in 1706.”*

* At St. Cross Hospital, Winchester, it was the custom in 1695 to give an extra dole on All Saints' Eve, Christmas Eve, Easter Eve, Whitsun Eve, the Invention of the Cross (i.e. 3rd May, the Feast of their Title), and the Founder's obit. (10th Aug.). Each inmate received two loaves, and one for each person in his dwelling.—W. T. Warren's St. Cross (1899), pp. 64, 106.

R. To y<sup>e</sup> 8th and 9th articles I answer, that I know no disorders in y<sup>e</sup> said Hospitall, nor any irregular selling of Beer or Ale, or other offences against articles, save that Ruth Eustace<sup>1</sup> has frequently disturbed y<sup>e</sup> Brothers and Sisters by raileings and revillings†, and has been severall times admonished to amend according to y<sup>e</sup> orders of y<sup>e</sup> place.

But all Lands and revenues are Leased out, some for 21 years, some for 3 Lives, and some houses for 40 years, at y<sup>e</sup> rents set downe in y<sup>e</sup> rentall and formerly given in, and formally given in and presented to my Lord Bishop.

APPENDIX (XXII.).

Extract from a MS. by Mr. Edward Hickman, chaplain of S. Nicholas' Hospital, dated 1713.

I find that the body of the church (or cloister) was founded upon twelve pillars with large and beautiful arches turned on them, six of each side, in distance from each other about 14 foot, which said range of pillars and arches ran up also on the north and south sides to the very east end of the chancel, in which were eight or ten pillars more; and [the] body of the church (or cloister) was in breadth in the inside from pillar to pillar about 25 foot, as was also the chancel built on a continuation of the same range of pillars: the pillars was near 3 foot square, and in height from the floor to the upper part of the cornice on which the foot of the arches stood about 5 foot and a half in height. The body of the church (or cloister) was in length about 76 foot.

between which and the chaneel was a cross aisle ranging north and south; in length from the body of the church each way were 40 foot, and in breadth about 13; but a wall went cross them and a door in each at the end, of about 20 foot, exactly alike on both sides. From the east end of the body of the church (or cloister) to the east end of the chaneel was about 46 foot in length, and at the east end of the chaneel was also a sanctum sanctorum, or low chapel of about 28 foot in length: so that from the west porch of the church (or cloister) to the east end of the sanctum was about an 150 foot, and the length of the cross aisles from north to south about 110 foot. At the south end of the cross aisle was also a further building of necessary houses over the water, and there was also additional buildings at the end of the north cross aisle, that answered to those on the south, and led to the door of entrance into the churchyard, and these additional buildings had chambers over them. There was there also chapels, one on the north side of the chaneel dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Maria, and another on the south side thereof, dedicated to St. Nicholas, both of an equal length and breadth (viz.) in length 36 foot and in breadth 20, which answered exactly to the length of the inner part of the cross aisles, before you came to the wall and door that enters into [the] outer part of the cross aisle, both sides being of an exact proportion, according as it is here represented in the first platform or figure.<sup>1</sup> The poor people's rooms, being twelve in number, were six on the north side of the body of the church (or cloister) and six on the south, which six on the south continues much as they did from the first, only as at first they came out of their doors into a passage of about 8 foot wide between their said doors and the pillars of the cloister, between which pillars it was all open, so that to go from the rooms on the north side of the church (or cloister) to those on the south (or from the south to the north) they went between the said pillars, and so cross the church (or cloister): but, since the said church is gone, there is now a strong brick wall made between the pillars on the south side from west to east to keep the rooms warm, but both pillars and poor's chambers are all gone from the north side thereof, and shops for weaving erected in the place of the poor people's lodging rooms. There is no mention in the ordination of any set number of poor people, but I am apt to believe it was designed for twelve from the foundation. There was two porches for entrance, one on the north, the other on the south side of the body of the church (or cloister) besides one large porch between them, which porch belonged to the cloister (or church). The porch on the south side does yet remain, only a room is made over it by the tenant of the old kitchen: and passing through these two porches you come into two halls of about 25 or 30 foot long each from north to south, and about 16 foot broad; out of which halls you entered into the passage, that lead[s] between the poor people's doors and the pillars of the said church (or cloister), on each side just alike, both porch, hall, and passage. That hall on the south side is yet in being, only a large staircase made in it to ascend into the master's lodgings, which was done about an 100 years since, till which time it was still called the old hall, and had a long old table board standing in it.<sup>2</sup> Then on the north side of the hospital, between the said hospital and the churchyard or litton,<sup>1</sup> was a tenement given by Bishop Robert in his ordination,<sup>2</sup> which has been since rebuilt in form of a church (or hospital) building; at the east end of which was a door through a wall out of the aforesaid additional buildings of the cross aisle into the churchyard. But since the poor people's rooms are gone on the north side of the church (or cloister) and the chaplain's lodgings which was over them, there are two rooms built at the east end of the said tenement (of late called the farm-house, because the farmer that rented the hospital lands generally lived there) for two poor people and a chamber and garret for the chaplain over them; which rooms and a chamber was builded about 1498, on the north side of which lies the ground (now an orchard) formerly called the litton or churchyard. Then on the south side of the north porch of entrance (at the west end of the hospital) is the tenement called the old kitchen, because formerly when the master and chaplains all ate together in the dining room of the hospital, all their meat was dressed there, and a door was made on the south side of the said dining room, about 8 foot from the west end, into the said kitchen for bringing the meat, which door is now (since the staircase was built and a chamber and study taken out of the west end of the said dining room) walled up. I have already given an account, that the poor people's rooms were six on the north, and six on the south side of the church (or cloister). And over those on the south side was (and still is) the master's or keeper's lodgings, and the great common dining room, in length from west to east, in the inside 36 foot, and in breadth 21: the breadth is still the same, but there having been a chamber (with a study over it) and large staircase made and taken out of the west end thereof by Mr. Bigge about an 100 years past, the length of it now is but just the same as the breadth, viz., 21 foot. Then farther to the east there were two or three lodging rooms, which also yet remain, and a kitchen is built over good part of the south cross aisle, and a thick wall for a foundation for the said kitchen chimney, and a room to look into the new chapel. Then over the more southerly part of the said cross aisle is built a washhouse, &c., and farther over the additional buildings is a woodhouse and house of office, over the stream of water that runs under those of the poor people. In the more southerly part of the cross aisle there is also a staircase to come up into the master's lodgings, called the back stairs. But note that the master's and chaplain's lodgings being builded over the poor people's, was at least 8 foot broader than the said poor people's rooms, for they went clear over the aforesaid passage that is between the poor people's doors and the pillars, which is at least 8 foot, and joined to the said pillars or arches of the said church (or cloister).

"The church and chancel (or middle chapel) was dedicated to the honour of Almighty God, in which mass was said or sung every Sunday and great holy day, such as Ascension Day, Good Friday, and many more, as also the canonical hours, that is in the middle chapel or chancel, for the body of the church (or cloister) was never used for any divine service. The chapel on the north side was dedicated to the honour of the Blessed Virgin Mary, and was constantly used for masses and canonical hours, &c. (mostly by the master or keeper himself) on every festival of the said Blessed Virgin, as well by night as by day. The chapel on the south side (which yet remaineth) was dedicated to the Blessed Nicholas confessor, and was used on all other holy days and at several other times according as the master thought fit: in every of which chapels there was a lamp constantly kept burning, as also in each of the cross aisles in the night time, or at least in the evenings.

“ But I cannot tell on what account it was, but towards the latter end of the fourteenth century the body of the church (or cloister), with all the poor people’s rooms and buildings on the north side thereof, was taken down, as was also the chapel of the Blessed Virgin Mary, and the sanctum sanctorum at the east end of the chancel, and the chancel itself made into a common hall for the poor people (I mean the east end of it) with a buttery for the nurse adjoining to the west part of the said hall, and a room for a poor sister adjoining to the west part of the buttery, and a woodhouse adjoining to the west part of the said room, all which took up the whole length of the chancel and of the north cross aisle, which was also pulled down with the additional buildings at the north end of it, to the aforesaid door of entrance into the churchyard or litton, within which ranging straight from the east end of the tenement or farm-house aforesaid was built two rooms, as have been said, and a chamber over for the chaplain, and the door of entrance into the litton is now the door of entrance into one of the aforesaid new built rooms. Then was also the north porch and hall pulled down, as also the porch belonging to the body of the church (or cloister), and tenements built in their place. And an orchard was planted where the body of the church (or cloister) stood, which is now and has for more than 160 years been converted into a garden of herbs for the poor people’s pottage. And after all these ruinous transactions I find that the chapel now in use (which was the only one then left in the hospital) was again consecrated in 1501 to the honour of Almighty God, the glorious Virgin Mary, and St. Nicholas confessor. And about 100 years ago the aforesaid hall was made into a common kitchen, and four chambers built over it and the buttery and aforesaid lower room for four poor brothers, viz., two over the kitchen, one over the buttery and room aforesaid on the north side, and another over the same on the south side.”

later additions up to 1540) arranged under the names of estates in the counties of Berks, Dorset, and Wilts.

It is a bulky folio in the original boards with old stamped binding, carefully mended and re-backed. It appears to have belonged formerly to W. Boucher, of Salisbury (in 1750), and afterwards to H. Penruddock Wyndham.

It now contains 29 gatherings of vellum, signed 3—23, and 25—32. (Signatures — 1, if any* —, 2, and 24 are wanting.) The quires which contain copies of those charters (folios 145—213), which relate to property in Salisbury, itself, have an additional signature in bold Gothic letters a—i inclusive. The volume as will be seen has lost some 8 leaves or so at the beginning; but it consists still of 216 recently numbered folios, besides 2 other leaves of vellum (blank, and not numbered) between folio 23 and folio 24. There are 2 leaves of paper (ff. 214, 215) bound in, just before the end of the book.

The last leaf, 216 (vellum) gives the history of the book's origin, and enumerates the benefactions which were contributed by its donor and originator, Symon Hutchins, a graduate in Laws, who held the prebend of Ruscomb in 1454—67.

* Quire 3 is also signed "2 quatern'"; and quire 5 "3 quatern'".

ADDITIONAL MS. 28,870 in the British Museum (acquired at Mr. Sotheby's sale, 9th Apr. 1872) is a fifteenth century Chartulary of the College of St. Nicholas de Valle, de Vallibus, or de Vaux, near Salisbury. It was written cir. 1447, and contains copies of documents from its foundation in 1260 to the middle of the XVth century (with a few

Mr. S. Hutchins had been chosen, along with Nicholas Upton (Master of St. Nicholas' Hospital, 1442—57)*, to arbitrate, in 1400, between the Dean and Chapter of Salisbury and the Provost of St. Edmund's College, in a dispute concerning tithes in the parish of St. Martin's, and that of St. Edmund. Hutchins also went to Rome in 1452, to represent the Chapter, in order to advocate the long-delayed canonization of St. Osmund.

The record on fo. 216 runs as follows:—

* Heteher (Salisb., p. 92) gives "April 14th, 1336," as the date of the former document, and I cited it as such on p. 49, above. But as this would be a Sunday, not "die Jovis," as in the text, I conclude that the reign intended is that of K. Edward II., and not that of K. Edward III. And 1317 seems on the other grounds also the more likely date.

† The date in this instance is more perplexing. If K. Edward III. be the reign intended, it would be 9th October, 1337. But that was a Thursday. Whereas (as I think otherwise more probable) if 1317 be the year indicated, the choice of Wednesdays in October would be the 6th, 13th, 20th, or 27th. For Oct. 9th was a Sunday in anno xi<sup>o</sup> Ed. II.

WARDENS OF ST. NICHOLAS DE VAUX.

Such an examination of the De Vaux Cartulary as I have been able to give to it has confirmed the dates given by Mr. Malden and others in our list of Wardens of the College of St. Nicholas de Valle Scholarium, Sarum (on pp. 47-8 above).<sup>1</sup> I have, however, found one name which is there missing:—

c. 1504. Geoffrey Elys, canon [preb. of Combe and Harnham 1485—1506], custos Collegi S. Nicholai de Valle Scholarium. fo. 151.

The following entry relates to the last of the Wardens:—

The following list, gathered from the Cartulary, gives the names of some, who, as Stewards, Scholars, or Proctors, &c., were connected with the College of St. Nicholas de Vaux :—

At the time of the suppression (35<sup>o</sup> Hen. VIII., 1543) De Vaux College consisted of a Warden, four Fellows, and two Chaplains. The revenues were granted, in 1536, to Sir Michael Lister, when the small religious houses were suppressed.

Jacobus de Valle Scholarium is mentioned as an author in Brit. Mus. Harleian MS. 3930 (Note by J. E. Jackson on Leland's Itinerary iii. 96).

More recently, when in 1892 an enquiry was held at Salisbury concerning the various Charities in that City, the Assistant Commissioner expressed his conviction, after examining the constitution and management of our Foundation, that St. Nicholas' Hospital, being under the Bishop's jurisdiction, was "of a diocesan character," and not like other charities of a local kind. (Salisbury Journal, 26 Nov. and 3 Dec. 1892.) The accounts of the Hospital, as well as those of the Barrington Trust, are annually submitted to the Charity Commissioners by the Master and Receiver.

At the end of Hickman's draft is a memorandum (3 Sept. 1718) 'inserted by order of ye Revnd Mr. Burnett, master of this Hospital' that whereas Mr. Jay (or some former possessors of the House or Tenement he now has, call'd the old Kitchen) did some years since erect a Brick wall, by which he has intirely closed up y<sup>e</sup> old and common passage and dore of entrance into y<sup>e</sup> master's stable, these are to certifie that y<sup>e</sup> said brick wall remaines only upon sufferance, and that it is in y<sup>e</sup> master of the Hospitall's power, when ever he think fit, to cause y<sup>e</sup> said wall to be removed &c.

And memorandum also, that a rank or row of trees within these fifteen years past, which grew before y<sup>e</sup> said Mr. Jay's shops at y<sup>e</sup> west end of y<sup>e</sup> Hospitall, was cut down by y<sup>e</sup> said Mr. Jay by y<sup>e</sup> Masters leave and permission.

Time allowed in each Lease of St. Nicholas' Hospital for payment, after y<sup>e</sup> quarter day on which it is due. Buckets mead, 3 months, &c.

Mr. Blake renewed, June y<sup>e</sup> 30, 1718 (being 15 years and one quarter out) for £8 fine, and £1 4s. 10d. for drawing, stamps, seall, &c. value £1 per annum.

At the beginning of the book there is a note in the hand-writing of Mr. E. Emily.

" This Collection of Writings into this Book was made by the Revnd Mr. Edmund Hickman, Chaplain of the Hospital, who died May, 1728. A very Honest diligent man, living much beloved, & dying lamented."

Then follows a note by Hickman :—

" if you want to know any particular thing of any Estate, Look for y<sup>e</sup> old Leases thereof, either in y<sup>e</sup> old trunk in y<sup>e</sup> studdy, or in y<sup>e</sup> Bundles in y<sup>e</sup> Chest."

APPENDIX (XXVII.) ST. NICHOLAS' HOSPITAL, BARRINGTON FUND.

Copy of a Deed, dated the 18th February, 1796, whereby Bishop Barrington vested eight thousand pounds three per cent. reduced annuities, in Trustees, for the benefit of the Brothers and Sisters of the Hospital of St. Nicholas, at East Harnham, in the County of Wilts, to which is prefixed a short account of the origin of the Charitable Fund, and to which is added a statement of its present amount and application.

The Origin of this Charity.

The Reverend EDWARD EMILY, M.A., formerly Master of ST. NICHOLAS' HOSPITAL, at EAST HARNHAM, in the County of WILTS, by his Will, dated 15th MARCH, 1792, gave all his real and personal property to SHUTE Bishop of Durham.—The Bishop had formerly, while Bishop of Salisbury, been consulted by Mr. EMILY (who had no near Relations) respecting the Plan of an additional Benefaction to the Poor of ST. NICHOLAS; of which he professed doubts at the time, and of which, on further consideration, he relinquished the idea.—Upon Mr. EMILY's Death, on June 20th, 1792, the Bishop finding, what was perfectly unexpected, that the whole of the property was given absolutely to him by Mr. EMILY's Will, conceived that he could not make a more proper application of it, than by carrying into effect Mr. EMILY's former intentions in favour of the HOSPITAL of ST. NICHOLAS:—He sold, therefore, the estate belonging to Mr. EMILY, at WOKING, in the county of SURREY, for £6200, and with part of that sum purchased £8000 3 per Cent. Reduced Annuities, which constitutes this Charitable Fund; and transferred the same to the Trustees named in the following Deed, upon the Trusts therein mentioned. The small residue of the property, not disposed of among the Testator's relatives, the Bishop of Durham applied to charitable purposes.

Deed.

[Cir. 1798—1824, children or grandchildren of some of the Brethren or Sisters, or (failing these) poor children in the Close, had been apprenticed out of the residue of the fund. This was altered by the following orders.]

In exercise of the power reserved in the foregoing Deed for revocation and alteration of the Trusts in Bishop Barrington's lifetime, with his consent the Trust for application of any residue of the income of the Fund in educating and apprenticing poor children has been revoked.

10 Nov., 1819. First,—As to one Moiety of such residue, At the Annual Meeting of the Trustees held on Wednesday, the 10th of November, 1819, the five Trustees then present having obtained the consent of the said Bishop, revoked the said Trust concerning such residue, and directed and declared as follows, viz. :—

Alteration as to part of residue of the income (a). “ That one Moiety or half part of the disposable balance “ which shall appear by the annual account to remain in the “ Hands of the receiver of the Dividends and annual Produce “ (after deducting the several Payments directed by the said “ Trust Deed to be made and providing for the same till the “ payment of the next Dividends), shall be laid out in the “ purchase of Stock in the Three per Cent. Reduced Annuities, under the direction of the Master of the said Hospital, “ in the name of Three of the Trustees to be named from “ time to time for that purpose, and that the Dividends “ arising therefrom shall be added to such Stock, to accumulate until the whole thereof shall amount to One Hundred “ Pounds Three per Cent. Reduced Annuities. And when “ and as soon as so much Stock shall have been raised, that “ then the Dividends arising therefrom shall be paid or “ applied to and for the benefit of the Brothers and Sisters “ of the said Hospital in addition to the present allowance, “ in such manner as the Trustees for the time being shall “ think most proper and order and direct accordingly. And “ that one Moiety or half part of such disposable balance as “ aforesaid, shall continue to be laid out in the Purchase of “ such Stock, and together with the Dividends arising therefrom continue to accumulate till the same shall amount to “ One other Hundred Pounds Stock, and so toties quoties in “ manner aforesaid. And that the Dividends arising from “ every additional One Hundred Pounds Stock shall be paid “ or applied from time to time to and for the benefit of the “ Brothers and Sisters of the said Hospital, in such manner

“as the Trustees for the time being shall think most proper,
 “and order and direct accordingly, at their Annual Meeting,
 “to be held as in the said Trust Deed is directed. And as “for and concerning the other Moiety or half part of the “disposable balance aforesaid, it is hereby directed and “declared that the same shall be applied in such manner and
 “for such purposes as in and by the said Trust Deed relating “to the residue of the Dividends and annual produce arising “by virtue thereof is already directed.”

Secondly,—As to the other Moiety of such residue. At the adjourned Annual Meeting of the Trustees, held on the 14th December, 1825, the following letter, signed by all the Trustees and addressed to the said Bishop, and his Lordship's answer, were produced and read :—

14 Dec., 1825.

“ To the Honorable and Right Reverend Shute, Lord Bishop of Durham. ”

“ We, the Trustees named and appointed by a Deed of Trust bearing date the Eighteenth day of February, in the year 1796, for the benefit of the Brethren and Sisters of the Hospital of St. Nicholas, at East Harnham, in the County of Wilts, beg leave to represent to your Lordship, that in the humane establishment of the said Hospital so benevolently made by your Lordship, for the benefit of the Brothers and Sisters thereof, most things which can contribute to the comfort of the old people who have found an asylum within its walls have been provided ; but one thing appears to us to be still wanting, and which is severely felt by them, that is, Medical Aid and assistance.

Further alteration (b), as to the other moiety of residue.

“ Some of the old people spend the greater part of their small income in Medicine, others neglect their health to save their money, whilst others fall into the hands of ignorant quacks. To remedy this evil it is submitted to your Lordship's consideration, that a part of the surplus or residue of the Dividends and annual produce of the Monies arising from the fund applicable for the purposes of the same Deed of Trust might very properly be applied to the purpose of Medical Aid and assistance, in preference to that to which such surplus is at present appropriated.

Letter of 28 Feb., 1825, as to Medical Aid.

“ It seems, indeed, more consonant to the original institution to provide for the comfort of the poor old people themselves than for any advantage to their families.

“ We the Trustees, therefore, having consulted together

“on this subject, unite in submitting the same to your “Lordship for your approbation.—J. Sarum—J. T. Batt—“Folkestone—H. N. Pearson—Wadham Wyndham—John “Fisher—George Ernest Howman, Master of St. Nicholas.

“London, 28th February, 1825.”

Bp. Barrington's consent, 9 Mar., 1825.

“I do hereby give my consent and approbation to the “proposed alteration in the application of the surplus or “residue of the Dividends and annual produce of the Monies “arising from the fund appropriated by the Deed of Trust
 “for the benefit of the Brothers and Sisters of the Hospital
 “of St. Nicholas, in the manner and for the purpose men“tioned in the representation on the other side.

“London, 9th March, 1825.”

And it was thereupon resolved, “That the recommenda“tion of the Trustees before mentioned be adopted as a rule
 “to be observed in future in the application of the balance “of the annual account. And thereupon it was ordered,
 “that when any one of the Brothers or Sisters should be ill,
 “he or she shall communicate the same by the nurse to the “Master, if resident, otherwise to the Chaplain or the “Receiver, who will give a letter of directions to one of the “surgeons of the Infirmary to attend such patient, and that “the bills for the same be produced to the Master on the “next Meeting of the Trustees, to be allowed; and that a “sum not exceeding £12, or so much thereof as shall be “requisite, be allowed for discharging such bills.”

[1837. Nov. 8. Ordered that the Entrane Court of the Hospital be kept weeded, and in neat order; and that each of the Brothers (except Hawkins) do take care of the same in turn, for alternate weeks.]

A.D. 1861.

In the present year 1861* the Trustees of the said sum of £8000 Reduced £3 per Cent. Annuities are the Right Reverend Walter Kerr Hamilton, D.D., Lord Bishop of Salisbury, the Reverend George Ernest Howman, Clerk, M.A., Master of the said Hospital of St. Nicholas, the Very Reverend Henry Parr Hamilton, Clerk, Dean of Salisbury, the Right Honourable Horatio Earl Nelson, Lieutenant-General Edward Pery Buckley, M.P., the Venerable William Edward Hony, Archdeacon of Sarum, and the Honourable Jacob Pleydell Bouverie Viscount Folkestone.

* In the year 1878 the trust funds were transferred into the name of “The Official Trustees of Charitable Funds.”

[After the Annual Meeting, held Wed., 13th Nov., 1861.]

For many years past the sum of £12 has been found insufficient to defray the expense of medical assistance, and the Surgeon in attendance<sup>1</sup> has usually received the sum of £20, irrespective of the amount of annual residue. And the sums of £3 and £6 have been paid to the Brethren and Sisters as additional allowance irrespective of the precise amount of the Dividends on the Accumulation Fund. The fund now amounts to £934 6s. 4d., £3 per Cent. Reduced Stock, invested in the names of the said Bishop and Dean of Salisbury, Mr. Howman, and General Buckley, and at the Annual Meeting held on the 13th day of November instant, it was ordered, "That in future the Dividends should be "brought into the Receiver's annual account. It was further "ordered, that for the future the additional allowance of "£3 and £6 paid to the Brothers and Sisters (as representing "the Dividends of an unascertained accumulation fund) "should be discontinued, and that in lieu thereof, on the 1st "May and 1st November, half of the Dividend on so many "clear hundreds as may from time to time compose the "Fund, be divided between the resident Brothers and Sisters, "and the remaining half be retained till the Settlement of "the next annual account, to meet contingencies, and then, "if not required, to be invested, and that the Dividends on "the portion of £100 Stock of the said Fund be from time "to time invested as received—e.g. the fund now consisting "of £934 6s. 4d.,<sup>2</sup> producing the half-yearly Dividend of "£14 0s. 3d., £6 15s. of such Dividend is to be shared "between the inmates, £6 15s. retained till the end of the "year, and 10s. 3d. be invested, thus giving the additional "allowance of £13 10s. per annum instead of £9 now "paid."

PSALM lxvii. Deus Misereatur.

GOD be merciful unto us, and bless us : and show us the light of his countenance, and be merciful unto us ;

2 That thy way may be known upon earth : thy saving health among all nations.

3 Let the people praise thee, O God : yea, let all the people praise thee.

4 O let the nations rejoice, and be glad : for thou shalt judge the folk righteously, and govern the nations upon earth.

5 Let the people praise thee, O God : let all the people praise thee.

6 Then shall the earth bring forth her increase : and God, even our own God, shall give us his blessing.

7 God shall bless us : and all the ends of the world shall fear him.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son : and to the Holy Ghost ;

Answer. As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be : world without end. Amen.

¶ The Master alone will begin the Lord's Prayer.

Our Father, which art in Heaven, Hallowed be thy Name. Thy Kingdom come. Thy will be done in Earth, As it is in Heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us.

Here all shall join with him.

And lead us not into temptation ; But deliver us from evil, Amen.

Then shall the Master say :

Master. O Lord, shew Thy mercy upon us ;

Answer. And grant us Thy salvation.

Master. O Lord, save Thy servant : (or Thine handmaid)

Answer. Which putteth his (or her) trust in Thee.

Master. Be unto him (or her) a strong tower.

Answer. From the face of his (or her) enemy.

Master. Turn us again, O Lord God of Hosts ;

Answer. Shew the light of Thy countenance, and we shall be whole.

Master. O Lord, hear our prayer.

Answer. And let our cry come unto Thee.

Let us pray.

STRETCH FORTH, O LORD, we beseech Thee, upon this Thy Servant the Right Hand of Thy heavenly help, that he may seek Thee with his whole heart, and obtain what he shall rightly ask according to Thy will, through Jesus Christ Thy Son our Lord. Amen.

¶ Here the Party coming to Admission is received by each of the Brethren and Sisters present, beginning first with those of the same side of the Chapel, who give their right hands in token of good will and fellowship; and so by the rest in order.

¶ Last of all the Master takes the New Brother or Sister by the hand, and leads him (or her) to the stall which of late has been vacant. And, placing him in it, he will say :

• P. I Admit thee, into the Society and Brotherhood of this Hospital of Saint Nicholas, to receive and enjoy the charity of the Founders and Benefactors thereof, so long as it shall please God to lend thee life, and while thou behavest thyself godly, righteously and soberly, in manner answerable to the profession of a good Christian man, and agreeably to the orders of this House :

In the name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

¶ Then returning to his stall, while the Brethren and Sisters still tarry in their places, with the newly admitted one among them, the Master will read the concluding Prayers.

O ALMIGHTY GOD, and most merciful Father, who this day hast called Thy Servant to a place in the family of this House; Grant, we beseech Thee, that through Thy help he may faithfully live and walk in this vocation, according to Thy will in this life present, and also may be partaker of Thine everlasting glory in the life to come, Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then the General Thanksgiving, with the special sentence of returning thanks, "particularly to him who desires now to offer up his praises and thanksgivings for Thy present mercies vouchsafed unto him." After which shall follow,

A Prayer of St. Chrysostom.

A LMIGHTY GOD, Who hast given us grace at this time with one accord to make our common supplications unto Thee, and dost promise that, when two or three are gathered together in Thy Name, Thou wilt grant their requests; Fulfil now, O Lord, the desires and petitions of Thy servants, as may be most expedient for them; granting us in this world knowledge of Thy truth, and in the world to come life everlasting. Amen.

2 Cor. xiii.

THE Grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost be with us all evermore. Amen.

Here endeth the Order for Admission of a Poor Brother or Sister.

THE ORDER FOR RECEIVING A FRIEND AS A BROTHER FOR PARTNERSHIP IN PRAYERS AND DEVOTIONS OF THE HOUSE.<sup>1</sup>

¶ Before any Person is admitted to special Partnership and Fellowship in the Prayers and Devotions of the Brethren of St. Nicholas according to the written custom of the House, the Master (who alone shall admit such Friends of the Hospital), will at an assembly of the Brethren and Sisters in the Chapel make known to them his purpose, together with the name of the said person, at least some time the day before.

¶ At the time of Admission, the Person being ready in the Chapel, the Master, Chaplain, and Brethren and Sisters shall say:—

WE have waited for Thy loving-kindness O God : in the midst of Thy Temple.

The Master. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son : and to the Holy Ghost.

The Answer. As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be : world without end. Amen.

We have waited, &c.

Lord, have mercy upon us.

Christ, have mercy upon us.

Lord, have mercy upon us.

¶ Then the Master will begin the Lord's Prayer.

OUR FATHER, which art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy Kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us.

And lead us not into temptation ;

Answer. But deliver us from evil. Amen.

Master. O Lord, save Thy servant :

Answer. Who putteth his trust in Thee.

M. O Lord, send him help from Thy holy place :

A. And strengthen him out of Sion.

M. Let the enemy have no advantage over him :

A. Nor the wicked approach to hurt him.

M. Be Thou to him, O Lord, a strong Tower :

A. From the face of his enemy.

¶ The party to be admitted kneeling before him at the Communion rail, the Master will then pronounce the suffrage following :

M. O Lord, hear our prayer :

A. And let our cry come unto Thee.

Let us pray.

THE LORD Admit thee into the number of His faithful ones, as we His unworthy servants admit thee in our prayers :

The Lord grant thee through His Only-Begotten Son, Christ Jesus, Who is the Mediator between God and man, both opportunity and grace to please Him by a holy life and by patient continuance in well-doing :

And as brotherly kindness hath united us here on earth this day after a special sort, so may the Love of God Almighty, the Fount of heavenly Charity, join you and us with His faithful servants hereafter in heaven ;

Through the same Jesus Christ our Lord, Who liveth and reigneth with the Father and the Holy Ghost, One God world without end. Amen.

Let us bless the Lord.

Answer. Thanks be to God.

APPENDIX (XXIX.) PRAYERS.

*** These Prayers may be used by the Brethren and Sisters and the Master and Chaplain of Saint Nicholas' Hospital at Salisbury, in private, or in the Chapel after the Collect for the Day.<sup>1</sup>

A Prayer to be used on MONDAY.

GOD, Who didst teach the hearts of Thy faithful people by the sending to them the light of Thy holy Spirit; Grant us by the same Spirit to have a right judgement in all things, and evermore to rejoice in His holy comfort, through the merits of Christ Jesus our Saviour, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the unity of the same Spirit, one God world without end. Amen.

¶ On TUESDAY.

ALMIGHTY GOD, by whose providence Thy servant JOHN BAPTIST was wonderfully born, and sent to prepare the way of Thy Son our Saviour by preaching of repentance; Make us so to follow his doctrine and holy life, that we may truly repent according to his preaching, and after his example constantly speak the truth, boldly rebuke vice, and patiently suffer for the truth's sake, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Or this :

OGOD Who didst distinguish Thine holy bishop NICHOLAS with singular gifts and graces of the Holy Ghost, leave us not we beseech Thee in our manifold infirmities, but strengthen us with Thy heavenly aid, Through Jesus Christ our Lord, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee in the unity of the same Spirit, one God world without end. Amen.

<sup>1</sup> These Prayers were compiled by the present Custos in 1896, and have been authorised by the Ordinary.

¶ On WEDNESDAY,

and at SPECIAL COMMEMORATIONS.

[On the second Wednesday in May, and the second Wednesday in November; and upon the sixth day of December (being Saint Nicholas' Day) these verses will be first said:

The Righteous shall be had in everlasting remembrance :
Answer. And they shall fear no evil report.

The Souls of the Righteous are in the Hand of God :

Answer. And no torment shall touch them.]

The Collect.

¶ On WEDNESDAY.

O ETERNAL LORD GOD, Who art the Resurrection and the Life of them that believe, and Who art alway to be praised as well for the dead as for them that be alive ; we give Thee most hearty thanks for Richard Poore sometime bishop of Sarum, Ela countess of Salisbury, Robert Bingham bishop, William Herbert earl of Pembroke, Geoffrey Bigge, Matthew Nicholas and Edward Emily formerly masters of Saint Nicholas, and for Shute Barrington sometime bishop of Salisbury, as for all other our Benefactors, by whose liberality we have food and raiment and a quiet home ; Humbly beseeching Thee to grant that we, well using these Thy blessings to the praise and honour of Thy Holy Name, may at length with them be brought unto the immortal glory of the Resurrection, through Jesus Christ our Lord, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee and the Holy Ghost one God world without end. Amen.

¶ On THURSDAY.

GRANT, O LORD, we beseech Thee, that the course of this world may be so peaceably ordered by Thy governance, that Thy Church may joyfully serve Thee in all godly quietness ; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Or this :

ALMIGHTY and Everlasting God, by Whose Spirit the whole body of the Church is governed and sanctified ; receive our supplications and prayers, which we offer before

Thee for all estates of men in Thy holy Church, that every member of the same, in his vocation and ministry, may truly and godly serve Thee ; through our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

¶ On FRIDAY.

ALMIGHTY GOD, we beseech Thee graciously to behold this Thy family, for which our Lord Jesus Christ was contented to be betrayed, and given up into the hands of wicked men, and to suffer death upon the cross ; Who now liveth and reigneth with Thee and the Holy Ghost, ever one God world without end. Amen.

Or this :

ALMIGHTY and Everlasting God, Who, of Thy tender love towards mankind, hast sent Thy Son, our Saviour Jesus Christ, to take upon Him our flesh, and to suffer death upon the cross, that all mankind should follow the example of his great humility ; Mercifully grant, that we may both follow the example of His patience, and also be made partakers of His resurrection ; through the same Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

¶ On SATURDAY.

WE beseech Thee, O Lord, pour Thy grace into our hearts ; that, as we have known the incarnation of Thy Son Jesus Christ by the message of an angel, so by His cross and passion we may be brought unto the glory of His resurrection ; through the same Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Or this :<sup>1</sup>

O ETERNAL LORD GOD, Who holdest all souls in life, we beseech Thee to shed forth upon Thy whole Church in Paradise and on earth the bright beams of Thy light and heavenly comfort ; and grant that we, following the good examples of those who have loved and served Thee here and are at rest, may with them at length enter into Thine unending joy ; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

A DAILY PRAYER (1900).

Let it be Thy good pleasure, O Lord :
That love and brotherly kindness may dwell in our lot.<sup>1</sup>

ALMIGHTY GOD, Who art the Father of all the families of the earth, graciously behold Thy servants, whom Thou hast gathered together in this place. Make us to live together in love and harmony, in sobriety and chastity, bearing one another's burthens, seeking each other's welfare, rejoicing in each other's joys : Grant us a prudent and a watchful spirit, that we may live daily to Thy glory ; And when the time of our earthly pilgrimage is over, grant that we may lie down in peace, and at last be awakened together and called to sit down together at the Marriage Supper of the Lamb, Through His merits, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee and the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

<sup>1</sup> This petition is assigned to Rabbi Eliezer in Prayers in Use at Twyford School, edited by Dr. G. W. Kitchin, now Dean of Durham ; and so (as Dr. Driver informs me) it is ascribed in Talmud Babylon, Berachoth, 16<sup>b</sup>. But elsewhere, and perhaps on better authority (Jerusalem Talmud, Berachoth, 7<sup>d</sup> = iv. 2) it is said to have been part of a prayer used by Rabbi Yochanan (cir. 250 A.D.) after reciting the 'Eighteen', "May it be good pleasure from before Thee, O my God, the God of my Fathers, that love and brotherhood, peace and friendship, may dwell in our lot. And grant us a future and a hope ; increase our border with disciples, appoint us a portion in Paradise" ; &c., &c.

I would, in any case, suppose that the prayer for peace in the lot had been suggested originally by the benedictory salutation of the outgoing course of priests, said in the Temple, for the Sabbath. On Saturday (says the Jerusalem Gemara Ber. 3<sup>c</sup> = i. 8) "a blessing is added for the company of guards who go out [according to the order of their course]. What is this prayer ? According to Rabbi Herbo, it is this :—' May He who dwelleth in this House plant betwixt you brotherhood and love, peace and friendship.' " Dr. Moses Schwab, in his English translation of the Talmud of Jerusalem I. i. p. 84, li. 18, has unfortunately omitted by inadvertence the name of R. Yochanan.

A Series of Supplementary Collects for certain Saints' Days and Commemorations has been published by the Lord Bishop of Salisbury in "The Form of Prayer and Order of Ceremonies in use in the Diocese of Salisbury" appended to his Lecture on "the Rite of Consecration of Churches," issued under the direction of the Tract Committee, S.P.C.K., for the Church Historical Society, No. 52, in 1899, pp. 55—7. The prayers in commemoration of K. Alfred, and K. Charles I., are derived from other sources.

COLLECTS WHICH MAY BE USED ON CERTAIN DAYS.

ST. PATRICK, Apostle of Ireland, 17th March.

[? A.D. 465.]

O GOD, who didst teach Thy servant PATRICK to love the land of his captivity, and willingly to spend and be spent that he might bring its people unto Thee: grant that in all our troubles we may hear Thy voice, and gladly learn what Thou wouldest have us to do; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

ST. GEORGE, 23rd April.

[A.D. 303.]

O LORD God of hosts, who didst give grace to Thy servant GEORGE to lay aside the fear of man and to confess Thee even unto death, grant that we, and all our countrymen who bear office in the world, may think lightly of earthly place and honour, and seek rather to please the Captain of our salvation, who hath chosen us to be His soldiers; to whom with Thee and the Holy Ghost be thanks and praise from all the armies of Thy Saints, now and for evermore. Amen.

ST. ALDHELM, first Bishop of Sherborne, 25th May.

[A.D. 709.]

O GOD Who hast made man's lips to praise Thee, and givest skill to his hands, we thank Thee for Thy servant ALDHELM, whom Thou didst instruct to be a teacher of Thy people in this Diocese; and we pray Thee to continue a full supply of faithful and learned men for Thy service in every age, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

ST. AUGUSTINE, first Archbishop of Canterbury, 26th May.
[A.D. 605.]

O LORD, Who hast taught us in Thy holy word that Kings shall be the nursing fathers of Thy Church and their Queens her nursing mothers, we thank Thee for the preaching of Thy servant AUGUSTINE, by whose zeal and devotion the Kingdom of England received the Gospel, whereby we have been brought out of darkness and error to the clear light and true knowledge of Thee and of Thy Son : to Whom with Thee and the Holy Ghost be all glory, praise and thanksgiving now and for ever. Amen.

ST. BONIFACE, 5th June.<sup>1</sup>
[A.D. 755.]

O LORD JESU CHRIST, Who callest to Thee whom Thou willest, and sendest them whither Thou dost choose ; we thank Thee for calling Thy servant BONIFACE from our own West-Saxon land, and for sending him to be the Apostle of Germany, and to die for the faith in Frisia : and we humbly pray Thee to raise up among us faithful men in this our day to go forth to destroy the strongholds of idolatry, and to build up Thy Church in heathen lands : Who livest and reignest with the Father and the Holy Spirit One God world without end. Amen.

ST. ALBAN, first Martyr in Britain, 17th June.<sup>2</sup>
[A.D. 303.]

O MERCIFUL SAVIOUR, who didst teach us that those who receive Thy ministers have the blessing of receiving Thee, we thank Thee for the example of Thy Martyr Saint

V. The Lord knoweth them that are His :

R. And their inheritance shall endure for ever.

G RANT, we beseech Thee, Almighty God, that we who commemo- rate Thy holy Bishop and Martyr, Saint BONIFACE, may have our share in the Communion of Saints, through Jesus Christ our Saviour, who liveth and reigneth with Thee, in the Unity of the Holy Ghost, One God for ever and ever. Amen.

<sup>2</sup> St. Alban is found placed thus (on June 17th) in the Preces Privatae, published by Royal Authority in 1568 and 1573, as well as in the Prayer Book Kalendar in 1662. In the Latin Liber Precum Publicarum of 1560, as in the mediaeval books, he is placed more correctly on June 22nd. See an exhaustive paper by Lord Aldenham in the Transactions of the St. Paul's Ecclesiastical Society, 1896. IV., 32—46.

ALBAN, to whom Thou didst reveal Thyself in days of persecution ; and we pray Thee that Thy clergy and people may ever be ready to bear witness together unto death : Who with the Father and the Holy Spirit art one God for evermore. Amen.

ST. MARY MAGDALEN, 22nd July.

MERCIFUL FATHER, give us grace, that we never presume to sin through the example of any creature, but if it shall chance us at any time to offend Thy divine majesty, that then we may truly repent, and lament the same, after the example of MARY MAGDALEN, and by lively faith obtain remission of all our sins : through the merits<sup>1</sup> of Thy Son our Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

THE TRANFIGURATION OF OUR LORD, 6th August.

O GOD, Who didst call the Saints of the old Covenant<sup>2</sup> to bear witness to THY SON'S TRANFIGURATION, and by a voice from the cloud of light didst bid us hearken unto Him : grant that as we have found Him in deed the only perfect Teacher of the Truth, so we may one day behold Him face to face in glory : Who liveth and reigneth with Thee and the Holy Ghost, One God, world without end. Amen.

ST. CYPRIAN, Bishop of Carthage, 14th or 26th September.<sup>3</sup>
[A.D. 258.]

O GOD, Who didst give grace to Thy Bishop CYPRIAN to consecrate all his powers to the service of Thy Church in Africa, and to build and guard it in troublous times : grant to all those who bear rule in Thy house to think ever of its glory, its purity, and its beauty, and to welcome death with thanksgiving whensoever Thou shalt send it ; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

<sup>3</sup> St. Cyprian of Carthage suffered on Sept. 14th. In very many Kalendars his name was removed to the 16th. How it came to be placed on the 26th in the Book of Common Prayer Abp. Benson has shown in his Cyprian, his Life, &c., 1897, pp. 610—20.

ST. MARTIN, Bishop of Tours in France, 11th November.
 [A.D. 397.]

O LORD, Who didst teach Thy servant Saint MARTIN to follow Thee as a boy, and to serve Thee unweariedly through length of days; Grant to Thy Pastors to be like him in discerning the tokens of Thy presence, in showing zeal for Thy glory, and gentleness towards those who have gone astray, that they may draw the nations closer to Thyself; Who with the Father and the Holy Ghost livest and reignest One God world without end. Amen.<sup>1</sup>

ST. HUGH, Bishop of Lincoln, 17th November.
 [A.D. 1200.]

O MERCIFUL FATHER, Who didst endow Thy servant HUGH of Lincoln with a wise and cheerful boldness, and didst teach him how to commend the discipline of holy life to Kings and Princes: Give us grace not only to be bold, but to have just cause for boldness, even the fear and love of Thyself alone. Grant this, O Father, for the sake of Thy dear Son, our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Among the Prayers compiled by the Master of St. Nicholas, and sanctioned by the then Archbishop of Canterbury for use in St. Martin's Church, Canterbury, on the Anniversary service on July 3rd, 1897, was the following:—

Hosanna. Alleluia. For Thy mercy's sake, O Lord, we pray Thee turn away Thine anger from this city, and from Thy holy house: for we have sinned. Alleluia.

(Cf. Baedae Eccles. Hist. i. 25).

ALMIGHTY GOD, Who didst endue Thy faithful soldier and servant MARTIN with singular gifts and graces of the Holy Ghost, and didst enable him to endure hardness, to love mercy, to fight the good fight of faith, and to refuse no service in the Name of Christ; Grant unto these whom Thou hast called to fight under our Saviour's banner, a single heart to spend and to be spent for Thee and for Thy little ones; through the Same Jesus Christ our Lord, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee in the Unity of the Same Spirit, One God, world without end. Amen.

Behold a great priest who pleased God in his days and was found righteous, and a covenant of peace was made with him.

O ye Priests of the Lord, bless ye the Lord.

Answer. O ye servants of the Lord, bless be the Lord.

Collect.

O GOD, who didst singularly adorn Thy blessed Confessor and Bishop Saint HUGH with noble acts and shining signs of grace;

ST. CLEMENT, Bishop of Rome, 23rd November.
 [A.D. 100.]

O LORD, Who in every age dost write names in Thy book of life, and dost lead the meek of the earth to be followers of the Lamb of God: Raise up to us teachers, like Thy servant CLEMENT, the disciple of Thy first Apostles, who by their writings may instruct the Church without thought of self; and open to us healing fountains of repentance, peace and love: through the same Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

grant that his holy pattern may enkindle us, and his brave and virtuous deeds enlighten us; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

SAINT HUGH'S ORDER FOR THE CANONS' DAILY PSALTER.

To be said by each Canon after his Psalms.

Lord, have mercy upon us.

Christ, have mercy upon us.

Lord, have mercy upon us.

Our Father, &c.

And lead us not into temptation.

But deliver us from evil. Amen.

O Lord save Thy servants and handmaidens:

Who put their trust in Thee.

May the souls of Thy servants and handmaidens rest in peace. Amen.

Lord, hear my prayer:

And let my crying come unto Thee.

The Lord by with you:

And with thy spirit.

Let us pray.

A LMIGHTY Everlasting God, who art Lord both of the living and of the dead, and pitiest all those whom Thou dost foreknow to be Thine by faith and works: we humbly beseech Thee that those for whom we have determined to offer our prayers, both those whom this world yet holdeth in the flesh, and those already unclothed of the body, whom the world to come hath received, may by Thy goodness and mercy be counted worthy to attain pardon of all their sins, and eternal joys, through our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee and the Holy Ghost, One God, world without end. Amen.

The Lord be with you.

And with thy spirit.

Bless we the Lord.

Thanks be to God.

A Commemoration of the faithful departed which may be said on Easter Even after Evening Prayer.

(By Permission of the Lord Bishop of Sarum, 1899.)

I HEARD a voice from heaven, saying unto me, Write: From henceforth blessed are the dead which die in the Lord: even so saith the Spirit; for they rest from their labours.

LORD, in Thy Holy Presence, we commemorate those of our brothers and sisters in this place whom Thou hast chosen to depart from this world, whose souls are in Thy holy keeping, especially those who have been removed from among us during the past year:—

¶ Then after a short pause shall be said:—

Lord, have mercy upon us.

Christ, have mercy upon us.

Lord, have mercy upon us.

OUR Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done, In earth as it is heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil. Amen.

Thou art the King of Glory, O Christ:

Thou art the everlasting Son of the Father.

We believe that Thou shalt come to be our Judge.

We therefore pray Thee help Thy servants whom Thou hast redeemed with Thy precious blood.

Make them to be numbered with Thy saints:

In glory everlasting.

O ye spirits and souls of the righteous, bless ye the Lord:

Praise Him and magnify Him for ever.

OMERCIFUL Father, who dost not willingly afflict the children of men, but chastenest them for their profit: have pity on all Thy bereaved and sorrowing servants who either here or elsewhere call upon Thy name; and as Thou dost sanctify human love and fellowship here upon earth, so grant us a happy reunion with those whom we love, in Thy eternal peace and joy, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

If I climb up into heaven Thou art there :

If I go down into Hell thou art there also.

O MERCIFUL Father, by whose appointment the Saviour of the world descended in spirit into the lower parts of the earth, that He might fill all things, wherein He also, with fulness of mercy, went and preached to the spirits in prison, that He might be the Lord both of dead and living ; grant that His kingdom may be perfected throughout all Thy universe visible and invisible, and that we may do our part to leave no place however dark in this world unvisited by His presence and His message of hope : through the same Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

He that dwelleth in the seeret place of the most High :

Shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty.

O GOD, whose dearly beloved Son Jesus Christ abode awhile, as on this day, with the spirits of the just in Paradise, Visit, we pray Thee, Thy Saints at rest with the fuller brightness of His Presence, and with a continual increase of hope and joy : and of Thy great mercy grant that we may so pass the time of our sojourning here, that when we go hence we may be united to them in peace; through the same Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

I must work the works of Him that sent me while it is day :

The night cometh when no man can work.

GRANT, O Lord, that we may all use this time of work while it is called to-day, remembering gladly and thankfully those who have gone before, who have stood by us and helped us in past days, who have cheered us by their sympathy and strengthened us by their example ; that, when the time of our departure hence shall come, we may have a good hope of rest with them in Paradise, and look forward with them to a glorious resurrection to eternal life, in that time of perfect fulness and liberty, which Thou hast promised to Thy children ; through Jesus Christ in whose life we live. Amen.

Lord, grant to all Thy faithful servants to rest in peace :

And to rise in glory. Amen.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Hymn 481, "Now the busy work is done"; 124, "Resting from His work to-day"; 235, "Oh ! what the joy", or some other appropriate Hymn, may be sung.

ALFRED, King, 26th October.

[A.D. 901.]

By Me Kings reign : and Princes decree justice.

Thou hast given him his heart's desire :

And hast not denied him the request of his lips.

O GOD, Who providest for Thy people by Thy power, and rulest over them in love,<sup>1</sup> we give Thee thanks for Thy servant ALFRED, our King. We bless Thee for the spirit of wisdom and understanding, of counsel and strength, of truth and goodness, with which Thou didst endue him, and for the fruit of his labours which Thou hast blessed in many lands; and humbly we beseech Thee to grant, that we well using these Thy gifts, may be profitable to Thy Church and Realm, and may continue faithful in Thy service unto the end, so that we, together with all the dead in Christ, may be brought to the immortal glory of the Resurrection, through the same Jesus Christ our Lord, Who liveth and reigneth with Thee and the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

A Commemoration of King CHARLES I. (Jan. 30th.)

Though he was punished in the sight of men : yet was his hope full of immortality.

Great and marvellous are Thy works, O Lord God Almighty :

Just and true are Thy ways, O King of Saints.

BLESSED LORD, in whose sight the death of Thy saints is precious, we magnify Thy name for Thine abundant grace bestowed upon Thy servant KING CHARLES, by which he was enabled to follow the steps of his blessed Master and Saviour, in a constant meek suffering of all barbarous indignities : And humbly we beseech Thee to grant, that his memory may be ever blessed among us, and that we may follow the example of his constancy, his patience, and great charity ; for Jesus Christ's sake, our only Mediator and Advocate. Amen.
